CONVENT DE NOTRE DAME.

A Grand Display of Art and Needlework by the Pupils.

A VISIT to the Convent de Notre Dame at the close of the scholastic year is a pleasure which all lovers of the beautiful in art should not miss. In the reception room, on exhibition are the paintings, crayon drawing and needlework of the pupils of this institution. One is struck, on examining the various pictures, with the wonderful artistic power of execution and conception displayed in the product of the young lady artists. On Saturday and Sunday the work of the ladies attracted large crowds of visitors to the Convent, and all were loud in their praises of the work on exhibition, and of the training afforded by the Sisters of the institution.

Following is a list of the principal paintings, drawings and needlework on exhibition, with the name of the artist:

Miss Angelina Doyle, paintings of the Madonna, the Girl at the Telephone, and Why Don't You Lean on Me? also a beautiful large screen for the bazaar in aid of the new cathedral.

Miss Martha Oliver, a fine drawing of a young girl, and a painting which shows much skill.

Miss M. McAulay, of St. Peter's Bay, a very nice crayon drawing of the church at that place, taken from a small photograph.

Miss Gailant, an oil painted fine screen, a painting on glass for the Cathedral Bazaar, and a very fine crayon drawing of a rustic chapel.

Miss Lucy Kelly, a crayon drawing of St. John the Evangelist, from a small photograph.

Miss M. McDonald, a first year drawing pupil, exhibited a study of pansies and a study of roses.

Miss M. L. DeLisle, of Quebec, a painting of Notre Dame Grounds, a small marine scene painted on the legs, which are made of small shovels.

Miss Eulalie Hogan, a superb crayon drawing of the Wounded Stag, very neat for so young a girl, and a study of flowers painted on ivory.

Miss Josie A. Ryan, of Attleboro, Mass., a very fine study of fruits, from nature.

Miss E. Sullivan, of St. Peter's Bay, the Passion Vine, painted on ivory, and a winter scene painted on mirror.

Miss Clara Hogan, a fine study of roses, and crayon drawings of Sunset on the Sound and the Three Friends.

Miss Ethel McDonald, a painting on satin and a crayon drawing, The Castle on the Rhine.

Miss Bessie Burke, paintings on satin and ivory.

Miss Maud Carter, a crayon drawing of a Schooner in a light breeze off Dover.

Miss Lizzie Halloran, a painting of a dog's head and a winter scene.

Miss Ella Carroll, of this city, exhibited a very pretty study of a landscape.

Several other pieces of the work shown by the young ladies will be presented to the Bazaar in aid of the new cathedral.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

ENGLISH ORPHANS—FIRST NOTICE.

SIR.—Will you kindly give notice that Mr. Middlemore will arrive from Halifax on Tuesday evening, June 19th, with about 30 orphans, and may be found at the Rankin House. Forty-nine persons applied for children, and as neither Mr. Brewer nor myself have been notified which applications have been filled, we are unable to assure anyone that the child he asked for will be brought.

JAMES STAPSON.

SIR.—Your report of the proceedings at the Court at Summerside are of general interest, and are particularly so to members of the legal profession. There is an expression in the report which I am sure is a mistake. It is when the Judge is said to have remarked that if there was a good contract between Reid and the Commissioner of the Rolls, even though no money was paid, "there was a conveyance in equity." I am sure that the learned Judge must have been incorrectly reported. I never heard of a "conveyance in equity." What the Master of the Rolls doubtless did say was "a conveyance in law." This is a well understood phrase expressing an abstract proposition in law. What reason there is more certain is that during his lectures to the students last winter he illustrated a "conveyance in equity" under much the same conditions as appear in your report. The argument of the case will, I am sure, be looked forward to with much interest; for it was pointed out to us that a case by Sir Thomas Plummer, Master of the Rolls in England, was not well decided, and we will have an opportunity of seeing the dissent of our Master of the Rolls from that decision placed on record. As to which will be the correct one, opinions may differ. But no one denies to Mr. Justice Hodgson the courage of his convictions, or supposes that there is any danger of the trumpet having an uncertain sound when the decision is announced.

A LAW STUDENT.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

SIR.—The Royal Gazette of the 9th inst. gives a list of Commissioners appointed by the Governor in Council to revise the Provincial Exhibition Prize List for the present year. The gentlemen appointed are practical farmers, well qualified for their work. They should, therefore, give their special attention to a revision of some sections in the horses and live stock classes, which in the past has been so generally found fault with by exhibitors in the classes referred to. Under the heading "Miscellaneous Manufacturers" there are a list of articles for which no prizes are awarded; the result has been that home-made manufactured articles such as carriages, single and double, covered and open, single and double sleighs, truck wagons, harnesses, &c., have not been placed on exhibition for the very good reason that no prizes were awarded for them. Had the main hall of the Exhibition building last fall been filled with industrial exhibits in the lines indicated, the managers would not be under the necessity of canvassing importers of goods from abroad to exhibit samples of their wares in order to save the disagreeable sight of unoccupied space. Trusting that the Government Commissioners will see that the interests of home producers will be more fully recognized in all the departments of the Exhibition, is the desire of an Exhibitor.

A WONDERFUL FEAT.

SIR.—The recent wheel race seems to have greatly excited the wheelmen in the city. I hear that a certain gentleman, who has recently upheld the power mug, has offered to go under water on his wheel from Charlottetown to Southport, starting from the Ferry Wharf, for the sum of $500. He suggests that a mile and a-half of rope be procured, one end of which is to be made fast to his body at the town side, the other end to be held by four stalwart men, to be used in dragging him in and resuscitating him should he not arrive on time. Three minutes is the time he thinks he can perform the feat in. Other wheelmen have signified their intention of trying the experiment should he succeed.

THE SHRINE OF LA BONNE STE. ANNE.

The Quebec Chronicle says: The total number of pilgrims at this shrine last year was 126,725, and most of them went there over the Q. M. & C. Railway. The number of pilgrims this year has so far reached over 5,000. On Sunday next His Grace Archbishop de Bonin will bless the Sancta Scala (Calvary) erected near the Basilica. Owing to the constantly increasing number of pilgrims, the residents of Ste. Anne can hardly find room for themselves in the Basilica of the Great Thaumaturge, and they intend to erect another church for the use of the parish.
