War in The Transvaal

Particulars of the Struggle in South Africa.

WHAT A SIEGE TRAIN IS.

Wonderful Engines of War Yet to be Introduced to the Boers.

The announcement recently made that a siege train was being mobilized for service in South Africa no doubt conveyed very little information to the non-military mind, as was shown a few days ago, when a writer in the London Daily Mail was asked, in all sincerity, "What is the difference between a siege train and an armored train?"

As a matter of fact, a siege train is the name applied to the complement of guns, ammunition and store waggons and men employed to conduct a siege. According to the "Siege Artillery Manual," a siege train may consist of any number of divisions, heavy, medium or light, according to the requirements of the service.

A division, as a rule, consists of sixteen pieces of ordnance, exclusive of machine guns; each division requires a personnel consisting of four companies of garrison artillery, with the following staff: One lieutenant-colonel, one adjutant, one quartermaster, two staff-non-commissioned officers, and two staff clerks, in addition to a total of 596 officers, non-commissioned officers, and men.

In the present instance the armament consists of the new 5-inch breech-loading howitzers throwing lyddite shell.

All siege guns and howitzers are fitted with special sights known as "French's sights," which enables them to be laid on an object that is invisible to the gunner. With this advantage it is possible to place the battery behind a hill totally obscured from the enemy's view, and to pound away until either all his guns are dismantled or the fort breached so as to enable the infantry to carry the place by assault.

Siege gunnery has now arrived at such a pitch of perfection that there is absolutely nothing that can withstand the attack of a well-organized and well-equipped siege train. The shell fire is so accurate and searching, and the high explosives so destructive, that it is only a question of time in demolishing any defence that can possibly be erected.

By means of an observing instrument, invented by Captain Tancred, each shot can be accurately observed as bursting so many yards short or over the object thus enabling the necessary corrections to be made for the next round to strike the exact spot desired and ensuring extreme accuracy of fire.

For the Whole Empire.

The announcement that the war office has caused the war fund to be made available for the dependent relatives of colonial volunteers who serve in Africa contains another lesson of imperial unity. The Mansion House Fund a fortnight ago passed £300,000, and must now be well on toward $2,000,000.

000,000. The Transvaal Refugees' fund was on November 24 £116,000. Many of the contributors to the various patriotic subscriptions have given large sums. The largest payment by one man until ten days ago came from Australia. The donor did not allow his name to be known. His gift was ten thousand pounds sterling. This contribution has since been matched by an equal one from Sir Thomas Lip-ton. Many subscriptions have been sent from the most distant parts of the empire and from English people in foreign lands. Kipling's poem has been a great money getter. The London Mail bought it from the author and paid him well for it. Kipling turned the money at once into the fund. The Mail then sold the other papers the right to republish and handed over the proceeds. A paper making firm supplied paper, Sir Arthur Sullivan set the poem to music, and the Mail sold copies of words and music at a shilling, filling orders at the rate of tens of thousands a day. Great singers have sung the poem and given the funds the proceeds. Leading actresses have spoken the piece for the benefit of the fund. From the best theatres to the humblest music hall the poem has brought in money. Two weeks ago the net result was $90,000, and it is now over $100,000, all from one poem which has been much cut up by the critics. The London Telegraph, which is much given to "shilling funds," started a Soldiers' Widows and Orphan's fund, and accepted gifts of a shillings and multiples thereof. A week ago over 1,000,000 shillings or $250,000 had been sent in to the Telegraph office. These are the funds which it is proposed to make available for colonial necessities as well as for those which arise in the mother country.

The Danger of PILES

Too frequently overlooked, Dr. Chase's Ointment a Prompt and Positive Cure.

The suffering caused by the intense itching and burning sensations of piles is only one of the horrors of this disease, for there is always great danger of piles developing into fistula, one of the most disgusting diseases imaginable. Even the great danger and expense of an operation are preferable to running the risk of contracting this most loathsome of diseases.

But there is no necessity for a surgical operation for piles. Dr. Chase's Ointment is guaranteed to cure any case of piles, no matter of how long standing, or how aggravated the case may be, so long as piles have not become fistula.

It is only by rare chance that internal treatment will cure piles. But it matters not from what cause they arise, Dr. Chase's Ointment will at once stop the itching and burning, and soon effect a perfect cure. You can use Dr. Chase's Ointment with fullest assurance that what has cured scores of thousands of cases of piles will cure you. For sale by all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

enormous wealth of her husband and herself—she has never had a single white servant inside doors. Every morning she receives her visitors at the hour of 6 a. m.—this according to her ideas being an advanced hour of the day. She gives much time to the preserving of her garden fruit, which she dries in a coffin that hangs from the kitchen rafters (a very old Boer custom—the spare coffin being ever in readiness should any member of the family chance to die). She deeply resents new-fangled ideas and innovations, and, it is said, quickly put her foot down when her husband, on his return from England, proudly showed his acquisition of one or two civilized habits from those verdome English. Mr. Kruger, unlike General Joubert, has but scant faith in banks or investments, and keeps the bulk of his fortune in some mysterious corner. Tante Anna must know where that long stocking is, for she is the donor of many fat rolls of bank notes to her pet nephews."

Important Auction Sale

I am instructed to sell by Public Auction, at the Court House, in Charlottetown, on Wednesday, December 20th, 1899, at 12 o'clock, noon, that large four story brick building on Grafton Street, now occupied by F Perkins & Co., as a dry goods store.

This building was erected in 1896, and is one of the largest and most attractive store buildings in the city; it is centrally located, being immediately opposite the Post Office; and on the street which most persons from the northern and eastern sections of the country now use when driving into market, and which those from the southern districts will use, after the bridge over the Hillsborough River is built.

This is one of the rare chances to secure property in the very centre of the business part of the city.
