Fergus, April 6, 1894

To Robert Phillips,
Druggist, Fergus.

This is to certify that I have suffered from piles for a long time and tried several articles recommended for this complaint, but none of them benefitted me till I tried Chase's Ointment, which has completely cured me.

MRS. JOHN GERRIE.
R. Phillips, jr., Druggist
Witness.

"My six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the principal seat of eruption being behind her ears. I tried almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought innumerable medicines and soaps, and took the child to medical specialists in skin diseases, but without result. Finally, a week ago, I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the first application showed the curative effect of the Remedy. We have used only one-sixth of the box, but the change is very marked; the eruption has all disappeared, and I can confidently say my child is cured. (Signed) MAXWELL JOHNSTON

HE HAD COLLECTED THE SILVER.

Mrs. Noboddie Was Mistaken in Thinking She Had Found a Burglar.

Young Mrs. Noboddie, returning from her mother's birthday party, let herself into the flat, which seemed strangely quiet and deserted.

"Freddie isn't home yet, of course," she said to herself. "That Mr. Goldlink is sure to keep him late talking over all that business, and of course, as he came to town on purpose for it, Freddie couldn't leave him even to go to mamma's party. I am home earlier than I expected, too. What airs Sarah does give herself, just because she is married to a rich man! Well, I hate pride, and I won't be snubbed by her, so I just came home."

She proceeded to remove her wraps and take a good look at herself in the mirror.

"My goodness!" she whispered, "That sounds like somebody in the dining-room! Oh, nonsense! It can't be. I'm only nervous. Dear me, I hope this business will turn out well. Freddie says it will double our income if it does, and then I can snub Sarah a bit, if I choose. That is surely someone in the dining-room. I shall creep out and see."

The dining-room door was ajar. The gas was turned on full, and a man in his shirt sleeves was deliberately squeezing lemons into her best punch bowl, while nearly all of her silver spoons, the sugar basin and the tea-kettle were laid ready.

"The wretch! he thinks he will have a feast and then get away with all my silver," she whispered, "I'll show him"

A moment later, the bell of the flat below rang violently, and when Mr. Blanque opened the door Mrs. Noboddie staggered in, and, pronouncing the one word "burglars," fainted.

Mr. Blanque turned very pale. "I—suppose I had better go and see," he remarked.

"You will do nothing of the kind, Augustus Blanque," responded his wife, "you shan't be shot defending another woman's silver. Go for the police."

Fifteen minutes later the intruder had been surprised and taken away to the station, protesting that it was all right, he was no burglar and that Mr. Noboddie was his friend "The very idea!" cried Mrs. Noboddie indigantly, "when I never set eyes on his ferocious countenance before in my life."

"Oh, that's nothing," replied Mr. Blanque, "these hardened criminals will make any excuse; he was desperate, too, and they had to handle him pertty roughly."

Just then Mr. Noboddie came blithely up the stairs with various suspicions looking bottles in his arms. "There I am, old man," he called, "I had to go further than I thought, but it's all right, my wife won't be—why, what on earth is the matter?"

"Oh, Freddy," cried his wife, "only think, I came home early from mamma's party and found a horrid burglar in the dining-room with all my silver out; they have taken him to the police station now. And, oh, aren't you proud of your little wife? I never screamed once—why, Freddie, what is the matter? I'm not hurt."

"Taken him to the police station! no hurt!" yelled Freddie, when he could get his voice, "Good gracious, woman, that was Goldlink; we wanted a quiet place to talk over our business and came up here. We were making punch and he agreed to squeeze the lemons while I went for—for some other ingredients, and now you've sent him to the police station and the most profitable deal I've made this year is all up!"

And gloom settled down upon the flat.

Sea Island Dialect.

Alfred was a lanky, loose-jointed youth with the shambling gait of a racoon, and more that his share of Afro-American laziness. In color, says the Columbia State, he was a chinquapin brown, or as the hands on the plantation called it, a bay kind of nigguh, suh." With the arrogance of the copper-alloyed negro he looked down upon the darker-hued members of his race.

He was employed in doing odd lobs about the plantation, and one day was coming over the railroad crossing on his way from the "big spring," balancing a bucket of water upon the hatless crown of his woolly head, when, as he paused to look up and down the lines of glittering steel rail, ostensibly to see "wedder de shoo fly train dey on time," he caught sight of a rival and enemy, Paul Youngblood, a thick-set bullet-headed black, a year or two older and many pounds heavier than our hero. Putting down his bucket and lounging toward the new comer, who had paused at the crossing, Alfred demanded:

"Paul, wat you tell Pink 'bout me to de settin' up las' Sattyday nite?"

"Tell w'ich Pink?"

"Aun' Sarah gran'darter Pink. You know um berry well!"

"Who tell you I know she?"

"Ef you ain' know 'um you 'quaintan' wid 'um."

"Well, ef I is 'quaintan' wid 'um I nebber tell 'um.

"You tell 'um dat I could'n specify."

"Who tell you I tell 'um?"

"Lizzybett' tell me,."

"W'ich 'Lizzybet' dat?"

"Same 'Lizzybet'; you mus' be fool, enty?"

"Don't you cuss me a fool."

"I cuss you a fool, yaas, en' I cuss you a lie, en' I cuss you a nigguh!"

"Ef you cuss me a nigguh, yourself is a nigguh!"

"Who—me?"

"Yaas, you."

