BURGESS BEDTIME

a head appeared in that doorway. Of course it must be Peter Rabbit. It never entered Hooty's head that it might not be. He couldn't afford to miss this opportunity.

Without a second look to make sure, he swooped and struck. Just as he did so he saw his mistake. He tried to check himself and almost succeeded. One foot just brushed against Prickly Porky coming out.

The big Owl passed on and up to a tree. He gripped his perch with both feet, then let go with one. He let go in a hurry. He held his foot up and looked at it. Hanging from the bottom of that foot were two of Prickly Porky's little spears. They are called quills, and their points are as sharp and fine as needles. That foot had only brushed against those points, but it had been enough to make them go in and stick. They had pulled out of Prickly Porky's coat, for they were very lightly fastened there.

Hooty tried to pull them out of his coat but they didn't pull out easily. One finally did pull out. Of course it left a sore place. He worked and worked, trying to pull the other oe out, then accidentally he bit it off. That left the point in his foot. Hooty put the foot down to take hold of his perch and stand on both feet. He let go with that foot in a hurry. That foot hurt! Suddenly Hooty lost his appetite. He forgot all about Peter Rabbit. He could think of nothing but that sore foot.

Farewell Gathering

On the evening of February 29th, a large number of neighbours, friends and schoolmates met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hill, Freetown, to welcome their son George, his wife and family who have just arrived from Shilo, Manitoba, and also to say farewell to George who leaves in the near future for duty overseas. Mr. Allison Profitt capably acted as chairman and called upon Allan Clow who on behalf of those present read an address of welcome congratulations, best wishes on their return home.

Miss Donna Bernard was then called on who presented them with a well filled purse of money. George on behalf of his wife and self thanked all for their generosity and kind words of welcome. "For They are Jolly Good Fellows", was then sung after which lunch was served by the Ladies and a social hour enjoyed. The evening was brought to a close with the singing of "The Queen" with J. B. Lewis at the organ after which all departed to their homes wishing George bon voyage overseas and a safe return to his home and loved ones.

The following is the Address:—

Dear George and Lillian:—It is with mingled feelings, that we, your neighbours and friends of Freetown have met this evening in the old home, to honour you, as our guests. Although for the past few years George, your work has taken you away from us, we feel that you are still one of our boys and as such we have followed your career, and are deeply interested in your future.

This evening we take the opportunity to say: "Welcome home" again, George, Lillian and Family, and we wish to extend hearty congratulations and greetings to you all. We are sorry to learn that you are not planning to remain with us very long but are leaving shortly to continue your work in the troubled places overseas. It is hard for us in our fair land and peaceful homes, to realize the spirit of hate and the lust for power that are abroad in the world and considering our privileges, we wonder if we are altogether free from blame, for such conditions. We earnestly hope and pray that this turmoil and unrest may soon, yes very soon, give place to a just and a lasting peace.

Now George lest you forget us while you are away, we ask you to accept this purse—as a remembrance. With it go our prayers and best wishes for a safe and early return and may God be with you till we meet again is the wish of your neighbours and friends of Freetown, P. E. I.
