Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report. Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

CORNWALL NEWS

The recent rains have given a fine start to vegetables, and incalculable good will result. Crops are now growing rapidly. Mrs. (Rev.) H. Baker is at present at Charlottetown, visiting her father, Rev. Richard Smith.

"LIKE MISTRESS, LIKE MAID."

One Instance Where Imitation is Not Condoned. "Like mistress, like maid," is an old saying, and certainly some of the modern aboriginals are about caricatures of their employers. "Do you think Mrs. A. pretty?" said one of her friends to another. "Rather," was the answer, "but she is not the style I admire; she is the kind of woman that her servants always copy. Do you know what I mean?" And her companion said she understood perfectly. "What is this undesirable quality that excites Biddy's admiration is hard to say, but although imitation may be considered the sincerest flattery, certainly no lady likes to be caricatured by her domestics.

BIRDS OF KEEN SIGHT.

Vultures, Eagles and Hawks Have Marvelous Vision. It is impossible to say with absolute certainty, but all the evidence points strongly to the conclusion that birds, and especially birds of prey, have sight much superior to that of any other animal. This superiority is not confined to range of vision only, but is seen also in the quickness with which small objects are detected, and the extraordinary rapidity with which, during the flight of some birds, the eye accommodates itself to varying distances. It has been repeatedly noticed by people traveling in the deserts of Africa that if, when not a bird is in sight, a camel or other beast of burden in a caravan should fall and be left behind, "within half an hour there are seen in the air a number of the smallest of birds, moving slowly round in circles, and gradually growing larger and larger as they descend in spiral windings towards the earth." These are vultures, and it seems that sight can be the only means by which they become aware of the prospective prey. Again, "he seems soaring at such a height that he is not a mere speck, sees the grouse walking in the heather, which it so much resembles as readily to escape the sportsman's eye." It has also been remarked that a small bird will become alarmed at the approach of a hawk long before the latter can be detected by the human eye. The extreme rapidity of the flight of some birds also makes it necessary that the focus of their eyes should change with corresponding speed, but how this is provided for is still a matter of dispute.

EXPERIMENT IN LIQUOR SELLING.

The Success of a Municipal Public House Run on New Lines.

The result of a most interesting experiment in the direction of the municipalization of the liquor traffic has just been ascertained after a trial of many months. The experiment has been made by Dr. Lees, secretary of the water department of the Birmingham corporation.

According to the instructions of the corporation, a public-house was opened in September, 1894, at Ekin village for the purpose of serving to the wants of several hundred men and their families. The rules for management were decidedly stringent, and the success of the public-house is, therefore, more important. The public-house is opened daily between the hours of 12 and 2 P. M., for one and a half hours only; and for the whole time to drink in the bar. No woman under the age of 21 years or boy under the age of 16 years is served with beer at the jug department. No person is supplied with more than one quart of liquor at the morning hour, while but two quarts may be consumed on the premises in the evening.

Only village inhabitants are allowed to freely enter the public house, but strangers may do so with a written order, which is easily obtainable. It will be at once conceded that the municipal public-house was started at a great disadvantage, there being an ordinary establishment, conducted on the usual lines, a few hundred yards off. Mr. Lees conferred with men of experience in the "trade" before the house was duly established, and a qualified public-house manager was appointed to conduct the business on behalf of the corporation. He has fully entered into the spirit of the municipal experiment and quite understands that he is thought no more highly of if his sales are high than if they are low, whereas, should there be any drunkenness or disturbance, he is held responsible for it.

The takings, of course, have varied very considerably, from $100 to $350 a week. The net profits for the first half year were as high as $700, and they have since been increasing. The profits are devoted to the maintenance of a reading and recreation room, which is distinct from the public-house, and this has proved to minimize the drinking—one of the principal objects of the experiment.

In concluding his report on the results of the experiment, Dr. Lees says: "Individually I am a total abstemious, but I am perfectly certain that we are serving the interests of temperance far better in providing wholesome liquor, under proper regulations, than we should be did we attempt to prohibit the traffic altogether, leaving it to be conducted in the usual way."—Westminster Gazette.

A SWEET BREADTH.

Various Things Will Help You, But a Good Digestion is Best You Can Get. Don't expect to have clean teeth or a sweet breath while there is a tinge of white on the tongue. It is an unmistakable evidence of indigestion. Drink sour lemonade, eat ripe fruit and green vegetables for purgatives; exercise freely; use plenty of water internally and externally and keep up the treatment until the mouth is clean, healthy and red. Various things are suggested to counteract an unpleasant breath resulting from a bad tooth or garlic-scanted dishes. Cinamon, mint, scented, orris root, cloves, mastic resin and spruce gum will disguise some odors. Ten drops of tincture of myrrh in a glass of water will sweeten and refresh the mouth; a teaspoonful of spirits of camphor in the water is recommended in the case of cold, throat trouble or any slight indisposition which may affect the breath.

STOOD TO REASON.

The great criminal lawyer was defending a man indicted for larceny. An old friend sat by the lawyer and the prosecuting attorney, and they neglected no opportunity to hit each other. "Gentlemen of the jury," pleaded the lawyer, "in determining this case let me caution you to bear this one fact in mind. My client is a poor man. While we admit he was tempted to steal, it was only when he was in the last extremity—hunger, in fact. Think what any man might do who suddenly found himself alone in the world and penniless."

The prosecuting attorney, remembering that the great criminal lawyer was noted for his greed, saw his opportunity and replied:—"That is a very pretty picture you have just had drawn, gentlemen of the jury; but every one knows that if the prisoner was really without a cent the counsel for the defense would never be defending him."—Judge.

Cleaning Glass Globes.

The globes of the gas chandeliers often need a thorough cleaning, and to ensure this, soak them in warm soda and water. Dip a few pieces of flannel in the water, and wash them with a well-soaped flannel. Rinse in clear, cold water, dry with a linen cloth and polish with newspapers. Not only are they useful for all kinds of glass articles, but they are invaluable for mirrors and windows.

Easily Settled.

Her Father—It is folly to talk of marriage years yet. My daughter is a mere child. She knows nothing about the world, and could not manage servants. Mr. Sillimure—Oh, that needn't make the slightest difference. We shan't have any.

"Why Some Succeed"

The shrewd advertiser is the one who knows how, when and where to advertise. The merchant who advertises in THE EXAMINER are not the men to make mistakes, as you can see for yourself. But you may get the benefit of their experience by watching how, when and where they advertise. Some papers pay advertisers, some do not, many do not. Only a few pay, and they can be picked out by the large amount of advertising they do.

Nervous

People find just the help they so much need, in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It furnishes the desired strength by purifying, vitalizing and enriching the blood, and thus builds up the nerves, tones the stomach and regulates the whole system. Read this: "I want to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla. My health ran down, and I had the grip. After that, my heart and nervous system were badly affected, so that I could not do my own work. Our physician gave me some help, but did not cure. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Soon I could do all my own household work. I have taken Hood's Pills with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and they have done me much good. I will not be without them. I have taken 13 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and through the blessing of God, it has cured me. I worked as hard as ever the past summer, and I am thankful to say I am well. Hood's Pills when taken with Hood's Sarsaparilla help very much." Mrs. M. M. MISSISSAUGA, Freehold, Penn. This and many other cures prove that
