ART IN IRISH CABINS.

BEAUTIFUL WORK OF PEASANTS IN THE GREEN ISLE.

Just Coming Into Notice—Embroideries, Wood Carving and Earthenware—The Porcelain of Belleek—Frail and Beautiful Wares Produced by Skilled Hands.

In these days of drought—art drought—in the season between the going out and coming in of artists, one turns any place for rare things, and that is how it came about that out of the depths of the Irish Store, on Wabash avenue, says the Chicago Times, there was raked up the other day some of the rarest bits of wood carving, embroidery, and Belleek porcelain in the city.

The carving was of course of bogwood, that wood which soaks in the bogs until it is black as ebony and twice as beautiful. It was in all odd shapes, and the articles were both ornamental and useful.

Owls and other birds of the night looked with ill-omened eyes out of the case in which they stood, and tall candlesticks told eerie tales of Irish homes and Irish bogies. On them were carved the great wolf-dogs—the dogs of Ireland long since passed away, save in the traditions of the people.

Fanciful trays and boxes, tiny vases and paper cutters, everything to which the wood carver turns his attention, were there; and all the work of the peasants of Ireland. Beautiful to look upon, and yet something one must approach with saddened heart, because each carved leaf and scroll, each tiny feather of bird, each hair of the gaunt wolf-dog, tells the story of a gaunter wolf which ever stands at the Irish peasant's door.

And so with the embroidery. In every stitch it was what we call high art, and yet Mrs. White, whose heart and soul is with Lady Aberdeen in her work, says: "Each stitch, each drawn thread there, tells a story to me of hunger and privations. My country women work these things in peasant homes, where never a ray of hope enters, unless—unless it is the hope of death."

And looking at them through Mrs. White's eyes one could no longer see the rare embroideries as one looks at those turned out by machines, but each bit of linen seemed stamped with the individuality of her whose fingers had beautified it. Upon each leaf and flower some woman's tears had dropped, and with the stitches some woman's heartstrings had been woven in the cloth. There were visions of homes of which we cannot conceive, earthen floors and peat fires; of hungry women and wailing children; of men grown desperate with suffering.

But over all and through it all art seems to have held sway—the art of the needle and ofttimes the pocket-knife. Painters and sculptors will probably not be inclined to accept this.

To them art means only the covering of canvas with paint, or the cutting of stone, or moulding of plaster into form, but the layman accepts more. Perhaps it needed the rare embroideries of Japan to open our eyes to the fact that needlework may encroach upon the realm of art, but having once been opened they will never be closed.

And so it is that among the artists the Irish peasant, man or woman, is not all unworthy to stand. With the needle and with the knife they work, as they have worked for generations, but no longer without recognition.

As for Irish porcelain, that is different. There is no need to plead its cause. For the matter of twenty years or more Americans have been proud to own a piece of Belleek porcelain. It is manufactured in Belleek, Lough Erne, Fermanagh County, at the only porcelain works Ireland can boast.

The ware is peculiarly beautiful. The glaze is iridescent, of a lustrous silvery appearance. It is translucent and is like an eggshell in thinness. It is rarely made in conventional patterns, the designs usually possessing all the charm of originality. A favorite shape is that of a shell, and when made in that form it is hard to detect it from a beautiful sea shell, so like the pearly lining is the glazed surface. France and England both try to duplicate the Belleek ware, but have to substitute an artificial metallic glaze to produce the luster of mother-of-pearl.

Cheap Artificial Teeth.

Inasmuch as real teeth are so easily lost it is a comfort to know that artificial ones cost only 15 to 18 cents each at the manufacturer's. One maker in New York sells 8,000,000 teeth every year. They are porcelain, composed chiefly of kaolin. The enamel is put on with metallic oxides, the process being so delicate that no two teeth are exactly alike in coloring. After being finished thousands of them are taken together and matched in shades. There are fifty different shades, corresponding to variations in the coloring of natural teeth. Defects are often made in false teeth so as to render them more deceptive to the eye. The best plates are of rubber. Celluloid is the prettiest material for the purpose, but it does not resist the acids of the mouth.—Providence Journal.

Snap Judgments.

An extremist is always a misfit.

Slyness is the only vice that does not write itself upon the face.

"A good shape is in the shears' mouth" and a good fit is all in the needle's eye.

If you wish to keep your friend you must laugh at his jokes, but you are not bound to hear his stories twice.

It is a mistake to endow a man with imaginary capabilities. He knows no more than is known by his works.

