A School Meeting Turned into a Political Meeting.

TURNING THE TABLES UPON THE GRITS.

The annual meeting of Upton, Dundas School District was held at the School-house on the 17th inst. After a few introductory remarks about school matters, some sharp shooting commenced. The Grits taking the side of the question politically; when the Conservatives, who had the majority, saw the dodge, they embraced the favorable opportunity of expressing their political views.

Mr. E. Turner, Sr., remarked that as we were a favored people, and our good Government exempted us from any taxation, he would move for a big supplement—carried.

Mr. Matheson, Big Hill, said that our present Government, he thought, was the best that ever ruled this Province since the days of the lamented Mr. E. Whelan; and he wished them a long reign and prosperity, as they have kept us from paying any taxes when building our new school-house.

Mr. J. Duff, Grit leader of the meeting, said that all honor should be done to Hon. L. H. Davies, for copying the divers Education Acts of other countries, and mixing it with ours. He thought that there ought to be a clause in our Education Act compelling a teacher to keep Sunday School, as was the case in Pacey.

Mr. Theodore Morson, Chairman of the meeting, said that he was extremely sorry to see the meeting taking such a change of a sudden; but his advice would be to them all to support the present Government, as they have done so nobly towards the country, and kept the affairs of the ship of state so economically, as they are doing.

E. Turner moved that every Saturday be granted to the teacher—Miss Janet Anderson—after which James Euman said that, since he had lost the use of his eyesight, he could not read much about the doings of our Government; but he had a good memory, and their policies he endorsed.

He quoted some choice quotations, and recited a splendid and well composed piece he said he had made in praise of our Local Government.

A motion was made by E. Turner that the proceedings of this meeting be published in THE EXAMINER, (the Grits preferring the Patriot), carried in favor of THE EXAMINER. After which Mr. Euman sang Auld Lang Syne, and with three cheers for the Sullivan Government, the meeting dispersed.

BILL JONES,
Reporter.

The Dark Moon.

(Montreal Herald.)

The new theory which Professor E. Stone Wiggins propounds in our columns to-day, in regard to the number of satellites possessed by the earth, will probably make as great a sensation in scientific circles as those predictions of great storms which filled the papers a few months ago. The Professor is of the opinion that the moon which is seen by men and which has formed a theme for lovers and poets in all ages, is not alone in the starry Heavens, but possesses a fellow, a dark brother or sister, which we do not see, but which exerts a sensible influence upon the earth and, we may presume also, upon all that the earth contains.

We need not say what an interesting field for inquiry this suggestion opens up, or how it may serve to account for many things which would be otherwise wholly mysterious in the economy of nature. When a man does some act for which we cannot account in any other way, we may put it down to the influence of the "dark moon," which has proved too potent to be resisted. The "dark moon" seems to have been more powerful than usual of late, judging from the various untoward events which have taken place during the past few months. We may be sure that the failure of Grant, Ward & Co., and the ruin of their numerous dupes was a case in which the "dark moon" had a finger in the pie.

Mr. Wiggins has no faith in Mr. Proctor's theory that the moon is a dead planet. On the contrary, he gives it the credit for being about the most lively orb in the universe, a conclusion with which most of those who have a taste for moon gazing will agree. As for the "dark moon," Professor Wiggins has not yet been able to obtain a sight of it, but he is quite certain it is there, and when found he will, no doubt, "make a note" of the fact and forward it to the Herald. In the meantime our readers can keep a look out for that shady orb on their own account.

WIGGIN'S DARK MOON—THE EARTH ATTENDED BY TWO SATELLITES.

Mr. Wiggins propounds his theory in the following letter:—

For many years it has been my belief that our planet has two satellites, a visible and a dark one, the distance of the latter from the earth being about double that of the former. The librations of the moon, the irregularity of
