The Hotel Matter.

The present chance of obtaining a first-class hotel in this city ought not to be thrown away. There seems to be no good reason why our men of business should not invest in the enterprise. They will lose an incalculable amount of profitable trade if they don't.

Mr. Hall offers to "lease the hotel, when completed, at an annual rental of 8 per cent of its cost, for five years, with the privilege of renewing the lease at the end of that time at an increased rental of 10 per cent of its cost; to furnish the hotel himself, if the company prefer, at an expenditure of probably $15,000; and, besides all this, to guarantee the rent payable half yearly in advance, and to place $1500 on deposit in the hands of a third party, as a forfeit to the company if he fail to perform his part of the contract."

The Globe and the C. P. R.

MANY of our readers will recall Mr. Wiman's poetical quotation, "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," when they read in the Toronto Globe, which came to hand this morning, that—

"As a commercial enterprise, there are few Canadians but feel a glow of pride in the bold plans and purposes of the chiefs of the Canadian Pacific Road."

"It has to be confessed that its chiefs have shown signal enterprise, that they have built up a magnificent property, that the C. P. R. system has become a part of the national life, and that, in contrast with too many corporations, they have performed with admirable thoroughness the vital parts of their contract with the people of Canada."

This splendid commendation comes from the Globe, notwithstanding the fact that the road is "under the displeasure of the great mass of the Liberals!" When the Hon. Edward Blake entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the victory for the Company was rightly regarded as a great one. But what will the people say now that the Company have captured the Globe?

The organ of the Liberal party now declares that "an offer of the C. P. R. to give a fast Atlantic service for the subsidy offered by Parliament, and upon proper conditions," ought to be accepted; "and that the interests of the country would be served by putting the Intercolonial under business management on such terms as shall ensure fair rates and facilities for the use of the line by both the great railway corporations of Canada."

The Globe says that "the enterprise of the C. P. R. has energized the whole country" and contends that "it is now the duty of the Canadian people, irrespective of party divisions, to encourage its management in any step which makes for national progress and development." It has, evidently, lost all fear of the "giant monopoly."

That there is a great deal in the Globe's contention, no one will deny. The proposition which has been made or is about to be made to the Government by the C. P. R., is well worthy of careful consideration. Government management of railways has proved to be here and everywhere, and under both parties, unsuccessful. As the Globe truly remarks, "it seems to be settled that we cannot get business results out of political management."

A fast Atlantic service is required in view of the enormous development of the interests of Canada which has resulted from the railway and fiscal policy of the Government, and a fast Atlantic service is practicable, unless the C. P. R.,—which as the Globe remarks, "make few mistakes"—are mistaken.

It is more than probable, too, that the C. P. R. would, if they obtained control of the I. C. R., "energize" traffic and business in these Maritime Provinces as they have energized them in the West. They would, without doubt, advertise this part of the country and promote immigration and travel into these Maritime Provinces.

The questions are would their tariff of rates and freight be unduly high, and would a sufficient train service be afforded? We should require guarantees upon these points.

Exports and Imports. The exports of Canada during the three months ending 30th September amounted to $39,794,075, against $34,017,012 in the same months of last year—increase, $5,777,063.

The imports of Canada during the same three months were $32,281,896 in 1892, and $32,281,896 in 1891—increase, $2,742,868.

The increase in the exports for the quarter included a gain of $3,164,603 in forest products, $1,371,355 in animals and their produce, $2,568,782 in agricultural produce, and $800,700 in manufactures.

Evidently, Canada can live without Unrestricted Reciprocity and in spite of the McKinley tariff!

The 125th anniversary of the old John street church, New York, the cradle of American Methodism, was celebrated on Sunday last.

The Fall Trade.

There is no change to note in the prices of our staple exports. Our harbors are full of schooners to load potatoes. But the weather has not been favorable for shipping.

Notes at Souris.

It is pleasing to note that the Railway Wharf and breakwater at Souris have been somewhat repaired. We hope that the repairs will be carried to completion. The breakwater is essential to Souris, and must be well maintained.

Souris is the commercial centre of a large and important part of the Province. The beauty of its situation is recognized by every stranger. If some of the householders would pay a little more attention to the outward and visible things about their dwellings, such as plants and flowers and lawns and yards, and would display a little more good taste, it would soon be a very pretty and very attractive town, the resort of summer tourists, and a splendid site for a first-class summer hotel to be run in conjunction with a first-class hotel in Charlottetown.

There are at present in Souris two excellent hotels, the Bay View and Binger's. The former is the resort of all the commercial and professional men who appear at "Dan's" unrivalled catering and his wife's good housekeeping. Bit a fine summer hotel, drawing tourists from abroad, would be a capital thing for Souris as well as for travelers in search of beautiful scenery, bathing, gunning, fishing, and exhilarating air.

