DUBLIN, Oct. 24.

In the Prussian Diet an important and exciting debate is expected on Friday, on the resignation of Count Von Euelenberg, the Minister of Justice, and the continued absence of Bismarck from the Capital. The debate is likely to extend to the constitutional relations between the Cabinet and Diet. A deficit of fifteen million marks is anticipated in the German Exchange. It is reported that Von Euelenberg declines the furlough offered him and insists on the acceptance of his resignation.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.

The Ultramontanes and Moderate Liberals will probably combine with the advanced Liberals, in Friday's debate, to ask for a definite explanation of the extraordinary state of things. It is felt that the Cabinet is a less uniform body than is desirable, and Parliament might as well be vouchsafed some communication respecting the intentions of the Premier. There can be little doubt that Bismarck is dissatisfied with the free trade and direct taxation policy pursued by two of his colleagues, and thinks the Minister of Commerce might have done something to shorten the unparalleled duration of the stagnation of business. The right wing of the Moderate Liberals, though they have cordially co-operated with the existing Government in bringing about the present state of things, are prepared to take the line recommended by the Premier. The opinion begins to prevail among the Moderate Liberals that the country has not capital enough for the maintenance of free trade principles, and that the revenue had not fallen off so sensibly had not indirect taxation been abandoned.

LONDON, Oct. 24.

In addition to the statement that, at the close of yesterday morning's Council, President McMahon plainly informed DeBroglie and Fortoun that the idea of Ministerial changes could not be entertained at the present moment, the Moniteur of Paris says: "The Cabinet will meet the Chamber to vindicate its policy and reply to all attacks and interpellations. McMahon's ultimate course will depend on the attitude of the Senate, and the Senate's action will be guided by the position taken by the majority of the Deputies. Many persons refuse to believe that McMahon and his Ministers intend to continue to struggle beyond the sixth of November. These see that such declarations as the Moniteur's are merely bids for an advantageous compromise, the threat of appealing to the Senate being carefully conditioned, in the last resort, on the position the majority of the Deputies may assume.

PARIS, Oct. 24.

The Constitution states that the Ministers will resign on the refusal of the Chamber to vote for the direct taxes in advance of all other legislation. The President will then form a conciliation ministry, with Dufaure at the head, but if this Cabinet is defeated by the Republicans, then the President intends to dissolve the Chamber, as a Cabinet question and send his resignation to the country by a sort of plebiscite.

The Orleanist organ, Le Soleil, to-day councils McMahon to return completely to the traditions of parliamentary government, and form a ministry in accordance with the will of the nation, as expressed on the 14th inst.

LONDON, Oct. 24.

The Paris correspondent of the Times has information from a member of the Conservative party, who has intimate relations with its leader, that the following plan has been adopted by the Cabinet, and which the Marshal, it is hoped, will sanction:—The Ministry will preside over the second ballots and departmental elections with the vigor it displayed on the voting of Sunday week. The Chamber being unable to get to work before the 12th of November, the Cabinet will appear before the Senate on the 7th with an explanation of the situation and a request for a vote of confidence. On the 8th the Senate will fill up the four life Senatorships, thus swelling the Conservative members. As soon as the Chamber is regularly constituted the Cabinet, backed by the vote of the Senate, will appear before it and ask it to discuss the budget without delay. The Chamber will reply by a vote of censure. The Marshal will immediately, and before the verification of the returns, prorogue the Chamber until the 12th of December, and then what happened last June will be repeated. The Marshal will call on the Senate for a second dissolution, based on the refusal of the Chamber to pass the budget. He will explain the means by which he could meet the expenditures during the first quarter of the year. It is estimated that the four new senators would counterbalance those who might refuse their support, and that dissolution will be voted. In that case the elections will be held in April, in time for the second new Chamber to meet before the opening of the Exhibition. A state of siege will be proclaimed immediately after dissolution, by aid of which and by vigorous action a Conservative majority is reckoned upon. In this way the Ministers of France will be saved from Radicalism. It will be neither submission nor resignation, re-signation nor coup d'etat; it will be victory. The Times's correspondent adds that a state of sieges is a terrible instrument, by which adversaries can be gagged, and if such be really the Government's scheme, everything is possible, except the repose of France and Europe.

PARIS, Oct. 24.

Members of the Senate belonging to the Left, in a manifesto urging elections to continue their efforts to second ballots for Deputies, and at elections for the Councils-General, declare it to be the conviction that the present Cabinet will not face a meeting of the Chambers, but will only retain office long enough to preside over the elections for the Councils-General.

A semi-official note has been published, denying the assertion in a New York journal that the French Government had notified the United States that the participation of Americans in the exhibition could be left to private individuals. The note says that foreigners wishing to participate in the exhibition ought to be represented by a Commissioner specially delegated by their Governments.
