"FOLLOW ME 'OME."

There was no one like 'im, 'Orse or Foot,
Nor any of the Guns I knew;
An' because it was so, why, o' course 'e went an' died,
Which is just what the best men do.

So it's knock out your pipes an' follow me!
An' it's finish up your swipes an' follow me!
Oh, 'ark to the big drum callin,—
Follow me—follow me 'ome!

'Is mare she neighs the 'ole day long—
She paws the 'ole night through,
An' she won't take 'er feed 'cause o' waitin' for 'is step,
Which is just what a beast would do.

'Is girl she goes with a bombardier
Before 'er month is through;
An' the banns are up in church, for she's got th beggar hooked,
Which is just what a girl would do.

We fought 'bout a dog—last week it were—
No more than a round or two;
But I struck 'im cruel 'hard, an' I wish I 'adn't now,
Which is just what a man can't do.

'E was all that I 'ad in the way of a friend,
An' I've 'ad to find one new;
But I'd give my pay an' stripe for to get the beggar back,
Which it's just too late to do.

So it's knock out your pipes an' follow me,
An' it's finish off your swipes an' follow me—
Oh, 'ark to the fifes a crawlin'!
Follow me—follow me 'ome!

Take 'im away! 'E's gone where the best men go.
Take 'im away. An' the gun-wheels turnin' slow.
Take 'im away! There's more from the place 'e come.
Take 'im away, with the limber an' the drum.

For it's "Three rounds blank" an' follow me;
An' it's "Thirteen rank" an' follow me;
Oh, passin' the love o' women,
Follow me—follow we 'ome!

—Rudyard Kipling, in the Pall Mall Magazine.

THE OLD BEAU'S STORY.

I have hinted to you that I believed if ever the Old Beau told me his own story it would be the story of stories. There was something about the man, through all my acquaintance with him, which had impressed me with the feeling that his whole life had been one long tragedy. Yet, there was no more genial, companionable man in all the club. He was replete with anecdote, with gentle humor, with the quality that is known as "the milk of human kindness," as you may have gathered from some of these tales that I have told you. Yet, there was a certain grave under-current in the man that had often caused me to wonder at its reason. While I desired his story, with all the keen avidity that a newspaper man is capable of, I had firmly made up my mind that I would never suggest this desire to him—for I was confident the tale would come of his own accord some day. And it did.

In the lighted street in front of the club, I was approached one night by a miserable vagrant who asked me for alms. Not from charity, but because it was the easiest way, I put my hand in my pocket and gave him a coin. As I handed it to him, the Old Beau came down the steps. He paused as though turned to stone when he saw the beggar, and grew all white, like one who is suddenly struck with death. And the beggar, seeing him, stayed the hand that had been stretched forth for the coin, and leered at him and called him jeeringly by name. I stood looking from one to the other, knowing that I was witnessing the culminating scene of a great drama, yet powerless to comprehend its meaning. After a pause that was, doubtless not more than a moment, but that had spun out infinitely in my imagination, my friend came down the steps slowly, and placed his hand on my shoulder. His voice was quiet, but vibrated with a strange, deep tremor as he spoke to me.

"Do me this favor," he said; "go with this man; find him shelter and food, and whatever else he may need. Do for him all that he asks, for I owe him a great debt. I will wait for you here."

He turned, and went slowly up the steps again, while I gave my attention to the fellow before me. I do not need to tell you much of him. He seemed the worst of his class. Dressed in rags, filthy and palsied with drink, he was loathsome in the extreme. He mumbled now in a maudlin way, and staggered from sheer weakness. I soon saw that his mind was half gone, and that he was ill and miserable. Want had done almost its worst upon him. He easily submitted to being led, and I took him, first, to a placed where he was bathed, and cleanly dressed, and fed. Then, I saw more clearly how little strength was in him, and so we went forthwith to a hospital, and I procured a bed for him there. After the physician had examined him, he told me that the spark of life hung only by a thread. It might be a matter of a few hours; at the most, but a few days, before the end would come. It was far past midnight when I left him, and returned to the club.

The Old Beau was alone in an upper room. A dim light burned on the table, a low fire in the grate. The usual accessories, tobacco and liquors, were notable for their absence.

He looked up when I entered, and I saw that he was still very white. I thought I could detect the signs of a severe mental struggle—a struggle for self control. A sad smile flitted about his gentle mouth—a sad smile, yet one that was not utterly without joy.

He motioned me to a chair near the grate, and I sat down and waited for him to speak. This he did after a time, looking dreamily into the fire the while.