Among the improvements in Souris is Mr. Sterns' splendid store on Main Street—now approaching completion.

The Messrs. Hooper supply drugs, practice dentistry, and sell THE EXAMINER all for the health and comfort of the community. THE EXAMINER it is needless to say, is in Souris, as everywhere, the popular paper.

An Extraordinary Case.

LAST evening, while Messrs. A. C. Shaw, of West River, and John Darroch, of the same place, were on their way home from the city, they overtook a woman named Palmer, who was carrying a child in her arms. They gallantly offered her a seat in the wagon, which she accepted. On their arrival at William Douse's, on the Lower Mainque Road, Mrs. Palmer alighted, and after opening the door deposited the child inside and resumed her place in the carriage. Mr. Shaw, who is a J. P., did not like this proceeding on the part of the woman, and by virtue of his office commanded Mr. Darroch, who is a constable, to arrest the woman and lodge her in prison. The next morning the child was kept by a Frenchman at the Queen's Arms, where a dance was in progress. The constable and the woman alighted and went into the dance-house. They did not remain there very long, and when they came out a crowd followed them. Mr. Shaw warned the constable to be very careful of his prisoner and not allow her to get away. The people from the dance-house then crowded about Mr. Shaw and one of them struck him a blow on the head with a stick, cutting him badly and causing the blood to flow freely. As soon as they could get away from the crowd, Mr. Shaw and the constable returned to the city after law and medical attendance. They arrived about midnight, and put up at Mr. Darroch's on Richmond Street, where Dr. S. R. Jenkins was called in and dressed the wound. At an early hour this morning Messrs. Darroch and Shaw called at the Police Station and reported the facts of the case to Marshal Cameron, who advised them to call upon the Attorney-General and take their instructions from him, as the assault had been committed outside the city limits.

The Evictions in Ireland.

WHOLE FAMILIES LEFT BY THE ROADSIDE. The scheme of wholesale evictions in Ireland is being carried out. Although Chief Secretary Morley has given orders reviving and enforcing the old rule that the police shall not give aid in evictions between sunset and sunrise, yet the landlords find the hours of daylight quite sufficient for their work. Scores of the aged and decrepit, as well as of the young and otherwise helpless, may be seen camping on the roads on the southwest part of Ireland with nothing but a blanket and a better than rags to shelter them from the bleak storms of October. At Bantry a few days ago a whole family were found in the midst of a fierce rain and wind storm crouching in a grove of trees and wet to the skin. They had been evicted last Saturday, when the husband was hardly able to hobble out of his wretched cabin, and the wife and mother about to give birth to another child. The little one was born without medical assistance on the following day, with the rain pouring down through the branches of the trees, now almost denuded of leaves, and the wind blowing a hurricane.

Kind neighbors learned of the wretched plight of the unfortunates and gave them a temporary home. There are three young children besides the baby, which, it is said, is barely able to crawl and to expose. Chief Secretary Morley is practically helpless to prevent these evictions so long as the landlords can find bailiffs, had enough to perform their cruel work.

SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.

GRAVEYARD INSURANCE

Important Evidence.

The Widow Denies Connection with the Plot.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 3.

The graveyard insurance case is attracting much attention. The evidence given yesterday connects Rev. Sydney Welton much more closely with the matter than it does his brother, the present insurance agent. Bonnell, the secretary of the Total Abstinence Insurance Association, is the principal witness examined so far. He testified to the receipt of the application from Rev. Sydney Welton for $3,000 insurance on the life of W. H. Reid, and produced correspondence concerning the policy up to the time of its payment by cheque, all correspondence being conducted by Sydney Welton on the New Brunswick side. He also produced a medical certificate signed by another defendant, Dr. R. Randall, representing Reid to be in good health. At that date Reid was confined to his bed in his last illness, and he died the day after the policy was made out. Sydney Welton wrote to the insurance company stating that Reid had died suddenly of grippe and asking that a receipt be signed by the beneficiary be sent to him. There was a request for further explanations, and Sydney Welton sent a statement of the circumstances of death, which, he said, had been placed in his hands by the widow to forward. Dr. Randall sent a statement also. After further correspondence, a cheque for $3,000 was sent on, Rev. Sydney Welton having pointed out that the location of the fact as an advertisement in the papers. Sydney sent a receipt signed by the widow beneficary. The cheque was presented at the bank by the other Welton with his own and the widow's endorsement. Mrs. Reid was the next important witness. She testified that her husband had been ill all summer and the fall previous to the insurance, having, as the doctor said, pulmonary consumption, and he died in February. Dr. Randall, one of the prisoners, attended him. She knew nothing of the application for insurance. She never made the representations to the company alleged to have been forwarded through Rev. Sydney Welton. She never made statements after her husband's death which were forwarded with her signature. She never signed the receipt for the payment of the $3,000; nor did she endorse the cheque. All these writings and signatures were forgeries.
