BEDTIME STORIES

Paying His Way

To take and in return to give, You'll find the happy way to live.
—Tommy Tit.

Tommy Tit the Chickadee had made a great discovery. He had found out what it was that Ruby-throat the Hummingbird and Mrs Hummer were getting from little red cups that seemed to be filled with water. It really was syrup of which Hummingbirds are very fond. Tommy liked it as well as they did. Yes, sir, he did so. In the spring when the sap begins to run in the maple trees, it sometimes drips from the ends of twigs where Happy Jack Squirrel has bitten off the tips. There Tommy Tit will hang upside down and sip the little drops of sap. You know the maple sap is sweet. Now from these little cups Tommy Tit was getting something even sweeter.

But Tommy Tit's bright little eyes do not miss one on a twig.

While Rubythroat and Mrs. Hummer were around Tommy Tit could get only a few brief sips. He couldn't fight them because they were too fast for him. So, until it was time for them to make the long journey down to the Land - of - always - summer to spend the winter, that syrup really was theirs. Happily Farmer Brown's boy had happened to see Tommy Tit drinking the syrup. So after the Hummingbirds had left he continued to put out syrup especially for Tommy Tit. Mrs. Tommy had tried it too and she liked it. So, until it became so cold that the syrup would freeze, Farmer Brown's boy would continue to put it out.

Every morning very early Tommy Tit flew over to the house to get his breakfast. He ate a little suet. He ate a little doughnut. He ate a few sunflower seeds and he had two or three good drinks of syrup. Then he flew back to the Old Orchard. After resting there a short time Tommy went to work. Yes, sir, Tommy went to work. He was paying for the good breakfast he had had. He didn't know he was paying for it, but he was.

You see, already he was hungry again and wanted a second breakfast. And he wanted something different. He wanted Worms and Insects and their eggs. And they were the kinds of Worms and Insects that were living on the trees of the Old Orchard and doing their best to ruin those trees. They didn't know they were ruining the trees. They were not doing it purposely. They were just trying to get enough to eat themselves. In summer some would eat the leaves. Some would bore under the bark. Some would bore into the wood. Now, many of these laid their eggs, very, very, tiny, tiny eggs, on and under the bark, and out on the twigs.

Tommy Tit dearly loves to eat tiny tiny eggs so small that you and I wouldn't notice them at all, even if we were close to them. But Tommy Tit's bright little eyes do not miss one on a twig. Because he is such a little acrobat he can search the twigs all over, on the under sides as well as on the upper sides. When Tommy Tit has looked a twig all over there are no tiny eggs left there. And so there will be no worms or insects to ruin that twig. Then he goes to another twig, and so all over the tree. Farmer Brown's boy knows that he will have plenty of fruit on a tree that Tommy Tit has taken care of. In this way Tommy Tit pays for the sryup and doughnuts and the suet and the seeds that Farmer Brown's boy puts out for him.

Ingrid Bergman Would Like Her Private Life Left Alone

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Ingrid Bergman said Wednesday she wished the world would judge her as an actress and leave her private life alone.

"I'm starting a new life," she said, without a trace of bitterness, "and I do feel that I have some right to privacy."

The interview took place in a small restaurant near the studio where she is making a new movie — Indiscreet — with Cary Grant as co-star.

The twice-married mother of four children — three by Italian director Roberto Rossellini and one by her first husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom — spoke about her troubles only in answer to questions.

As to Rossellini, from whom she legally separated Nov. 7, she politely refused to discuss him.

"People keep telling me that a million housewives would like to change places with me," she said. Then, after a pause, she added: "I wonder."

With a quick little laugh, she picked at her bacon and eggs.

"I've had troubles. Yes. But, If I had to live my life all over again, I'd still want to be an actress and be this one—Ingrid Bergman."

"ARE YOU HAPPY?"

"But, are you happy?" she was asked.

There was only the slightest hesitation.

"Yes. Yes. I'm happy."

She lifted her eyes.

"There are my children. I miss them terribly, of course."

Then she smiled again.

"But I shall be seeing them at Christmas. We have five days holiday from picture making. I expect to visit them in Italy. Or, if I find a house or an apartment here, to bring them to London."

She said she found it difficult going house hunting and keeping up with the grinding pace of a movie studio.

"I want something modern. Something with at least new furniture."

She is living in a downtown hotel.

Russia Suggests Tunnel To India

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Soviet newspaper said Wednesday the latest tunnelling methods would make possible in the near future a tunnel 7½ miles long under the Himalayas, shortening the route between India and the Soviet Union by about 500 miles.

The newspaper Stroitelnaya Gazeta, organ of the council of ministers for construction affairs, did not say whether such a project is under discussion. It said the tunnel would take only three or four years to complete, or half that time if work started simultaneously from India.

Among tunnelling methods the article mentioned were the use of narrow jets of water striking at a speed of 1,500 feet a second and various means of applying heat to crack the rock.

"I hate to move the children into a hotel. Not that they mind it. They've lived in hotels a lot in their days and they like it. It amuses them, you know, pressing the buttons and all that."

Did she plan to return to the United States?

"No, I have no plans for that. I don't want to bring my children up there. I want to give them a European education. After all, I'm European."

The actress said that after she finishes Indiscreet she will go to Formosa — probably in February—to make another movie.

"I may stop off in Hollywood then."

TALKS OF ORDEAL

Her mind flipped back to Italy. She said one of her toughest times was just after her recent separation from Rossellini, whom she married in 1950.

"I was feeling very upset. You know, leaving the children and all that, and they (Italian reporters) kept firing all those ugly questions at me."

She bit her lip.

"Some of the questions were pretty horrible."

She shrugged her shoulders and added:

"But that's the way it goes. That's life."

A faraway look came into her eyes.

"You know, I remember telling my father when I was a child that I wanted to be something when I grew up—something that would get me a lot of attention in the newspapers."

She waved away a coffee and laughed.

"Well, I certainly succeeded in that."

Begins $530,000 Damage Case

TORONTO (CP)—The widow of Provost R. S. K. Seeley of Trinity College, Toronto, and his estate Monday filed a writ for damages against several car firms and a car firm service manager for more than $530,000.

In the writ, filed at Osgoode Hall by the law firm of Ferguson, Montgomery, Cassels and Mitchell, Michael MacKenzie, administrator of the estate, and Mrs. Marjorie Peters Seeley allege that Dr. Seeley's death was "caused by the negligence of the defendants."

The action is against Vauxhall Motors, three subsidiaries of General Motors, Pink Buick Limited of Toronto, and Ray Cosgove, service manager of Pink Buick.

Dr. Seeley was injured July 12 when his car went out of control near Brighton, Ont., and was struck by another vehicle. Dr. Seeley died in hospital Aug. 3 of a massive pulmonary embolism.

Would Trade Satellite Data

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo Astronomical Observatory said Monday the Soviet Union has proposed an exchange of information with Japan on earth satellite observations.

Japan has received much of its previous advance data on the two Soviet Sputniks — such as their anticipated route—from the calculations of U.S. scientists. The Russians have given out almost no advance data except the radio frequencies on which the baby moons transmit and timetables of their crossings over various cities.

Under rules of the International Geophysical Year, information obtained from the artificial satellites is supposed to be made available to all nations participating.

A spokesman for the Tokyo observatory said the Soviet authorities would have to be consulted to determine what sort of an ex-

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation
