"INTRUDER IN THE DUST" AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

"Intruder in the Dust," William Faulkner's novel of mystery and murder in the deep South, has been brought to the screen in a tensely realistic production, ninety percent of which was filmed in Oxford, Mississippi, with many of the downfolk used as actors. As a result, Producer-Director Clarence Brown has given his filmization of the Faulkner best-seller a gripping intensity and absorbing naturalism seldom seen in the usual studio-made picture. The action revolves about the fatal shooting of Vinson Gowrie, a Mississippi farmer, with the only suspect being the Negro, Lucas Beauchamp. The town's citizens gather about the jail where Lucas has been confined in anticipation of short-order justice being meted out by the murdered man's kinsmen. Only two persons believe in Lucas' innocence; one, the sixteen-year-old white boy, Chick, who once had been befriended by the Negro; the other, the indomitable eighty-year-old spinster, Miss Habersham. These two, with the help of Chick's lawyer, uncle and the little Negro boy, Aleck, set out to find the real murderer, a hunt which leads them into uncovering a grave in the dead of night only to discover the body of the murdered Vinson Gowrie removed. The ultimate finding of the body in a creek bottom filled with quicksand and the ingenious trick by which the true criminal is brought to light make for a drama in which suspense and excitement permeate every scene.

St. Mary's Church Laymen Meet

Members of the Laymen's Association of St. Mary's Church, Summerside, and St. John's Church, St. Eleanor's, held their monthly meeting on Tuesday night at St. Eleanor's, the president, Mr. George T. Clarke presiding. The meeting was held in the new rooms recently provided at the back end of the church and were nicely fitted up and panelled in British Columbia fir. The meeting proved a very enjoyable one. "The subject of the study period was, "The Epiphany" conducted by Ven. Archdeacon Harrison. During a short business period it was decided to conduct a rummage sale, Mr. E. E. Parkman being named as chairman of the committee in charge. The programme period took the form of a debate sponsored by the chairman of the programme committee, Mr. J. R. Murphy. The pros and cons as to whether Summerside should have a cooperative store were made the subject of the debate. The result of the vote was a draw. A splendid luncheon provided by the St. Eleanor's members was much appreciated and brought the meeting to a close.

Death At S'ide Yesterday Of Mr. M. P. Titus

The death occurred yesterday afternoon at Summerside of Melbourne P. Titus, well known proprietor of the Clifton Hotel, in his 70th year. He had suffered a stroke on August 23rd last and since that time had been confined to bed. Last Wednesday he took a turn for the worse and gradually grew weaker till he passed away yesterday afternoon.

The late Mr. Titus was born in Sussex, N. B. and had served overseas in World War One with the 12th Infantry Battalion as quartermaster, with the rank of captain. Shortly after his return to Canada in 1919, he came to Charlottetown where he was employed with the Imperial Tobacco Company as commercial traveller. In 1929 he purchased the Clifton Hotel and moved to Summerside where he lived till his death. He is survived by a daughter, Frances, Mrs. Cyril Hickey, of this town, and one brother, Hedley Titus, of Moose Jaw, Sask. His wife predeceased him about a year ago.

The main interest in his life, apart from his family and business, had been the Canadian Legion in which he had been an ardent member and continuous worker in all its activities. He was a charter member and served two terms as president of Summerside branch. He held the office of honorary treasurer of the Provincial Command on a number of occasions. The body is resting at the Bowness Funeral Home and the funeral will be on Friday afternoon at two o'clock.—S.

Ideal Dairy In S'ide To Be Extended

Mr. Elmer Offer, proprietor of the Ideal Dairy, Central Street, Summerside, has purchased from Mr. Keith Compton the premises formerly occupied by Mr. Compton as his undertaking establishment, the Compton Funeral Home, now being situated on Summer Street where a portion of Mr. Compton's residence was recently remodelled and fitted up for that purpose.