"It is a memory from the past," he said; "more—a ghost from the grave. That man—that poor wreck and effigy of a man—was the friend of my early days. We loved the same woman, quarreled for her, and fought. It was in the south and in the time when hot blood carried men to the duelling ground. We fought beneath the arched live-oaks in the Old Parish road below the city where so many of the foolish youths of New Orleans have met. I ran him through with my sword, and left him for dead upon the field. I was forced to fly, with my seconds. The physician was a stranger to me, a friend of his. He sent me a paper later, marked with an account of the duel, and the death of my opponent. I went abroad. Before leaving I tried to see her—the woman we had fought for. I knew that she loved me, and not him."

He paused—and was silent so long that I thought he had forgotten me. I made a little movement to attract his attention. He looked up at me and smiled again.

"I have been back in the long ago," he said. "There are pleasant memories there, as well as sad ones. It is much to know that you were once loved by a pure woman. I knew that, for she told me so in a little note that I have always kept. Nothing can take that knowledge from me. But she said that she could never marry a man who had the blood of another on his hands and on his soul."

Again he paused and seemed to dream, and I respected and did not break the silence.

"I have seen her many times since," he began again, presently, "as one sees the stars away off in the unreachable heavens. But never to touch her hand—her garments, even; not even to speak with her, except as we have met and passed in the street. She has never married, and I know that she has grown old, still loving me, as I have grown old, loving her."

After this he asked me to tell him what I had done, and I did this as briefly as I could.

"You say he has not long to live? Will you come with me?"

He started up eagerly, drawing on his coat. We went out together and I led the way to the hospital, where I had left the other.

The touch of human sympathy that we had given him had mellowed the poor outcast, and silenced his jeers. The meeting between the two men was affecting. The long years seemed blotted out, and their hands clasped, as they had done in their youth. The stranger had grown weaker since I left him.

"I am dying, Willis," he said brokenly; "it may be but a matter of a few hours. I have wronged you, and I want your forgiveness. I know what I have made your life. I have been wretched, and weak, and miserable as any dog that walks the earth. But I accept it all as the just reward for what I did. I provoked you beyond human endurance, compelled you to fight, because I hoped to kill you. When I fell, it would have been only right if I had died. But I lived, saved through the exertions of my physician, and then together we made up that lie, and sent it to you. I knew what that would do. Then, when I was well again, I drank and gambled until poverty and the devil claimed me, wholly; until I became the ruin you now see. I did not think ever to cross your path again, but I am glad that it has happened so. I can die easier for having said this."

The Old Beau put his arms about the dying man, and his face down close beside him, and I heard him whisper:

"My dear Edgar, let the dead past bury its dead."

We remained with him through the rest of that night, and through the following day, and through the next night. He grew gradually weaker, and his life went out just as the sun of a new day had risen. When it was all over, we went back to the club and there my friend wrote a brief note.

"Will you take it to this address," he asked me; "but wait," he added; "you should have the right to read this."

He unfolded the paper and laid it before me, and I looked and saw these words:

"The hand of God has turned back the leaves of the book of the past. I have just come from the deathbed of Edgar Freeman. We were friends again, at the last; and my hands and my soul are free from his blood. May I come to you?"

When I had read this I saw already the dawning of a new and glorious day for the Old Beau, and I trust one had already dawned for the poor outcast. I went with a light heart, with speeding feet.

I had thought to find an old woman—a woman grown old before her time. But I found her in the sweet and full maturity of womanhood. I will not try and tell you of her. She was worthy to have been served for seven times the seven years that Jacob served for Rachael.

I was her slave from the moment I saw her. I could have fallen down at her feet and worshipped her when she said to me:

"He must love you, or he would not have trusted you with this message. Tell him that I wait for his coming."

Shall I tell you the rest? No, I think I will not. But I may say to you that I think my friend has found the Fountain of Youth: for his step is lighter, his eye brighter, his smile more joyful, his voice merrier and his heart more full of the milk of human kindness even than it was before. Yet his gain is my loss, for there are no more cozy hours in the club alcove, and no more stories of the Old Beau.

A CLERGYMAN'S LETTER.

Magnificent Work Accomplished in St. Anne's Parish.

The Sick and Diseased Made Well by Paine's Celery Compound.

Thousands in the Commercial Metropolis Know What the Great Spring Medicine Has Done.

In the great archdiocese of Montreal, the parish of St. Anne's is one of the largest and most important. The parish is a populous one, and the work of the dozen or more clergymen who devote their time and talents to the spiritual and charitable interests of the people is heavy and never-ending.

