Reading Association Receives Its Charter

The P.E.I. Council of the International Reading Association received its charter of organization last evening at a meeting in Montgomery Hall.

Dr. Harold Nason, director of elementary and secondary education, department of education in Nova Scotia, who was guest speaker at the meeting, presented the charter to Helen Yeo, president of the P.E.I. Council.

Mr. Nason said the greatest challenge in education was the re-education of young people dropping out of jobs, and teaching them to re-educate themselves.

He emphasized reading as an important factor in the process of self-education.

"Vocational competence today will be incompetence tomorrow," he said, adding that science and mathematics textbooks were out of date before they were off the presses.

The chief stumbling block to school dropouts, he stated, was the lack of ability to read.

PORTABLE CLINIC

The speaker said the department of education in Nova Scotia was budgeting $12,000 to $15,000 to begin a portable reading clinic through the reading council.

The clinic will travel to outlying districts in the province and will employ skilled technicians to train teachers to analyse reading defects and suggest remedies for them.

Dr. Nason's address outlined what he considered the school's three main purposes: examination of students' interests and abilities; meeting of vocational and technical needs of the community; and preparing a morally responsible type of person with a set of values enabling him to analyse weaknesses in society and with the character to try to remedy them.

He said people could be made morally responsible by giving them all the facts, and this would be accomplished by teaching them to read.

The guest speaker, introduced by Miss Yeo, was thanked by Winston Currie of Summerside.

2 Men Charged In Beating Case

Two persons appeared in Queen's Magistrate's Court yesterday on charges of robbery with violence in connection with the beating and robbery Friday of Mrs. John Spencer of West Royalty.

Appearing before Magistrate James B. Johnston, QC, were Lorne Vessey, 31 Weymouth Street, and Laurie William MacDonald, no fixed address.

Before the information on the charge against Vessey was read, Crown Prosecutor Alan Scales made application to amend it.

The application was granted, and Mr. Scales made two changes: deleting the abbreviation sr., following the word John and reinserting it following the word Spencer; and striking out reference to Criminal Code Article 288b to insert 289.

The information stated Vessey did unlawfully and by violence steal the sum of $76 from Mrs. John Spencer. The charge was thus laid under section 289 of the Criminal Code of Canada.

Lester O'Donnell, counsel for the accused, objected, stating that section 289 was a penalty section. Magistrate Johnson didn't agree, and the matter was passed over with little more discussion.

Mr. O'Donnell asked for an adjournment before the accused elected what form of trial he wished. The case was adjourned till Nov. 25, and the accused was remanded without bail.

Laurie William MacDonald was also remanded without bail till Nov 25 on a similar charge. The accused was also represented by Mr. O'Donnell.

Merlin James McQuaid, Pleasant Grove, charged with illegal possession of liquor, had his case set down for trial on Dec. 11.

David Andrew Miller, 242½ Kent Street, pleaded guilty to driving without due care and attention and also to illegal possession of liquor. He was fined $15 and costs on the first charge and $20 and costs on the second.

Stress Response Seen Cause Of Accidents

"Stress response" of the individual and an inadequate sense of responsibility" were blamed as major factors in industrial accidents yesterday at the annual Industrial Safety Conference.

Professor Roy Brookband, Institute of Public Affairs, Dalhousie University, told some 80 industry representatives at the opening business session of the conference at the Charlottetown Hotel that items including lack of sleep, intoxication, home problems and job worries came under the stress response category.

He also stressed the importance of management backing for safety programs.

The speaker suggested six factors necessary to make a safety program work: a clearly defined declaration of policy by top management; a clear assignment of responsibility in job directions; an accident record system; safety training; maintenance of safe working conditions, and a first aid system.

FIRST AID SESSION

Following a showing of safety films there was an industrial first aid session conducted by St. John Ambulance and Red Cross personnel. Taking part were Sinclair Cutcliffe, Norman MacLeod, Bruce MacLaren and Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore with Ed Chinnery as moderator.

Also on the agenda were an electrical hazards demonstration on the use of fire extinguishers by the Charlottetown Volunteer Fire Department; a safety film and talk by the traffic division of the RCMP, and a hard hat demonstration.

Rev. Dr. Francis Bolger, St. Dunstan's University, was guest speaker at a dinner in the evening.

Crown Completes Case Against C. Traverse Man

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

Thirteen crown witnesses were heard yesterday in the Supreme Court case of the Queen vs. Derwin Bell Huestis of Cape Traverse, charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident on the night of July 14 at Carleton Siding which resulted in John Archibald MacKenzie, Carleton Siding, being fatally injured.

Also heard was the written statement of Dr. Roy Grant, who at the moment is recovering from sickness.

Presiding on the case is Mr. Justice Mark R. McGuigan of Charlottetown. Crown Prosecutor is George R. McMahon and counsel for the defence is Alex Campbell.

The Huestis case opened at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and the crown completed its case at approximately 5 p.m.

Counsel for the defence informed the court at that time he would call no witnesses. With this the court was recessed until 10.30 this morning when both counsels will present their summations and Judge McGuigan will address the petit jury.

CROWN WITNESSES

Testifying for the crown were: - Thelma Cairns, Carleton Siding; Reginald Noon, Carleton Siding; Arthur Sherren, Borden; Wallace Muttart, Cape Traverse; Dr. David Stewart, Crapaud; RCMP Cpl. Roderick MacKenzie, Charlottetown; Cnst. Bartlett, RCMP Summerside; Cnst. Alan Burchill, RCMP Borden; Ivan Newrick, Borden; RCMP Sgt. Peter Gazey, Sackville, N.B.; RCMP Sgt. Bill Robertson, Ottawa; RCMP Constables Don Shears, Souris, and W. E. Whelan, Borden.

