MR. AND MRS. PHELAN HENDRICKEN Young Couple Pledge Vows In Pretty Spring Ceremony

Easter lilies and spring cut flowers provided the setting at St. Patrick's Church in Fort Augustus for the wedding on April 21 of Mary Doria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Trainor, Johnson's River and Phelan John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hendricken, Postes Station.

The ushers were Mr. Earl Trainor, brother of the bride and Mr. Paul Hughes, friend of the groom. Miss Eleanor MacDonnell was the organist and accompanied Miss Genevieve MacDonnell as she sang appropriate hymns during the ceremony.

MARY HAWORTH Families Should Share The Care Of Aged Mother

Dear Mary Haworth: My duty is to care for a mother who gets old and weaker and either her daughter-in-law? Neither of the younger women has good health.

The mother has lived with her daughter for 14 years, helping her rear a large family, now grown and married. The last couple of years the mother has arthritis and isn't able to walk on herself. She has a younger husband who pays for her keep, but lives elsewhere.

On the other hand, it might be argued, powerfully that inasmuch as the mother has been the daughter's domestic helper for 14 years, the daughter owes her pensioner care. In her old age and disabled condition, in any case, it is more fair to share when brothers and sisters, or sons and daughters, are available and competent to take their hands of an ailing, elderly, dependent mother's needs.

Of course I am not an authority on this subject, but I think you are right. It is important to keep in touch with the outside world, to exercise and improve the faculty of being friendly, poised and at ease with all sorts of people. For want of opportunity and exercise on this score, some of us tend to become peculiar.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Passing Of A Neighbor Brings Alderlea Sadness

A lingering sense of loss, a sadness, prevails at Alderlea now. Early this morning, as I was in the kitchen, a neighbor who had been a farmer-neighbor to us, passed away. Not that we had not been aware of a certain sadness in him, accentuated in recent years: the ripening, which comes to crown the years of one who has lived long and well. Nevertheless, the call of the party came suddenly, when the dusk of a June-Sabbath was commencing to enfold the day at home, to which he and his wife had retired, and where, as before, they sat at various times, to spend many happy years.

Presently, there would be the beat of hoofs in the barnyard, the sound of the pump, and the smart bustle of stabling a red feeded for noon. And as the three men neared the door, we would hear their voices in carrying tones: from the elder of the brothers in half-earnest: "Do you suppose dinner's ready?" James I said: "An early dinner. From him gone today, and first in the kitchen: "She has it on the table! She knows she's not teaching a parcel of young'uns these days with lots of time on her hands, she's out in the farming now!"

IDA BAILEY ALLEN

Chicken Pilaff Featured On French Dinner Menu

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN In France, chicken is a choice meat, much more expensive than in this country. It was found, chicken pilaff featured on the dinner menu when we arrived today, when through the kindness of Galles in Paris for a week's stay.

After we had ordered dinner in the luxurious plant-and-flower-decked dining room, our host explained to me that the hotel was built at the turn of the century and named "Princes de Galles" in honor of Britain's Prince of Wales.

- 4 tbsp butter (preferably whipped)
1 c. cooked shredded green beans
1 (3 lb.) cold boiled chicken, cut bite-size
2 (6 oz.) cans pimiento, cut in squares
1 heated diced cooked or canned artichoke heart (optional)
1 tsp. chopped parsley
Combine saffron and cold water. Let stand 5 min.
In heavy 3-qt. saucepan slowly saute rice in butter and oil until color turns golden.
Add salt and chicken broth; strain in liquid from saffron. Cover tight. Place over high heat.
When boiling vigorously, reduce heat to a simmer-boat. Simmer rice 15 min., then uncover.
Meantime, saute onion, a garlic, green pepper and mushrooms 6 min. in additional butter. Stir into rice with 2 prong fork.
Add green beans and chicken. Cover. Add a little heated broth to dry.
Slow heat 20 to 25 min. over boiling water.
Transfer to heated uncovered hot casserole.
Garish with pimientos, artichoke heart and parsley.
