SALLY DOWS, An After-War Romance OF THE SOUTH BY BRET HARTE.

The door was open to the fragrant afternoon breeze wafted through the rose and jessamine. So was a side-door opening from the hall into a long parlor or sitting-room that ran the whole width of the house. Courtland entered it. It was prettily furnished, but everything had the air of freshness and of being uncharacteristically new. It was empty, but a faint hammering was audible on the rear wall of the house, through the two open French windows.

Lingering for an instant, only to assure himself that the fair speaker had secured her foothold and was in no danger of falling, Courtland snatched up his hat, which had providentially fallen inside the room, and retreated ingloriously to the other end of the parlor. The voice came again from the window; it struck him as being singularly sweet and clear.

"Sophy, is that you?" Courtland discreetly retired to the hall. To his great relief a voice from the outside answered: "What, Miss Sally?" "What did you move the ladder for? You might have killed me!" "For God, Miss Sally, I didn't move no ladder!" "Don't tell me, but go down and get my slipper. And bring up some more nails."

"I have a letter for Miss Miranda, but I shall be very glad if Miss Sally Dows will receive it," returned Courtland, handing the letter and his card to the girl. She received it with still greater access of dignity and marked deliberation. "It's clean gone outer my mind, sah, of Miss Sally is in de resumption of visitin', at dis house. In fac', sah, she continued with intensified gravity and an exaggeration of thoughtfulness as the sounds of Miss Sally's hammering came shamelessly from the wall. "I doahn know exaxly ef she's engaged playin' de harp, practisin' de languages or paintin' in oil and wash colors, or givin' audiences to offshals from de courthouse. It might be de honest for de one or de other. But I'll communicate wid her, sah, in de budwood on de uppah flo'."

Presently he heard a faint rustle at the other end of the room and he turned. A sudden tremulousness swept along his pulses, and then they seemed to pause. He drew a deep breath that was almost a sigh, and remained motionless. He had no preconceived fancy of falling in love with Miss Sally at first sight, nor had he dreamed such a thing possible. Even the girlish face that he had seen in the locket, although it had stirred him with a singular emotion, had not suggested that, and the idea he had evolved from it was never a potent presence. But the exquisitely pretty face and figure before him, although it might have been painted from his own fancy of her, was still something more and something unexpected. All that had gone before had never prepared him for the beautiful girl that now stood there. It was a poor explanation to say that Miss Sally was four or five years older than her picture, and that later experiences, enlarged capacity, a different life and new ambition had impressed her youthful face with a refined nobility; it was a weird fancy to imagine that the blood of those who had died for her had in some vague, mysterious way imparted an actual fascination to her, yet it was a fact that even a familiar spectator like Sophy, saw in her young mistress a very pretty young lady with the softest pink complexion, the silkiest hair—that looked as the floss of the Indian corn might look if curled, or golden spider threads, if materialized—and eyes that were in brook gray harmony with both; that the front of Indian muslin, albeit homemade, fitted Miss Sally's figure perfectly—from the azure bows on her shoulders to the ribbon around her waist—and that the hem of its billowy skirt showed a foot which every body of Mason and Dixon's line. But it was something more intangible that this which kept Courtland breathless and silent.

PAY YOUR BILLS—You will be better able to do it, if instead of allowing your system to run down to the breaking point, you take a timely course of Hawker's Liver Pills and Tonic. And then the Doctor's bill will not be on the list of those to be paid.

The yachtsmen seem to be deep in their cups just now, but they haven't lost their heads. R. B. LEWIS, of St. John, was completely cured of his nervousness and constipation by Hawker's Pills, and now always keeps a supply on hand.

Dr. J. WIEB, of Rome, says: "Have prescribed Putner's Remedy with good results in pulmonary, serofulous and wasting diseases. Especially applicable to children, being so easily taken."

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great blood and nerve remedy. No charge to you for this advice: If you would have your plants start early, put them in spring beds.

Mrs. Bilkins—What a commanding presence that lady has. Mr. Bilkins—Yes, I guess she's married.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great blood and nerve remedy. A second street dry goods dealer advertises the strange fact that his stock of handkerchiefs is not to be touched at.

If you are in poor health, and are in doubt what to take to restore your health try Hawker's remedies. They are endorsed by all classes.

Martin—How well Miss Greenbough keeps her eye! M. G. Ginder—Why, of course; nothing could induce her to give it away.

The Telephone Company P. E. ISLAND. PARTIES using the Telephone would find talking much more satisfactory if they would observe the following rules:— 1st. Speak with the mouth about four inches from the transmitter. 2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud and distinctly. 3rd. Place the telephone so as to cover the ear, but not so as to shut out all other sounds. Do not press too hard on the ear. It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back ten or fifteen feet, if the transmitter is held low enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and is a needless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within range of your voice. HOB ANGER, Manager.

MRS. EMMA BOW, Waterville, Maine. Physicians and so-called Dyspepsia Cures failed to give any benefit. Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup Brought relief and a permanent cure. To the Dyspepsia Cure Co. GENTLEMEN: For four years, I have had a complaint I'd almost liver trouble. The only relief I could find was in my bed. I read a newspaper publication of the Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup. I had tried many times. After I had tried the best physicians and two of the last long pills, without receiving any lasting benefit, I was recommended to try your Dyspepsia Syrup. I bought one bottle and in six days I felt better. I determined to buy six more under your guarantee to cure me or refund my five dollars. But FOUR bottles accomplished a complete cure and I am again in perfect health. FREE FROM COULD THAT STIPULATION NO RUSH OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND A RAVENOUS APPETITE. I sleep peacefully and am growing fatter than I would have been. Your medicine is SWEET and PLEASANT. For more pleasant and more powerful CURES than any of the many I will gladly answer any inquiry concerning this statement. MRS. EMMA BOW. Read our printed guarantee with every bottle. None genuine unless NO ALCOHOL our trade mark, the Beaver. Sold by all Druggists. The Groder Dyspepsia Cure Co., Limited. ST. JOHN, N. B.
