Conservatives To Leave Coalition In Newsprint Prices Looms

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 (CP)—It now seems certain the Progressive Conservative Party will withdraw from Manitoba's Coalition Government at the end of this month. Presumably it will take over from the C.C.F. as the official opposition.

General Increase In Newsprint Prices Looms

A general increase in the price of newsprint loomed as a possibility today following an increase announced by one Canadian company. The Powell River Co., Ltd., big west coast producer located about 75 miles north of Vancouver, said Thursday its price is going up by $10 a ton, effective Oct. 16.

Cautious Swiss Hope For Peace, Prepare For War

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 13 (Reuters)—Switzerland is moving forward with a "common sense" defence program that leaves nothing to chance. Huge food stocks have been laid in, modern weapons have been bought, and now the construction of civilian air raid shelters has been made compulsory in the little neutrality through two world wars.

France Asks U.S. For Huge Military Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—France was reported to have asked the United States today to provide a total of $3,170,000,000 in military aid for the French armed forces during 1951. American officials said France was told the request is too big but that some money will be allocated quickly.

The WEEK at S. D. U.

Few people ever stop to think that St. Dunstan's is like any city or town in as much as it is a community. The reason why our college has never been styled a community is probably because few regard going to college as a vocation, or a way of life; and this, indeed, it is; and this truth must be accepted if a true education is ever to be acquired. The most significant fact which permits us to boast that college life is as much a community as any city, town, or village, is the way friendships originate spontaneously.

It is obvious that one of the first things the student does on his return to college is to renew acquaintances of previous years. But what about the new student? Before he knows the names of most of the faculty members, he has been welcomed in a way not often realized, namely, by becoming fast friends with classmates, roommates, or tablemates.

All this is possible because we are a small college, and because we are a small college it is not a difficult task to get to know everyone on the campus. Close contact with one another contributes more than we may realize to our education. So you see why we call attention to the fact that St. Dunstan's is very much a community, a community in which we live in the closest possible comradeship with our fellow students. It should help us to understand better the necessity of the brotherhood of man, and to urge its practice in the communities where we shall make our permanent homes.

There is one very important item which has been neglected by this column, an item which plays a distinct role in S. D. U. tradition. No mention has yet been made of the canteen management for 1950-51. The canteen manager is probably the most patronized man on the campus, with the disciplinary powers, from whom permission to town is obtained running him a close second. This year the manager of the canteen is amiable St. Clair "Smokey" Gallant, who is definitely against the credit system of business. The general manager is faced this year with a problem never before faced by a canteen manager. Before the new building was erected, a favourite stopping-place for students, particularly for those from Dalton and Memorial Halls, before leaving the Main Building, was the canteen. Now as they leave the new dining-room they proceed to their own residences, and thus by-pass "Smokey's" shop. The problem of enlarging the canteen and of placing it in a more strategic position is being tackled by the Students' Union, and soon "Smokey" may have a more up-to-date business establishment.

This week as you have probably learned from various press reports St. Dunstan's welcomed its second European student to the campus. This year the St. Dunstan's branch of International Students Service was delighted to be able to bring from Europe a Czechoslovakian girl, Miss Kristina Moysiakyha. In her short time with us so far, she
