PERT AND PARTY PRETTY

All dressed up for a party, Debbie Tweel and Bruce Martin stroll down the ramp at the Parade of Spring Fashions at the Charlottetown Hotel.

Last chance for the fashion conscious to see the latest in spring apparel is the final show tonight of the P. E. I. Hospital Ladies Aid annual parade of spring fashions at the Charlottetown Hotel.

Silhouettes for spring, introducing the latest shapes in the fashion world begin the show. A pink suit with casual neckline and new Allice skirt, and a pitch brown silk dress with zebra stripes introducing the belted look are two examples of the new look in line and color. Another new shape is the shirt.

At the show coats are popular in beige, white, navy and brown and are often laminated. Patch pockets are popular, and both coats and suits display the colorless look and the new curved collar. Sleeves are in the new bracelet length and three-quarter type.

Sport clothes are seen in coordinating colors, with slacks in black, light blue or sporty pink stripes having matching tops in floral, check and geometric designs. A beige skirt is ideal for an afternoon at the golf club.

"Guaranteed to break hearts" is the trend and white striped dresses modelled with the teen in mind. Tiny tots are practically a d'pretty clothed in burnt orange laminated jacket and corduroy pants for the girl and brown corduroy jacket and pants worn for young men.

In addition to these duties, Mrs. Reynolds is also employed

MARY HAWORTH

Future Of Child Greatly Influenced By Mother

Dear Mary Haworth: When someone disobeys the law nowadays, there is always somebody around to explain that something in his or her childhood caused it. I think this theory is being over-emphasized.

We are all born with an inward bias towards sin. This is an inherent quality of the human species. And unless we are taken to church and Sunday school and taught right from wrong, consistently, at home, this innate bias towards wrongdoing is going to gain the ascendancy.

More and more people are turning their backs on this ancient truth, putting their faith in "humanism" as the basis of physical well-being in the present or of moral willfulness, consequently we are reaping mounting harvest of crime and delinquency in every economic bracket of society.

Too many parents are interested only in physical comfort, material possessions and social pleasures. In pursuit of these luxury goals, mothers will take salaries, leaving children to baby sitters, unnecessarily. The most priceless good in life is to be cared for, in childhood, by a loving, God-fearing

ELLEN'S DIARY

Earthy Condition Of Mud In The Spring Is Now Fixation

"Let no one say there is nothing nice about this time of year. One wrote us this today: '... A hand-farmhouse and mother she is, a busy woman indeed.'"

"As the snow lifts or dissolves and opinions vary as to the depth of frost (there is) we do get a longer or shorter period of mild. But nowadays don't seem to take long for the fields a n d o cards and ronds in firm up. So that we inclined to believe that the thought of the mud of spring has brought more or less of a smile with us. A misadventure in one of our springtime, so to speak! And besides, hasn't some one advised us to mangle through it an "Upward look" which has nothing to do with mangle, but is the privilege of I know nothing about the earthy conditions, with the children coughing in the house, and sweep and scrub and ... soild over. I, confess, until I remembered that it is not the privilege of every woman to have youngsters who can leave footprints in mud, and I have wondered why I shames me to think of my attitude. And realizing this I give thanks for my lot and over in my heart. And I count the blessings my "Upward look"

THE BREAD

"The bread was sliced thin and toasted on one side only until dry (not browned at all). The untoasted side was spread evenly and plentifully with butter (practically the only fat used generally in Iran), then topped smoothly with thin bits of chicken, sliced fresh orange and peachy quince. I discovered, is also often used). The two slices were pressed together, cut triangularly and decorated with bright red pitted cherries and fresh orange sections.

CHICKEN JUICE

It was delicious and refreshing with the chilled glowing ream of pomegranate juice that is surpassing in flavor.

I prophesy that when our own pomegranate crop becomes adequate, this purple-red, scintillating, countless loveliness of season, to enjoy.

And nice letters, and always interesting we receive-morning, in the old method down at lane's end.

Until tomorrow -- D i a r y You-Good night.