Make allowance for the follies of youth and hope for the best. The cat, the gravest of all animals, is the most frisky when young.—Judge.

To Perfume Money.

A "money disinfectant" is the latest invention meant to woo coins from feminine pocketbooks. It is a perfumed button with a sandalwood fragrance intended to place in the pockets of a purse to sweeten the rumpled, greasy bills which carry unpleasant suggestions of their previous abiding places.

WHO DR. McCORMICK IS.

Montreal has something to say respecting the well known Richmond Physician.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Richmond, Que., whose remarkable cure of Bright's Disease, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, has been set forth in his letter, recently published, is a graduate of McGill College, this city. He is well known, not only to the medical profession in Montreal, but throughout the entire province, as a careful and reputable physician, and his testimony to the worth of Dodd's Kidney Pills is accepted by physicians generally as a guarantee of the efficacy of the remedy. Such a communication, coming from so eminent a graduate of McGill, will have the effect of making Dodd's Kidney Pills universally popular in Quebec.

Early train your children in habits of industry, produce and economy, and you will contribute much to their success in after life.

The greatest flesh and blood maker in existence and a life-saver to consumptives is Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, "the kind that cures" bronchitis, coughs, colds and all lung troubles. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles, 50c. and $1.00, at druggists.

Defence of Bull-Fighting.

The terrible death of a promising young torero in the bull ring has once again attracted the attention of the English public to the Spanish national sport. One is accustomed to hear bull-fighting denounced as both cruel and cowardly—cruel because of the suffering it inflicts on animals, cowardly because the risk run by the bull fighter is infinitesimal. The first charge is absolutely true, so far, at least, as concerns the unfortunate horses. The second is equally false, as the tragic death of Espartero the other day should serve to teach the amateur critics who, for the most part, have never seen the spectacle they denounce in such unqualified terms.

If the Spaniards would only revive the original form of the sport they borrowed from the Moores—that is to say, the riding, not of wretched cab horses, only fit for the knacker, and mounted by professional picadores, but of valuable horses, with "owners up," who would, of course, exercise their skill in trying to save their mounts—there would be little to be said against bull fighting on the score of cruelty.—London Graphic.

Dogs and Insomnia.

On the occasion of a dog show in Paris a French statistician has published an estimate of the number of dogs at present to be found in that city. Evidently it is with no good feelings towards the poor animals, for after informing the world that there are no fewer than 80,000 of them in the French capital alone the calculator proceeds to speculate upon the number of persons who are kept awake by their barkings. On an average, he thinks, one dog in ten would be restless and inclined to bark during the night, and in each case the barking would cause at least one person to lose his night's rest. On this basis he arrives at the dreadful conclusion that there are in Paris at all times 8,000 person who cannot sleep from this cause alone. And yet, he complains, the barking of dogs is not even mentioned in medical works as one of the causes of insomnia.—London Daily News.

A Curious Custom.

A custom that has existed for several centuries is still maintained in some towns on the lower Rhine. On Easter Monday—auction day—the town crier or clerk calls all the young people together and to the highest bidder sells the privilege of dancing with the chosen girl, and her only, during the entire year. The fees flow into the public poor box.

Valuable Oil.

Cottonseed oil, now so important commercially, has been known to commerce for a long time. New Orleans once attempted to use it for street lighting. It was an old charge of abolition days that slaves were fed on cottonseed, a charge indignantly denied by the slaveholders, though cottonseed was then used as food by the peasants of southern Europe.

One of the Latest.

At a late meeting of the Royal Society of England an appliance called a thermogen was exhibited. It was a quilted cushion, with fine wires arranged inside by which it could be heated to any desired temperature by electricity. It seems to have been used with success in the hospitals, where it makes it possible to keep up the temperature of patients during prolonged operations with hemorrhage without such cumbersome appliances as blankets and vessels of hot water.

John B. Gough, says: "For sore throat, especially when tending to ulceration, I have found Pond's Extract very beneficial.

The Boston Transcript has a pleasant story to tell of James Anthony Froude. It seems that the historian was in Boston during the city's great fire in 1872, delivering a course of lectures in Tremont Temple. He had just finished his course the evening on which the fire broke out, and the manager of the course held in his hand a check for $1,000, the net proceeds of two or three of the lectures. He proffered the check to Mr. Froude but the warm-hearted Englishman immediately ordered it paid to the proper authority for the benefit of the sufferers by the fire.

All Hemorrhages, Female Complaints, &c., are quickly controlled by that household remedy, Pond's Extract.

He—I shall never marry until I meet a woman my direct opposite.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
