

Confessions of A 20 Year Old Virgin

by Marko Peric

I'm tired of people talking about sex. I know this looks a little out of place in a sex supplement, but it's true. Someone once said that the Victorians pretended that sex didn't exist, and the modernists pretend that nothing else exists. As a twenty year old virgin on a university campus, I tend to agree.

Being a virgin is to be part of a minority, and rather quiet minority at that. After all, no one boasts in the locker room that they haven't had sex.

This raises the question of why I haven't had sex, and don't plan to in the near future. It's not that I made a conscious decision one day not to have sex outside of marriage. I was raised to believe that people should not sleep with each other. So far, I haven't come up with any reason to question this policy.

From all I've seen, having sex outside of marriage causes more problems than it could possibly be worth. There are STDs, which range from minor irritants to fatal diseases. Many are incurable. Using a condom can reduce the risk of contracting these diseases, but no piece of latex is anywhere near 100 percent effective.

There are other reasons not to have sex, such as unwanted pregnancies and religious reasons. The big one, though, is emotional. Having sex with someone is about as intimate as a relationship gets, both physically and emotionally. Intimacy is not something to be shared around. When you know someone intimately, that attachment can be painful to sever. If you have known multiple people in a very intimate way, it's like having a closet full of emotional skeletons. Past memories can come back to haunt you at the worst times.

This isn't the only emotional reason to wait for sex. When I do get married some day, I can't think of anything more special to give my wife than a body and soul free of memories and problems left by past relationships. What could be more precious than two people having their first time together on their wedding night? Maybe I won't be able to give my future wife a big house, a nice car, and an exquisite diamond ring, but this is one thing that I know I can give.

TOP 13 Reasons To Stay A Virgin

1. You don't need to worry whether or not he or she is dating you only for the sex.
2. Getting pregnant.
3. Getting dumped because you are pregnant/got someone pregnant.
4. Testing your personal beliefs about abortion.
5. Having "Am I going to hell?" anxiety.
6. How your hair looks the morning after.
7. Regretting it the morning after.
8. Not remembering it the morning after.
9. Never seeing him or her again after the morning after.
10. All those lies about safe sex.
11. AIDS, at least not as much.
12. How long the condom has been in the wallet.
13. Putting the condom on right.

Urban Legends— Kill Your Television

CUP GRAPHIC The Lambda

MISCELLANY

Issac Asimov, famous science-fiction writer and scientist, also wrote a book of dirty limericks entitled: Lecherous Limericks.

In a Glamour magazine survey of 1000 men 55% of men admitted to measuring their penis. 20% of men refused to answer.

Also from that survey: the percentage of men who would prefer to be 5'2" with a seven inch penis - 62%. The percentage of men who would prefer to be 6'2" with a three inch penis - 32%.

The drosophila bifurca -- or fruitfly -- has the largest sperm of any animal. Its sperm is 2.3 inches long, which is 20 times the length of its body and 11% of its total body weight.

40% of all condom sales are by women.

The average non erect penis is 2.5 to 4 inches long, and erect is usually 5.5 to 6.5 inches.

30-40% of couples practice anal sex. (AIDS PEI)

In a survey by "Details" magazine, 23 percent of men could not locate the clitoris.