Mr. Offer is now the owner of the entire premises on Central Street which was formerly owned by the murdered man's kinsmen. Only two persons believe in Lucas' innocence; one, the sixteen-year-old white boy, Chick, who once had been befriended by the Negro; the other, the indomitable eighty-year-old spinster, Miss Habersham. MRS. WEEKS TESTIFIES bought him one at the vendors' with a dollar.

 Continuing on their way home they dropped in at Mrs. Stanley Steele's for a few minutes left for home accompanied by William Howatt who had been at the Steele's. Witness thought Howatt went with them to varnish the stairs in their home.
 After arriving home they had dinner and then the prisoner opened the wine, and after giving witness a drink finished the bottle in company with Howatt. Her husband and she left the house at approximately one o'clock and Howatt stayed behind to work on the stairs. The witness said she had been going to call on Mrs. Steele to ask her to come up for the afternoon, and her husband had been on his way to work. They met Mrs. Steele on School Street, going to their place, and she (the witness) returned with Mrs. Steele to her home. Mrs. Steele stayed with her all afternoon and had supper with her.
 Witness said she saw her husband at approximately 2 o'clock when he dropped in for a few minutes and then he left taking a house jack with him.
 Returned After Supper
 Howatt had left in the afternoon and witness had supper with her two children and Mrs. Steele. Shortly after supper her husband came in but did not eat anything. At that time he was drunk. Howatt came in later and he too was drunk. The prisoner had a full bottle of bay rum and Howatt also had a full bottle. The prisoner was drinking from his bottle when Howatt came in and Howatt started to open his. Witness objected and took Howatt's bottle and put it on the hall rack. This made Howatt cross and he started banging the walls. A little later he fell sick and went upstairs to lay down.

 There was a knock at the back door and Mrs. John Lee and her daughter entered. When Mrs. Steele heard the knock she ran up stairs. The witness, Mrs. Lee and the prisoner sat in the front room and the prisoner saw Howatt's bottle of bay rum in the hall. He took it and drank it. He was talking foolishly and when he would try to get off the couch on which he was sitting he would almost fall on the stove.
 He went out the front door between 9 and 9.30 and said he was going to get something for lunch.
 Missed Two Dollars
 The witness said she did not know her husband had any money that day and the money from the unemployment insurance was in her purse under a cushion on the couch. A little later she found two dollars was missing from her purse and also some change. She mentioned it to Mrs. Lee. It was nearly eleven o'clock when Mrs. Lee and her daughter left, and the prisoner had not returned at that time.
 After Mrs. Lee went the witness said she called Mrs. Steele down from upstairs and Howatt came down too. Howatt left the house and Mrs. Steele stayed with the witness. She had been there since about one o'clock in the afternoon.
 Witness said she began to worry about her husband and Mrs. Steele suggested they go to her house in case he was there. They started down Gerald Street together and met the prisoner. The three of them returned to the Weeks' home. The prisoner was carrying french fried potatoes, potato chips, three toffee apples and some candy for the children. The witness and Mrs. Steele had lunch but the prisoner would not eat.
 The three of them left to walk to Mrs. Steele's home and met Howatt on the school grounds (Prince Street). Witness said she and Mrs. Steele walked to Mrs. Steele's home and prisoner and Howatt stood on the corner of Alley and Prince talking. After leaving Mrs. Steele at her door she returned to the two men and Howatt went home and she and her husband returned to their home. The prisoner was pretty full at this time.

Work Progressing On New Prince County Hospital

Work on the interior finishing of the new Prince County Hospital is proceeding steadily and it is hoped that it may be ready to open this spring, possibly in May. Hold-ups due to the slow arrival of certain equipment has delayed the work. The heating system arrived about two weeks ago and is being installed. Heat is now being provided by a temporary boiler. Another hold-up is the elevator but this, together with a dumb waiter, will be shipped next week and should arrive about the first of February. But it will take three months to install after it comes.
 The sterilizing equipment has been very slow and delivery of this necessary material may be further delayed.
 The third floor, where the maternity department is situated, is the most advanced. Plastering is completed and some of the rooms are painted. There will be none of the traditional hospital white here as the rooms will all be done in various shades. The finish wood work is completed and the ceilings are done. Laying out linoleum in some of the rooms has commenced.
 The second floor is nearly as far advanced as the third but no linoleum has been laid. Quite a bit of work remains to be done on the main floor and in some sections the putty plaster coat has not been applied. All the tile work in the operating rooms and in the kitchen which is on the ground floor, is just about done.
 At present about 35 men of various trades are employed in the building. Due to the delay in receiving equipment it is not considered that there is any point in proceeding so fast with the finishing as to outdistance the installation of the elevator and various fixtures.
 The contractors are M. F. Schurman Co. Ltd., Mr. Wilfred Maynard is the inspector.—S

