

philosophy, which may be carried on even in a garden of contracted dimensions, and that they are pleasing as well as curious, those can testify who remember what they have felt on seeing their attempts succeed. 'Amusement reigns,' says Dr. Young, 'man's great demand. Happy were it, if the amusement of managing a garden were more generally relished. It would surely be more conducive to health, and the preservation of our faculties, at an extreme old age, were that time, which is now devoted to indolence or to triding or vicious indulgements, or which is wasted in bacchanalian festivity, spent in the open air, and in active employment—in other words, in the cultivation of a Garden.

SAUERKRAUT, OR SALTED CABBAGE.

It is only 10 or 15 years since this article was introduced on board British ships of war, as an article possessed of valuable anti-scorbutic properties. Experience proving it to be valuable for the above mentioned qualities, it is still retained in their supplies. It has long been used on board of German and Dutch national vessels, as well as merchant ships, the crews of which, even during the longest voyages, remain perfectly free from scorbutic complaints. From time immemorial, it has formed a favourite standing dish to the robust inhabitants of the north of Europe during their long and rigorous winters. It is recommended by cleanness, savor, salubrity and simplicity of preparation. Cabbage should be taken that has sustained two or three white frosts previous to being gathered; sound, compact heads should be chosen, the green and imperfect leaves should be carefully removed, each head divided, and the stalk cut out; then sliced fine with an instrument made for the purpose; a suitable tub, cylindrical shape, should be prepared. After cutting, it should be salted with the proportion of a pint of fine salt to the bushel of cabbage, well intermingled, which may then be gradually packed in the tub, pressing it continually with an appropriate wooden rammer. It should then be covered with a circular board, two inches less in diameter than the tub, and a weight of 20 or 30 lbs. placed on it. In two weeks it will undergo the acetous fermentation, when it will be fit for use. Attention should be paid it every week, to skim the froth from the brine, to wash the board, stone, and sides of the tub. When Sauerkraut is taken out of the tub to cook, it should always be washed with fresh water and cooked without the addition of any other vegetable. A piece of fat pork—beef—or a fat goose, enclosed with the Sauerkraut in a close tin vessel, and stewed three hours, forms an excellent dish, and is the more valuable as it can be had at the seasons of the year, and under circumstances that vegetables cannot be procured.