In this thickly settled and congested parish the sick and suffering are numerous, but christian help and consolation is ever near in the hour of danger. In scenes of sickness and disease this great parish has been blessed by an agency that has saved thousands of lives in other parts of our Dominion. We now refer to that marvellous medicine, Paine's Celery Compound, so well and favorably known in every Canadian home.

The popular clergymen of St. Anne's have, from time to time, heard wonderful reports from their parishioners of the magnificent work accomplished by Paine's Celery Compond. Fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters have been raised to health and strength. Those pronounced incurable by physicians have been snatched from the jaws of death.

The Rev. P. Rioux, one of St. Anne's most popular clergymen, knowing about the good work done by Paine's Celery Compound, and having experienced most satisfactory results from its use in his own case, writes as follows:—

"I am fully convinced, both by personal experience and by the statements of many parishioners entrusted to my care, that the celebrated medicine, Paine's Celery Compound, deserves a high recommendation. I, therefore, willingly endorse the testimonials already given in its behalf."

EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST—SUPPER.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Tolstoi's Temperance Opera.

The news that Count Tolstoi has just written a popular opera is, at a first thought, somewhat startling. One is speedily reassured, however, on learning that the work is significantly entitled "The Distiller." Such an appellation rudely dispels the idea that the great Russian may at length have strayed from those didactive paths which he has followed so incessantly of late years. Tolstoi, besides being a vegetarian, is a rigid teetotaler, and has frequently inveighed against the drinking habits of his countrymen.

To Boil Macaroni.

In boiling macaroni it is a mistake to permit it to stop boiling for a moment until done. Have plenty of salted water in the saucepan at the boiling point when the sticks are added, and when they are tender throw in a glass of cold water to stop the cooking suddenly, and drain at once. After that it may be served in various ways.

What is
CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

HEART DISEASE.

A Toronto Physician says it Never Exists Without the Presence of some Kidney Disease.

TORONTO, March 4.—The number of sudden deaths due to heart disease is appaling. The medical profession is devoting more attention to the heart and its ailments at the present time than ever before, and many physicians are making a specialty of diseases of this organ. A Toronto doctor, who devotes much attention to this branch of his practice said to your reporter to-day," I have yet to learn of a single case where heart disease caused death, in which a post mortem examination did not show the existence of Bright's disease, diabetes, or some other kidney disease." Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure all disease of the kidney's and thus ward off the danger of heart disease.

Preparations have been made for taking the census of the whole of Russia on a single day next autumn. The last census was taken in 1886.

ASTHMA AND BRONCHITIS CURED.

HALIFAX, N. S.

G. E. PUTTNER, Esq , Ph. M.:

SIR,—I consider it my duty, not only to yourself, but to my fellow creatures who are suffering from Asthma and Bronchitis, as I had for some time previous to using your "Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites," to give my testimony to the most wonderful good effect it had. Having suffered for some time with Asthma and Bronchitis, accompanied with great nervous exhaustion, and having carefully read your Essay on the combination and uses of your Emulsion, I was persuaded to give it a trial, and on using two bottles I began to receive great benefit and relief, and after using three bottles I was completely revived and am to-day perfectly free from either Asthma or Bronchitis, and my nervous system much invigorated and built up. I have found it very pleasant and palatable, and with no taste of oil whatever, and can with great confidence recommend it to those suffering as I did previous to taking your compound. I am, yours, &c., ALEX STEPHEN, SR., Merchant.

While the exportation of German and Austrian beer is increasing, that of English ale and stout is decreasing steadily. Five years ago English brewers exported 599,000 barrels and last year only 414,261 barrels, or about 15,000,000 gallons. The German exportation was 66,000,000 gallons.

Dairymen, Attention!

Of the Cheese and Butter Factories in operation in 1894, we furnished, to the satisfaction of all concerned, the necessary apparatus for the following:—Winsloe, Hampton, Tryon, Crapaud, Grand River, Dunk River, Mount Stewart, and Vernon River Bridge.

In the summer of 1894 we made nine Cheese Vats (each holding from 650 to 700 gallons of milk), and two Butter Vats (each averaging 400 gallons of milk); no complaints were made—satisfaction given.

From our large experience in the past we are now better than ever prepared to meet the wants of Dairymen. We guarantee satisfaction, and respectfully solicit the patronage of those who are contemplating the erection of Cheese or Butter Factories.

Our make of Vats is superior to all others, and our fifteen and twenty gallon Cans are the best and cheapest in the province.

Terms to suit puchasers.
