

Busy Time At Fertilizer Plant

Turning out bagged fertilizer by the tons each hour, the Island Fertilizer Plant situated on the Industrial Development site to the east of the City, is a beehive of activity these days when the period for using fertilizer is at its peak.

Although the rush is still on, the activity at the plant is only half that it was a week ago. At that time the plant was in operation for twenty hours a day with the men working on two ten hour shifts. The double shift lasted about a month.

Now on the normal run of nine hours a day the men are still turning out plenty of fertilizer. Automatic bagging and weighing machines were in operation yesterday afternoon and each of them was sending out 11 bags a minute amounting to 660 bags, or 33 tons, ready for loading in the hour.

Inside the huge structure, (about 500 feet long and 220 feet wide) one ton and tons of un-mixed materials heaped in piles of at least 15 feet high. Earlier in the season the building was nearly full of these materials, except for a pathway down the centre which enabled a tractor to operate.

The materials are taken to the mixer by tractor carriers. After being put through the mixer the mixed product is left in a pile until ten or twelve weeks to undergo a final chemical reaction. A year ago these operations were still a dream in the mind of the Company's president, Mr. Austin Seales. On June 17 the men began tearing down the hangars at the airport which were later transported to the site of the plant.

The year thousands of tons have left the plant by train and truck. A railway spur, running into the building provides a siding that will enable the simultaneous loading of nine cars indoors. The truck ramp provides for the loading of five trucks at once.

About 37 men are employed at the plant. This number was much higher when the double shift of the past month was in operation. During the night shift only one of the automatic bagging and weighing machines was in use. Plant manager is Mr. Louis Sandler. Mr. Paul Hansen is the plant foreman.

Further construction still remains to be done on this year the plant will be constructed either inside or outside the large structure and the west end has yet to be completed. The present busy period is expected to slacken in about two weeks. Fertilizer will then be turned out at a slower pace for the next two weeks after which the plant will begin repair work and start preparations for next year's operations.

Macdonnell, chairman of the University Board of Trustees. The announcement is a birthday gift for Dr. Mackintosh for he was 56 on May 21.

He succeeds Dr. R. C. Wallace, since 1936 Queen's distinguished principal and vice-chancellor, and senior university head in Canada, who reaches the retiring age of 70 years this summer.

In this nine-volume study, economists, historians, sociologists, geologists and geographers worked together under his guiding hand to produce a Canadian classic.

FONTAINE, COTTON SCORE IN "SEPTEMBER AFFAIR" A HAUNTING LOVE STORY

Paramount's Hal Wallis production, "September Affair," now showing at the Prince Edward Theatre, is a deeply moving recital of a strange and idyllic love. Starring Joan Fontaine, Joseph Cotten and Françoise Rosay, it tells the story of two Americans in Italy who are mistakenly reported dead, and make the most of the past to embark on a new life together.

Filed on location in Italy, "September Affair" is graced by some of the most beautiful natural settings ever to reach the screen, and the Italian countryside provides a most appropriate setting for a story which is as haunting as "September Song," the popular love ballad which serves as the picture's theme.

Joan Fontaine as an American pianist studying on the continent, meets Joseph Cotten on a New York-bound plane. Cotten is estranged from his wife, and when their airliner is forced down in Naples, the two go into town for a sight-seeing tour. The plane leaves without them, and when it crashes into the sea, they are listed among those lost. This affords them an opportunity to begin their life anew, and they remain together in Italy. But Cotten's family learns that he is still alive, and the pair return to America together to choose between their new love and their old lives.