Opens Defence Case
 Before introducing any witnesses for the defence, Mr. Bell addressed the jury briefly, telling them he would place before them any evidence which would assist them in arriving at the correct verdict. He stated he would add to the evidence presented by the Crown, testimony of other parties who knew something of the unfortunate affair.
 "I believe you will decide some of the previous witnesses were not telling the truth," he said, "and you will be able to judge exactly what happened that night."
 First witness called by Mr. Bell was Mr. Henry Weeks, 70, Gaytown, father of the accused. Witness said he had known deceased approximately 30 years and deceased had once told him he was 84. He had often called on James Mullins and as far as he knew the deceased had never married.
 The witness stated he had boarded up the windows on the Mullins place for deceased who said he was going to Beach Grove for the winter. He said the deceased had been quite feeble and had said once, "My mind is not as good as it was years ago. He had said this to the witness after finding a pair of mitts in his pocket which he thought had been stolen.
 Another time when Mullins had fallen, the witness said he picked him up but was abused for holding him. The deceased, he added, had sat on one chair and eaten off another, by the base burner in his hall, and the house was like a junk yard.

Visited By Constable
 Witness said that Constable Archer of the City Police had called on him approximately six weeks ago and told him Mullins was complaining of losing money. After he had finished his breakfast that morning he went to Mullins' home and Mullins had told him he had lost $9.75 but was not blaming witness for its loss. Witness later went to the Police Station and talked it over with the Police Chief.
 Asked about the windows he had boarded up for Mullins, witness said the deceased had paid him fifty cents once, and another time had attempted to give him a quarter.
 He continued to tell of the various jobs held at different times by the accused, and of his moving to Douglas Street and later to Gerald Street. Before the prisoner was married the witness said he had been in bad shape with his head and seemed nervous or queer or something. Sometimes he seemed as if he would fall head first and the doctor used to give him stuff.
 The witness said he had seen his son once in his home on Douglas Street when the prisoner had attempted to get in the oven. Failing this he then started at the stove with his fists. Dr. Lea was called in and gave him a needle.
 The witness stated the prisoner had always been good to his children and his wife, and had been a steady worker. He had never been in trouble before he started to drink. He had seen him at bay rum which seemed to make him crazy.
 There was no cross examination of this witness.

Parliamentary Divorces
 OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP)—The heavily-burdened Senate Divorce Committee is going to start work earlier than usual in the new parliamentary session.
 Senator W. McL. Robertson, Government leader in the upper chamber, said today it is planned to start hearing divorce cases within a week after the Jan. 30 opening.
 He said it is hoped the committee will be able to conclude its work by Easter.
 The Divorce Committee hears petitions from Quebec, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, which have no divorce courts.

Talked Strangely
 Reaching home the witness said she started to do the dishes and her husband sat in a chair mumbling and talking strangely. He told her he had killed a man and the next minute said it was a Frenchman who had killed a man. This last statement by the witness was subsequently struck from the Court records.
 A little later there was a knock at the door and Howatt entered. It was then after midnight. Her husband was talking with Howatt and walking around and finally Howatt left, returning later with James McGonnell and Dianna Roma Steele. After more talk her husband left with McGonnell, and soon after they came back the police arrived.
 The witness said she was present when the police officer spoke to her husband about Mullins' death, and a little later the officer left accompanied by her husband. Dianna Steele stayed with her for the night.
 Asked what her husband had had to drink that day the witness said he had had two bottles of bay rum and part of the bottle of wine. She had seen the large cracker on his forehead before but the mark on his nose was new.
 There was no cross examination of Mrs. Weeks by the Crown, which was represented by Attorney General W. E. Darby, K.C., and Deputy Attorney General J. O. Campbell, K.C.

