What's Uncle Sam Doing About War? Tables Resources

NOT LOOKING FOR MOBILIZATION BUT GETTING READY FOR IT AND COULD COMMAND 10,000 PLANTS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—M-Day stands for Mobilization Day. Uncle Sam hopes it will never come, but he is ready for anything. That means far more than building up his army and navy, for modern warfare extends from the soldier in the front-line trench to the humblest civilian in the remotest hamlet in the rear.

In 1918, in the last year of the Great War, they built a squat, square factory-like structure of concrete, steel and bricks in Washington. An eye-sore, nobody expected it to last.

Today, 21 years later, the munitions building still stands, a living monument to American preparedness. In one of the cubicles within the building are stenographers and clerks, busy as beavers on a dam. They don't talk to strangers. Their assignment is confidential. Over their heads the usual label is missing. There's only a number—No. 2508.

This room is headquarters of the one "temporary" organization in the United States government charged with achieving American unity in an emergency—such as war or threat of war. It is the one war of threat of war. It is the one war of threat of war. It is the one war of threat of war.

Modern War Said Favorable To Democracies

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (CP)—The fighting ability, initiative and resourcefulness of the Canadian and Australian infantrymen in the first Great War is the stuff Great Britain intends to reproduce in her infantry troops for the present conflict, says Captain Basil Liddell Hart, Times of London Military Expert and international authority on armies and their use.

Modern war favors the infantry which can think and act for itself, which is equivalent to saying that modern war favors the democracies, Capt. Hart says in his book, "The Defence of Britain," to be published here in October. The book includes much material collected by the author in making a requested report to the war department 18

Border Team Win Tenth Mar. Title

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Sept. 18 (CP)—St. Stephen St. Croix won their tenth consecutive New Brunswick senior baseball title this evening. The Border champions eliminated the Saint John's 4-2 in the fifth game of a final series for the Provincial crown.

Bob Pastor Prepares For Louis' Battle

(By SED FEDER) BRIGHTON, Mich., Sept. 18 (AP)—Forty miles out of Detroit Bob Pastor is putting the finishing touches to the biggest game of his life—a return match with Joe Louis.

It comes off Wednesday night in Detroit's Briggs Stadium with the heavyweight championship of the world at stake. For two years, Bob has loudly proclaimed that in his 1937 "Bicycle battle" against the Brown Bomber, the 10-round decision against him wasn't any one-sided verdict.

And now, Bob has come down to the last week, still gambling. He hasn't boxed a lick since last Thursday, an almost unheard-of thing in a heavyweights preparation. He weighed about 187 at that time and decided to gamble the possible loss of his sharpness against maintaining that weight.

He has been in training eight weeks and he boxed 150 rounds with sparring partners. "The work was worth it, though," he said today. "This is the biggest fight of my life. All the training has put me in the greatest shape. The 20 round route won't bother me one bit; I can go 30 rounds now. But I won't need it. I'll win and I'm confident I can knock him out in seven or eight rounds."

All signs point to a crowd of 50,000 and a gate of $500,000 for Wednesday's waltz. developed, he suggests, from the military history of Britain and using the most effective resources of the national character and physical possessions.

"The advantage of the general defensive could be enhanced, its risks diminished, and its common value increased by combining it with a 'harassing offensive'," he says. "This could be pursued by:—

"Carrying out local or limited attacks, carefully mounted as a surprise and with the maximum firepower, against weak points on the main front;

"Utilizing artillery fire and air bombing to harass the enemy's routes of supply and rest camps;

"Utilizing sea power to isolate, and then to concentrate a decisive mobilization plan works—on paper. He has to show the colonel, "they'll take the helm, and tell us where we're wrong on it. They'll show us where our transportation kinks are, where our distribution would break down, where production should be speeded, or retarded."

In short, the War Resources Board is even now mobilizing the industry of the United States—on paper, and in fact. It is a quiet process without fanfare or haste. More than 10,000 manufacturers are helping to do the job.

If the emergency should come, the same raw materials would continue to go in the hopper at the beginning of the assembly lines in those plants. But ready different articles would come out in the delivery rooms.

Lawn mower factories would be turning out shrapnel. Pipe-fitting and valve plants would become bomb factories. But ready different articles would come out in the delivery rooms.

Months ago on plans for modernization of British defences. The Canadian and Australian soldiers were the best fighting troops in the last war, Capt. Liddell Hart wrote because they felt free to criticize a foolish order and often did so generously.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

INFORMAL PORTRAITS

Use a portrait attachment to take informal portrait close-ups such as this with a box camera or fixed-focus folding model.

