Advisory Service Gaining Support

There's merit in the suggestion to have a potato price advisory service for the farmer, Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae observed yesterday from the premier's office, where he has been acting for some time on behalf of Premier Walter Shaw, who is successfully recuperating from a recent operation.

MacRae suggested that possibly some of the more experienced and reputable dealers could act with the potato marketing board as a committee, to provide this information.

DOING GOOD JOB

Mr. MacRae suggested that the majority of the dealers are doing a really good job, and they are trying to get as much as possible for the island's potatoes. But, he added, if some others cut prices, these men are sometimes forced to do the same to stay in competition.

"We have the staff in the department of agriculture to provide such a service," said the minister, adding that he believes that something may be worked out, though he has not had an opportunity yet to discuss the problem with the marketing board here.

The suggestion arose yesterday during an interview this paper had with Marketing Director Reid Sangster, who believes that such a service would be helpful to the potato industry.

Mr. Sangster said he would be ready to start naming people who were to undertake the market if the policy persisted.

"But," he added, "there have been no reports of this sort of thing in the past few days."

East Prince Area Shaken By Mysterious Explosion

SUMMERSIDE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN

A mysterious explosion-type of shock shook home in the East Prince area about 5:30 o'clock last evening driving many frightened residents out of their homes, curious as to its nature.

The sensation, which sounded like a hollow thud, lasted for about three seconds and then disappeared just as suddenly.

First speculation was that some type of gas tanks had exploded or perhaps a terrible vehicle or airplane accident occurred whose sound might have been dynamic blasting with still others estimating that an aircraft had broken the sound barrier.

A quick check with RCMP and Summerside town police revealed that no reports had been received of explosions in the Summerside area, which ruled out that possibility. No dynamic blasting was said to have been scheduled at the time of the shock.

RCMP Station Summerside reported no reports of missing airplanes or air mishaps, officials further pointed out that no airplanes capable of breaking the sound barrier was aloft within at least a hundred miles.

One resident of Summerside, who had been in town when the blast explosion occurred, stated it was almost exactly the same, shaking the house.

Benjamin J. O'Neil, a resident of Halifax last night could not confirm whether or not an aircraft tremor had been experienced for the shock, speculation now is that it was either a slight aircraft tremor or perhaps