Mrs. Lee's Evidence
 Mrs. John Lee, 5 Douglas Street, was the first witness to be called by the defence in the afternoon, and stated she was a sister of the accused. She said she was always sickly when about 15 years of age, had a leaky valve in her heart and was in trouble.
 Witness told of the prisoner's marriage to Miss Claire Rooney who lived next to her father at 40 Valley Street. She said it was four years after the accused moved to Douglas Street that she knew he drank at all. During his time off from his work at L. M. Poole's he worked for Mr. Gordon Hughes, doing gardening.
 After she had heard he was drinking the witness said she had often seen him going noisily home of an evening. She had been in the prisoner's home and seen him drunk and acting foolishly. She had seen him drink bay rum after which he imagined someone wanted to fight him. At these times it was impossible to get him to lie down to sleep. He was taking pills and medicine. Dr. Lea was called in at different times and gave a needle to the prisoner twice.
 Between 7 and 8 p.m. on December 4 she had visited prisoner's home with her daughter and thought she heard a scuffling sound as she entered. The prisoner and his wife and their two children were downstairs. She had sat in the front room with the prisoner and his wife, and the prisoner was really drunk. He had tried to roll a cigarette and finally she rolled it for him. Prisoner was raving and when he tried to rise from the couch he would almost fall against the stove and witness said she had to push him back to the couch. After three or four attempts the prisoner left by the front door and she watched him go down Gerald Street. Sometimes he would be in the gutter and sometimes on the sidewalk. Sometimes he was on his knees. This was between 9 and 10 o'clock.
 Witness said she had seen him drink an entire bottle of bay rum shortly before he left without tak-

Let's Talk It Over
 A Prince County Viewpoint

Isn't it about time the Province of Prince Edward Island was again represented in the Canadian Cabinet by one of its native sons? It's been a long time. Even those who argue that Prince Edward Island, having so few members in the Dominion Parliament, does not rate cabinet representation all the time, must concede that this Island Province should not have to wait twenty years or more to be accorded the honor.
 Yet this is precisely the situation as it stands today. In 1930 Hon. Cyrus MacMillan of Charlottetown was Minister of Fisheries and from that time to this no native Islander has been a portfolio member of the Dominion Cabinet. Hon. Charles Dunning and Hon. J. L. Ralston were Cabinet members while representing Queens and Prince Counties respectively in the House of Commons, but although both were undoubtedly conscientious men who faithfully endeavoured to do what they could for their constituencies, they were not native Islanders and they were not expected to have the same grasp of the needs and aspirations of this Province as one who had lived and worked here. Even Hon. Cyrus MacMillan had not made his home in Prince Edward Island for some years prior to his appointment, and therefore would be somewhat out of touch with the problems of his native Province.

Today we have in the person of J. Watson MacNaught, member of Prince County, a native Islander who has lived and worked here virtually all his life. His political stature has grown steadily since his election for the first time six years ago. He has always been a keen student of politics and many of those who vote against him on election day will admit his competence in handling the duties that have been assigned to him so far. As assistant to the Minister of Fisheries, he has gained valuable experience, and his promotion is one that leads naturally to the higher post of a full-fledged cabinet minister.

The fact that, twice in recent years we have been represented in the Dominion Cabinet by outsiders is an admission of our right of representation. It is also a not too thickly veiled inference that the reason we are now being deprived of representation is because we have not raised in this Island political timber of the quality necessary for cabinet men.

We Islanders have every reason to resent this slur at our prestige. We not only raise able men for home consumption, but we export them in larger numbers in proportion to our population than any other province of the Dominion. The large number of Islanders in high positions, both in other parts of Canada, and in the United States, furnish ample proof of this.
