

Directive To UN Troops Says Use Arms Sparingly

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant said Monday UN troops in Cyprus are under orders to use their arms only in self-defence — and even then must apply "minimum force".

In a memorandum to six armed governments, Thant outlined in a general way the principles under which his force, including 1,100 Canadians, operates to maintain peace and order in Cyprus.

He declared to make public specific directives from him to Lt-Gen Prem Singh Gvoni of India, commander of the force. Thant had been under pressure from the British to do so.

The issue arose in the House of Commons, where questioners wanted to know whether members of the force could be fired on without being allowed to fire back. British troops make up the bulk of the UN force now, but their numbers will be cut with arrival soon of Swedish, Finnish and Irish contingents.

Thant's memorandum declared UN troops shall not take the initiative in use of armed force, which is permissible only in self-defence. The expression "self-defence" includes defence of UN posts, premises and vehicles under armed attack and support of other UN personnel under armed attack.
