Business College

Writing Academy

Let the searchlight of practice illuminate the dark places of theory.
A THOROUGHLY Progressive Practical Institution, in which young men and women are not only taught Book-keeping (in all its applications to commerce) both by single and double entry, but are trained how to do business, by actual business transactions. The students act as buyers, sellers, traders, bankers, book-keepers and accountants, in actual business operations, and the currency issued by the college Bank and the money issued in the Emorium, are used in bona fide business transactions, just the same as in mercantile and banking houses. Book-keeping in itself may be learned at home, but a knowledge of how to transact business, cannot be thus acquired. That our course of training is eminently practical is proved by testimonials from business men, and from students who are now holding lucrative and responsible positions.

SUBJECTS:
Book-keeping by single and double entry (theoretical and practical), Actual Business Practice, Business Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Railroading, Steamboating, Banking, (actual practice in the college Bank), Typewriting, Shorthand and Navigation.

FACULTY:
L. B. Miller, Principal, Teacher of Book-keeping, Arithmetic, Business Practice, Business Correspondence, Typewriting and Navigation.
J. W. Coulson, (Vice Principal), Teacher of Railroading, Steamboating, Banking, Accounting and Actual Business Practice.
J. Harry Williams, Teacher of Business Penmanship.
Wm. Moran (licensed), Teacher of Shorthand.
George S. Inman Esq., (Law Firm McDonald & Inman) Lecturer on Commercial Law.

For circulars and full information, write or apply to

A Dramatic Assassination.
By far the most dramatic royal assassination was that of the Emperor Paul of Russia on March 24, 1801, by his nobles. As usual Paul had retired to rest booted and spurred and in his regimentals. At the dead of night he was awakened by an unusual noise. The hussar who guarded his chamber door—the only faithful sentry, as it proved, in the palace—was being killed by nine nobles. They burst into the room and began to attack the emperor. Paul hid behind chairs and tables and begged for his life. He offered to make each of his assailants a prince. He offered to abdicate in vain. Then he made a wild dash for the window, fearfully gashing himself, but he was dragged back. He seized a chair and for some time kept the nine of them at bay, and only after terrific struggles was he seized and strangled with his own sash.

REFRACTORY PATIENT.
A Prescription Which the Hospital Surgeon Ordered Was Never Filled.
"Even during trying times like fever epidemics," remarked Dr. W. H. Watkins, "episodes quaintly humorous at times dispel the gloom in necessarily constricted circles. One day during the 1867 epidemic of yellow fever House Surgeon Jule Font and a number of others were playing whist, trying to while away the time pending the introduction of a batch of patients. During the progress of the game one of the attendants entered the apartment and told Dr. Font that a yellow fever patient had been taken into Ward 19.
"Very well," remarked Dr. Font, "just give him a footbath and I will be down directly to look after him." The attendant took his departure, and the game went on for some time, when the attendant put in an appearance once more with the information that another fever case had been deposited in Ward 20.
"All right," replied the doctor. "Give him a footbath and let me know when you have finished." In about five minutes back came the employee.
"Am mighty sorry, Dr. Font, but I'm in trouble. I gave the first man his footbath, but I don't know what to do about the second. I can't give him a footbath, that's sure."
"Dr. Font got up from the whist table with a determined look on his face. 'Well, if you cannot, I guess I will be able to,' he remarked.
"No, sir," said the attendant, smiling. "I don't think you will."
"Why not?"
"The second man ain't got any feet, sir. They are both cut off just below the knees."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When a female gymnast leaps blindfold through the air, the women spectators usually think it is a terribly risky thing to do, and wonder how she ever has the hardihood; yet the leap is taken with perfect confidence because she knows that strong and dextrous hands are ready to receive her. She would never take such chances at the hands of any but a trained and skillful athlete. That is where she is really more prudent than many of her sex.
Women who would shudder at the risks of a gymnastic performance, take vastly more dangerous chances by trusting their life and health to the advice of some incompetent, uneducated person, when they are suffering from weakness or disease.
Only a skilled, experienced physician is competent to prescribe remedies for the complicated ailments of the feminine organism. No mere nurse is fitted to deal with diseases which demand the utmost resources of medical science.
For nearly 30 years Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., has given special, expert attention and study to the treatment of women's diseases. No physician in the United States has had more remarkable success in this particular field of practice.
His "Favorite Prescription" has cured more cases of obstinate female diseases than any other known remedy. No other medicine in the world so completely restores organic health and strength to suffering women.
Mrs. Jacob Schaffner, of Freemansburg, Northampton Co., Pa., writes: "It is with pleasure that I write to let you know the great good I have received from your medicines and the self-treatment at home. I was troubled with female weakness; had pains in my back all the time, sometimes so severe that I could not lie still in bed at night. I tried different doctors but they could not help me. Then my husband induced me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After taking six bottles I feel like a new woman. Thank you for your advice."