Cst. Burchill related his investigation up to and following the arrest of the accused after receiving a phone call from Reginald Noonan who found the deceased in the ditch in front of his home after he had been struck.

Cst. Burchill also presented numerous exhibits, mostly pertaining to the car which included a crumpled fender; headlight, pieces of glass from a broken headlight; a broken aerial, paint scrapings, etc.

All of these exhibits had been sent to the RCMP detection laboratory in Sackville, N.B. and a pair of pants belonging to the deceased along with pieces of cloth found in the headlight of the accused's car were forwarded to the RCMP crime laboratory in Ottawa.

Presenting further testimony on these exhibits were RCMP Sgts. Gazey and Robertson, both university graduates and holders of bachelor of science degrees.

DEAD ON ARRIVAL

Upon arriving at the scene Cst. Burchill said he had called Dr. David Stewart of Crapaud who had attended the deceased before transferring him to Prince County Hospital MacKenzie had been declared dead on arrival at the hospital by Dr. Roy Grant.

The RCMP officer told of locating a car in Borden less than ¼ of a mile from the Borden Legion on what is known as Main Street.

He found by the registration, that the car belonged to the accused and he stated that it had a damaged front fender, smashed headlight, a broken aerial and had a flat tire in the rear.

The vehicle had later been towed to the RCMP garage in Borden where further investigation had disclosed pieces of cloth in the headlamp.

Another RCMP officer had been stationed at the scene until daylight, Cst. Burchill said, and added that he had returned to the scene later in the night where he had remained until the break of day.

After determining the owner of the car the RCMP officer said he had gone to Cape Traverse at approximately 12.30 a.m. where the accused resided at the home of Wallace Muttart. He said he had taken the accused into Borden for questioning and when asked if he knew that the fender on his car was crumpled, if the headlight was smashed and the aerial broken, he had answered no to all questions. Cst. Burchill said he had then placed Huestis under arrest.

PASSED TESTS

He said he could smell alcohol on the accused's breath out that he had passed sobriety tests at the barracks, although his legs were shaking noticeably.

At daylight the officer said a search of the scene had disclosed a piece of metal which RCMP lab officers had later proved to belong to the Huestis vehicle.

Also he said, one of the deceased's shoes had been found 64 feet from where he had been found in the ditch while the other had been located on the highway.

Upon cross-examination by Mr. Campbell, Cst. Burchill said the highway was newly paved at the time of the incident. He added that signs were up along the highway but that no lines had been painted at that time.

Sgt. Peter Gazey of the crime detection lab said that paint scrapings found at the scene of the accident physically matched the paint on the fender of the accused's car and glass also found at the scene matched glass which remained in the broken light.

He stated he had been unable to match sections of an aerial which had been found.

Sgt. Robertson of Ottawa stated that pieces of cloth found in the headlight of the vehicle and the pants of the deceased had shown under microscopic examination to be of a cotton print and matched in pattern and were of the same structural quality.

FOUND INJURED MAN

In his testimony Reginald Noonan of Carleton Siding told the court that on the night of the incident his wife had called him at 10.35 when she heard something outside. Upon getting dressed, he said, he had gone out and found the deceased in the ditch moaning but that he had not been conscious. He added that he didn't recognize the man at the time.

He added that he had gone to get his next door neighbor and then had notified the RCMP in Borden. He added that he had found a gin bottle approximately five feet from the deceased, less than 2-3 full.

Dr. David Stewart said that when he examined the deceased in the ditch he was in a coma and couldn't be aroused. He also said the man was suffering from internal injuries and a fractured leg.

Mrs. Thelma Cairns told the court of the deceased coming into her canteen at Carleton Siding on the night of his death and she had looked at the clock when the deceased was in the canteen and it was 10.35.

RECOGNIZED ORNAMENT

Arthur Sherren told of seeing the accused's car go by the Borden Inn which he operates before 11 p.m. and said he recognized it by the color, the make of the car and the ornament on the engine bonnet — a horse and sulky. He said the color of the vehicle was light green.

Mr. Campbell then questioned him as to why he had stated the color was light green when in the preliminary hearing he had said the color was yellow. He was asked why he had used the word "lights" rather than just one light and he answered that all he had seen was lights but he couldn't say how many.

Wallace Muttart testified that he had met the accused in the Borden Legion somewhere around 11 p.m. and that Huestis had asked him for a drive home because his car had a flat tire.

He said they had left the Legion shortly after and stated that before turning off the Trans-Canada to go to Cape Traverse he had seen the police car's red flasher at the scene of the accident.

Others who gave testimony were Cpl. Roderick MacKenzie of the RCMP identification section in Charlottetown who produced photographs which he had taken at the scene and of the vehicle.

COULD START WITHOUT KEY

Ivan Newrick, a mechanic from Borden, stated he had examined the accused's vehicle and found it to be in good condition for the year. He stated that as far as he could see the ignition wires had not been tampered with.

He admitted upon cross-examination that a wire jumper could be used to start the car without a key and that there would be no evidence showing. He said that Ford model cars were easy to start this way and added that the accused's car, a Monarch, would not be difficult to start in this manner.

Members of the jury are: Roy H. Johnston, Summerside, foreman; Victor Inman, St. Eleanors; Clayton Travers, Summerside; Ernest T. Myers, Elmsdale; Vernal Webster, North Carleton; Garfield Gorrill, O'Leary; Erwin Dennis, Ellerslie; Lawrence Yeo, Central Lot 16; Harold A.