"Bipp." Alfred took a heavy lightwood knot from a pile of engine wood near by and brought it down with a whack on the thick skull of his opponent. The blow didn't seem to trouble the recipient much, and he stood looking dazedly at his assailant until the sight of his own blood trickling down on the planks reminded him that he had been despitefully used. Seizing Alfred suddenly by the ears he butted him full in the forehead and the two skulls crashed together with the sound like the coupling of freight cars with automatic bumpers. The battle was a short one. Alfred fell to earth and was soundly belabored before I could make the now thoroughly aroused Paul abandon the fight.

"Now, Alfud," said the conqueror, "I done bruk yo' mout', you is satisfy, enty?"

Alfred rose from the fray with a triumphant face, his "head bloody but unbowed."

"N'mine," said he through his swollen lips as he took up his burden and moved slowly away. "Anyhow, I git een de fuss' lick."

Language is a curious assortment of incongruities. We say, for example, that a man is in his cups when as a matter of fact the contents of his cups are in him.

A PACKAGE FOR MOTHER.

Lone Jim Had a Tender Spot in His Big Heart.

"In days gone by," said the man with the briar-root pipe as we settled down in the smoking compartment, "I knocked around in the west a great deal, and for a year or two I held out at Rocky Bar, Idaho. I met a young chap there from Massachusetts who'd seen hard times and was on his last legs. He was sick for weeks and weeks before he died. He knew well enough that his life was ebbing away, but he had grit and never uttered a complaint. On several occasions I asked about his friends and offered to write a letter for him but he shook his head and said he had no relations. I had my own opinion on that matter, however. Now and then, as the days dragged away and the grave came nearer, I caught him with such a yearning look on his face as made my heart ache. Sometimes, too, there were tears in his eyes, though he tried to hide them. I felt sure there was a mother or sister at least, but there was a cloud over his life and did not urge him to tell me his story. He was proud-spirited and sensitive, and long enough before he died I knew he would pass away and make no sign. After his death I found a package and a letter he had prepared. In the letter he asked me to forward the package, which was addressed to a woman in Boston. I did not open it, of course, but from the looks of it, I believed it to contain a letter and a photograph.

"I was going over to Boise City," continued the man after a bit, "and I took the package along to mail it there. I happened to be the only passenger in the stage, and the stage happened to be held up. I had $300 sewed into the bottoms of my trousers and $40 in loose money to hand over. In searching me the robber found the package, and though I explained what it was and how I came by it he insisted on carrying it off with him. I offered to give him one hundred dollars to send it to me at Boise City, but he was a surly, ill-tempered brute and gave me no satisfaction. After we got into Boise I was telling the story in the bar-room of a hotel, and when I had finished a man winked for me to step out doors with him. When we were alone he asked:

"Stranger, do you honestly believe that package was for the dead boy's mother?"

"I'm sure of it," said I.

"And what sort of a looking cuss was the robber?"

"Rather tall, reddish hair and whiskers, buckskin leggings, blue eyes, a little lop-shouldered."

"Will you be here for two or three days?"

"Yes, for a week."

He walked off and I did not see him again for three days. Then he came to my room at the hotel and handed me the package and quietly said:

"You see I got it, and I hope you'll forward it on."

"But how did you get it?" I asked.

"Went after it."

"And you—you?"

"Yes, I found the cuss. He wouldn't give it up, and that stain on the paper comes from his blood!"

"I thanked him, but he made very light of what he had done and went away. I remained in Bosie for several days, but did not see him again In the course of a couple of weeks I got down to Mountain City, and just as I reached there a sheriffs' posse brought in my man on a buckboard. He had been riddled with bullets two hours before out on the Rock City road. I think they said he was struck by twelve balls, and was dead before he tumbled over."

"Then your man was—?"

"A road-agent called 'Lone Jim,' and a chap with nerve enough for five men. Queer that he had such a soft spot about him, wasn't it?"

ITS FAME SPREADING.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, May 27—The effects of the regular ways of sickness which sweeps over this portion of the Dominion in the spring are noticable in the increasing amount of the druggists' sales. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy now so well known under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The recovery from Bright's disease of Mr. Arthnr Coley, of Somerset, through their use, an account of which appeared in the papers, gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensible in many Manitoda households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

For Over Fifty Years.

AN OLD AND WELL TRIED REMEDY. Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup has beed used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect snccess. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays the pain, cures the colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Is pleasnt to the taste. Sold by Druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.—m. w. f. wkly—l y

Why Contemplate Suicide?

It is like tempting Province for consumptives to ignore the remarkable remedy known as Miller's Emulsion of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. For any person to die of consumption without trying this remarkable flesh and blood maker, after knowing of its existence, is suicide pure and simple. All that the consumptive patient needs is new blood with which to battle against the destructive forces of the disease. Miller's Emulsion provides new blood in abundance. It is a combination of Norwegian Oil and hypophosphites of lime and soda—a truimph of science. Miller's Emulsion is the great nerve staengthener and blood maker, and cnres Coughs, Colds, Broncaitis, Scrofula and all Lung affections. In Big Bottle, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Experience Has Proved It

A triumph in medicine was achieved when experience proved that Scott's Emulsion would not only stop the progess of Pulmonary Consumption, but by its continued use, health and vigor could be fully estored.

15 Years of Itching.

W. Golding, commercial traveller, 130 Esther St., Toronto, says: "For 15 years I have suffered untold miseries from Itching Piles, sometimes called pin worms. Many and many weeks have I had to lay off the road from this trouble. I tried eight other pile ointments and so-called remedies with no permanent relief to the intense itching and stinging, which irritated by scratching, would bleed and ulcerate. One half a box of Chase's Ointment cured me completely."

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