SUMMER is an ideal season for informal outdoor portraits of your family and friends, and informal portraits are about as easy to take as any other type of snapshot. Naturally, such informal shots are not to be compared with the work of skilled, experienced professional photographers. . . but, since you take them yourself for your own album, they do have unique personal interest.

Your informal portraits may show one, two, or several persons, grouped naturally—without stiffness. The subjects should fill most of the picture space; too much background is detrimental. Faces should be turned so that a good likeness is obtained—whether profile, full-face, or in between—but as a rule the subjects should not look directly at the camera.

Two types of lighting are acceptable. Direct sunlight from one side is all right, but straight-overhead lighting from the noon sun produces harsh, displeasing shadows. For a softer lighting, and better likeness, place the subjects in "open shade"—for example, at the edge of shade from a big tree, where they will receive light reflected from the sky, but no direct sun.

Informal portraits in direct sunlight require no increase in exposure. In open shade (not under trees or a porch) try an exposure of 1/25 second at f.8 lens opening. With a box camera or inexpensive folding type, use the smallest lens opening, and give a very short time exposure—about as fast as you can work the shutter—with the camera on a firm, solid support.

A focusing camera enables you to take reasonable close-ups without a lens attachment, as well as full-figure shots. You can also take full-figure shots and group shots with a box camera if it has a "two-point" focus setting, enabling you to get as near as five or six feet to the subject. But for real close-ups with the inexpensive camera, you will need a portrait attachment—a small supplementary lens that slips on over the regular camera lens. The attachment does not change the exposure.

Often, an informal portrait gives interest if the subject is busy with some everyday activity—for example, filling a tobacco pipe, if a man, or crocheting, if a woman. The action adds story quality—and tells more about the subject. Concentrated action—such as conversation—adds unity to a group picture.

Make a collection of good, informal portraits of your friends and family. They'll justify a special section in your snapshot album.

Yankees Win Over Browns

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (CP)—Having stubbed their pennant-winning toes twice on the tail-end St. Louis Browns Sunday, the champion Yankees went to work early today, scoring five runs in the first three innings, and walked the Browns 6-2 in an American Baseball League game.

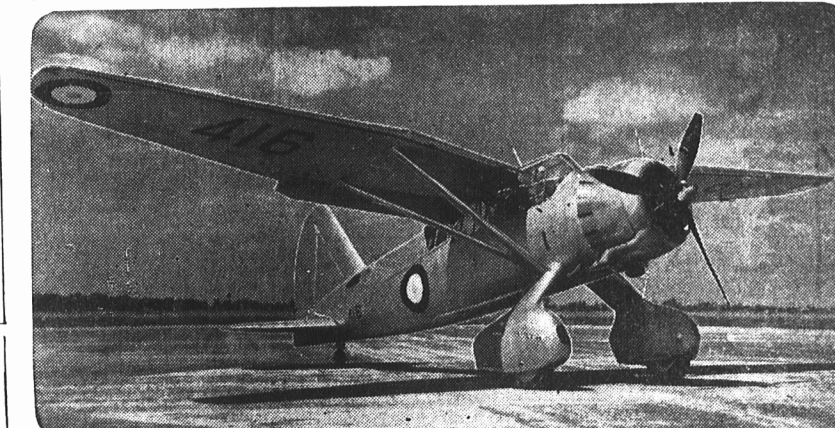

At Washington, Dutch Leonard won his 19th game when his Washington teammates defeated Detroit Tigers 4-2.

In Philadelphia, Johnny Allen won his ninth decision of the season, giving the Athletics 10 hits as Cleveland Indians scored a 9-4 triumph.

Conference Will Decide League's Fate

GLASGOW, Sept. 18 (CP) Cable Plans announced by the Scottish Football League yesterday to resume league play next Saturday are being held up pending a conference with Lt.-Col. D. J. Colville, Secretary for Scotland. A Deputation will urge the Minister to remove all restrictions on Scottish Soccer.

At a week-end meeting the league authorities decided to resume play Sept. 23. A schedule of wartime wages was drawn up and provision made that players engaged in work of national importance would not be called upon.

The Westland Lysander, shown above, which is being built by the National Steel Car Co., at its new aircraft plant at Malton, for the R.C.A.F., is a single-engine two-seat army co-operation high wing monoplane. It is one of the most popular planes in the Royal Air Force. The cockpit is in front of and level with the leading edge of the wings, so as to provide the pilot with exceptional view, while there is provision for machine guns and bomb racks. It is powered with a Bristol Mercury, XII nine-cylinder radial air-cooled engine and has a maximum speed of 220 miles per hour. It is credited with a quick take off, low landing speed and a steep climb. The Malton plant is also being used for the construction of British aircraft under the Canadian Associated Aircrafts scheme. The building has now been completed. Delivery of these Lysander planes, for the Royal Canadian Air Force are now being made.
