Opened Debate On Address In Reply To Throne Speech

The debate on the draft Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was launched in the Legislature yesterday afternoon by Mr. Augustin Gallant (Third Prince), who in moving the address, dealt chiefly with educational problems. He was followed by Mr. George Kitson (Second Queens) who covered a number of the Government's accomplishments as mentioned in the Throne Speech.

"Education of our people is a duty we cannot shirk," said Mr. Gallant, who was making his maiden speech in the House. "Our young people look to us for guidance and it is our responsibility to give them leadership." He felt that centralization of school units, especially in the higher grades, was a good thing. "It makes for better organization," he said. The importance of well trained teachers with a thorough knowledge of their work and an ability to impart that knowledge was stressed by Mr. Gallant as an important factor in improving the standard of education in the Province.

Speaking on Adult Education, Mr. Gallant expressed the opinion that there should be some form of government assistance along this line. "The person who quits learning at the end of his school or university term has a limited knowledge and is only contributing to his own bewilderment," he said. "Many of the present day dis-

An unusually large number of parents attended the Home and School meeting at Rochford Square School last evening. The usual routine business was carried on. At the request of the City Teacher's Institute, Mrs. Joseph Callaghan, Mrs. William Dowling and Mrs. Richard Dowling were appointed to act on the entertainment committee during Education Week.

The president, Mr. St. John, urged all members to attend the educational meeting to be held in P. W. C. Hall on March 10 or 11. This meeting will be sponsored by the local teachers institutes. He also announced that Rochford Square School would be at home to the parents and others interested on Wednesday of Education Week.

A brief question box followed, after which an educational film was much enjoyed by the audience. "The Social Six And Noisy Nine" The guest speaker Dr. Brendon O'Grady, Professor of English at St. Dunstan's College was introduced by the president. The theme of Dr. O'Grady's fine address was "The Responsibility of the Home and of the School."

The purpose of all education, the speaker said, is to develop in the child wisdom and goodness, the aim of all human life. Dr. O'Grady showed how the example of parents and the atmosphere they create in the home can give the correct outlook to children, an outlook which will prepare them for their school life. The school is the auxiliary agency of the home and can build only on the moral and intellectual foundation provided by the home. The school, the speaker said, should teach the children responsibility — the responsibility to self, to the responsibility to society and to God.

At the close of the address the appreciation of the meeting was expressed by Mr. John Danton and Mrs. Ivan Berrigan. The meeting closed with "The Queen."

High Marks

Basil Phillips of Charlottetown now a student at Acadia College Wolfville, received one of the highest marks yet given in the instrumental classes at the Halifax Musical Festival this week when he received 89 points for his performance in the violin concert group, open class. He received 86 and 84 marks for his two other selections in this class.

In a later competition he won first place with 88 points in his rendition of "Handel Sonata". The final competition in which Mr. Phillips is scheduled to take part is "Quick Study", in which the performers are given the music in the morning and appear before the adjudicator in the afternoon.

Mr. Phillips has appeared in Provincial Musical Festival competition here on several occasions with marked success. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell H. Phillips of Charlottetown.

Duplessis Sees Solving Unemployment Difficult

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Wednesday his government has plans for a public works program to relieve unemployment in Quebec province but added that public works alone cannot meet the situation.

Mr. Duplessis made the statement in a delegation of the Quebec Federation of Labor (AFL-TLC) which presented a brief urging government action to ease the unemployment situation. The federation estimated there are 100,000 unemployed in the province.

The federation said first responsibility for relieving unemployment rests with the federal government but no other government should shy from its responsibility however "indirect" it might be.

Mr. Duplessis said the federal government accepted responsibility for unemployment problems when it established unemployment insurance.

But the Quebec government did not take this to mean that the province could wash its hands of the entire problem of unemployment.

MATTER "COMPLICATED" Mr. Duplessis said the reason why public works are not sufficient to meet the situation alone is that machinery and mechanical devices now are used in public works which reduce the number of men needed.

"There are some people who say we should do away with the machinery and get the work done by hand," he said. "On the other hand there are people who would make costs soar beyond all reasonable levels. It is a complicated matter."

In its brief, the federation suggested a federal-provincial conference be called to discuss a public works program to relieve unemployment.

Roger Provost, federation president, asked Mr. Duplessis if the government intends to amend the Labor Relations Act this year to increase the fine imposed on a delegation of the Quebec Federation of Labor (AFL-TLC) which presented a brief urging government action to ease the unemployment situation.

Mr. Duplessis said the government will consider the question of increasing employer responsibility in that respect but said he is personally against "forced marriages." It was difficult to force an employer to keep an employee he did not want.

Mr. Duplessis said no changes will be made to the act this year but that the opportunity may come up next year.

Mr. Duplessis praised the federation for not taking an active part in politics.

"The same cannot be said of other unions and they will suffer the consequences," he said. He did not name any other unions or amplify the statement.

The Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor and the Quebec Province Federation of Industrial Union (CCL) have political action organizations.

Paratrooper Injured in Winter Training

ST. LAMBERT DE LEVIS, Que. (CP)—One paratrooper was severely injured Wednesday during the first phase of the Royal 22nd Regiment's winter training operation "Exercise Breaker" when his parachute opened only partially.

Lance-Corporal Gerard Gagnon, 23, of Chicoutimi, Que., plunged 1,000 feet into four feet of snow with a "streamer" chute and suffered possible fractures of both legs and other undetermined injuries, a army authorities said.

He did not lose consciousness and was in "good spirits" when flown to Quebec military hospital.

Gagnon told buddies his main parachute didn't open properly and he didn't have time to get his reserve parachute open.

He dropped with the last flight of some 300 soldiers of Van Doos 1st Battalion who jumped into snow-covered fields near St.

Elderly Wife of Millionaire Slain

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The elderly wife of a millionaire financier was slain by an axe-wielding assailant Wednesday in her $200,000 mansion.

Mrs. Katie Hayden, 71, died soon after she was found on the floor of the kitchen, bleeding from four head wounds.

The Hayden home is across the street from the former home of Virginia Hill, where gambler Benjamin (Bugsie) Siegel was slain June 30, 1947.

Mrs. Hayden's husband, Samuel, president of investment and developing companies bearing his name, was at work when the slaying took place.

Detectives said they were seeking a former man servant. The hand axe which apparently inflicted the wounds was found in the kitchen.
