

FOR THE TRAVELLER

Arnel textured linen inspired this vagabond blazer and skirt by Gaytown, Toronto. Brass buttons high-notched revers and flap pockets make fashion news either at the Hilton Hawaiian Village or any honeymoon resort. Sells for about $22.

Who dances first during reception?

To avoid that awkward moment when it comes time to dance at a reception follow this procedure:

The bride and bridegroom dance alone around the dance floor. Then the bridegroom's father cuts in while the groom dances with the bride's mother and the bride's father with the groom's mother.

All the male members of the wedding party should claim dances with the bride before dancing becomes general and likewise the groom with the bride's attendants.

The reception should not be a stiff formalized affair. This type can waste much time. For example, if the bride spends as little as 30 seconds greeting 200 guests, she would have to spend an hour and 40 minutes in the reception line.

Experts say not to worry too much. "Brides and their mothers spend so much time worrying about the reception that they don't enjoy themselves."

COMMODITIES

"Giving the bride away" harks back to the days when fathers looked upon their daughters as commodities to be sold.