Fat is absolutely necessary as an article of diet. If it is not of the right kind it may not be digested. Then the body will not get enough of it. In this event there is fat-starvation.
Scott's Emulsion supplies this needed fat, of the right kind, in the right quantity, and in the form already partly digested.
As a result all the organs and tissues take on activity.

KISSED HER ON A BET.
She Was a Salvation Lasse; He, Her Husband—Traveling Men Didn't Know That.
A clever trick was worked by Walter Redmond and his wife at Union station by which several traveling men were duped out of their money. At the end of a long seat in the waiting room was a pretty and modest looking young woman attired in a Salvation Army uniform. She was very intent upon a paper which she was reading and paid little attention to the crowd of traveling men standing near her.
Aside from the crowd was a well dressed young man, who was walking back and forth by the newsstand puffing away at a fragrant cigar. Finally a member of the crowd of traveling men remarked upon the beauty of the little Salvation Army worker. All eyes were fixed on the little woman, and she received many compliments. The prosperous looking young man who had been walking near the group of drummers drew near to the crowd. He, too, was struck with the appearance of the woman.
"I'll give any one of you fellows $15 if you kiss that girl," said he.
Those in the crowd took the dare. One spoke up, however, and said to the stranger who had offered the money, "I'll bet you $20 that you can't kiss her."
The stranger hesitated for several seconds and then said:
"I'll just take that bet."
The money was put up, and the stranger, who had given his name as Walter Redmond, walked over toward the little woman in uniform, and, after bowing profoundly, took a seat by her side.
At first the woman seemed to be very indignant, and the traveling man thought he had the $20 won. A minute later, however, Redmond's arm stole around the woman's waist. The spectators then began to open their eyes wide. One of them said: "That fellow has a whole lot of influence over that girl. It may be that he is a hypnotist." Redmond talked for probably two minutes and then kissed the woman.
Redmond walked over to the stakeholder and received his money. He then started from the depot. The little woman quickly arose from her seat, and, taking his arm, walked to Ninth and Broadway, where the couple took an East Broadway car. Redmond is tall and handsome. His wife is a blond and is exceptionally pretty.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A HINT TO ARTISTS.
One Way of Putting Rejected Exhibits to Good Use.
They were riding on the Fourteenth street cars and their conversation was edifying. The man with the long hair was evidently a sculptor, and his companion, a large, jolly looking fellow, was trying to persuade him to present a work of art to some society woman who had a mania for collecting bric-a-brac and articles of vertu.
"I told her that you would, I thought, in time present her with some memento, a statuette illustrating your peculiar style. Was I wrong in saying so?"
The sculptor answered indignantly: "I know her value of art, and I tell you she cannot distinguish between manufactured trinkets and works of art. In fact, she thinks all artists are manufacturers and can turn out statuette as easily as the rich stove ornament man who gave her a nickel plated mule. Then, too, a brass fixture artist gave her something from the brass foundry, and she thought it great. Never, in my judgment, could she appreciate a true work of art."
"Then you refuse to give her a sample of your work? Remember, she has great influence."
"I do not refuse. I'll give her that model in plaster of paris which was refused by the committee last month. She will think it great, whether or not the committee did."
"Good! She will think it magnificent and get you an order."—New York Commercial.
