BARRY BUGDEN AT WORK ON COMPANY MURAL

Maritime Electric Follows Trend In Artistic Thinking

Maritime Electric Company will shortly unveil a mural in their downtown office designed and painted by an employee and artist Barry Bugden.

The mural, six feet by seven feet, is believed to be the first one to be commissioned by a commercial establishment in this province, and as such is an indication of the trend of thinking which has been brought about by the plans for the proposed Confederation Building with its magnificent art galleries and other facilities.

Recipient of a Canada Council grant which enabled him to spend a year studying in England and Spain, Mr. Bugden recently returned from two weeks of painting with Clare Bice, curator of the London, Ont., museum, and Lauren Harris, director of the fine arts department of Mount Allison University.

Since returning from Europe last year he has opened a studio at his home, just outside of Charlottetown, and has welcomed visitors from many parts of the United States and Canada.

Vocational School Building's Future Not Determined

No decision has yet been made concerning the use of the existing vocational school in Charlottetown once the new Provincial Technical Institute is completed, Hon. Phillip Matheson, minister of public works said yesterday.

"The building is well built, not obsolete and in an excellent location, so you can be sure it will be put to good use after the new building is completed", the minister stressed.

Tenders have been called for the new building and construction is expected to begin shortly. It is hoped the structure will be completed early next year.

Looting Of Salesman's Car Case Opens In Police Court

Two crown witnesses were heard yesterday in the preliminary hearing of James Gary Gormley, Charlottetown, charged before Magistrate A. J. Haslam in city police court with theft.

Gormley, who is not represented by counsel, is charged with the theft of 10 sweaters and a quantity of men's and boys' shirts, valued over $50, the property of Beaton's Wholesale Dry Goods, Charlottetown.

At an earlier session, the accused elected trial by a judge and jury. The case for the prosecution is being conducted by Alan K. Scales.

WITNESS TESTIFIES

The first witness, Francis Flood, Charlottetown, salesman for Beaton's, told of locking his car at about midnight, June 26, where it was parked across the street from his home, 28 Dorchester Street.

Going to the door to take in the morning paper at about 7.45 a.m., June 27, he said that he noticed the two right doors of the car were partially open as was the ventilating window on the right side.

Mr. Flood identified a number of articles produced by the crown prosecutor as those that were locked in the back seat of his car on June 26, and which he discovered to be missing on the morning of June 27.

At the request of Mr. Scales, the witness estimated the stolen articles to be valued at about $125 at wholesale prices.

Cnst. Charles Ready, city police force, related his actions in the investigation of the theft, after receiving a call from Mr. Flood at about 9 a.m. June 27.

He corroborated the evidence of the previous witness as to the condition of the car following the theft. Cnst. Ready also told of obtaining the assistance of Cpl. Elliot of the RCMP's identification section, who obtained a number of fingerprints from the vehicle.

Cnst. Ready stated that as the result of a later call, he proceeded to 32 Union Street, a vacant house, and in the cellar discovered the articles previously produced in court.

Following the police officer's testimony, Mr. Scales informed the magistrate that another crown witness was unable to attend this session, and the accused was remanded until Aug. 3.

On a second charge, of vagrancy, the accused was also remanded until the same date.

A lone drunk and incapable, pleading guilty to the charge was given a 30 day suspended sentence.

Italian Consul Visits Here

Dr. Paolo Canali, consul general of Italy in Montreal, is visiting this province and yesterday called on Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet. His Worship arranged a meeting for the consul with Sidney Barbour, of J.W. Windsor Company, when Dr. Canali remarked that peasants in his country live largely on dried fish.

He said there was little meat eaten by people of this class and their distance from the sea made dried fish the answer to a food problem with cod the principal fish used. Some mackerel are also eaten but he noted that herring could only be obtained by the wealthier peasants.
