ST. ANDREW'S DINNER. A Pleasant and Successful Celebration of the Anniversary of Scotland's Patron Saint

Scotchmen and Their Sons to the Front. The annual dinner given by the Caledonian Club in celebration of St. Andrew's Day, was exceedingly pleasant and successful, fully up to the standard of former years. Among those who were unavoidably and regretfully absent were His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, the United States Consul, Lieut. Colonel Irving, Mr. A. C. McDonald, M. P., Alexander Martin, M. P., Hon. D. Gordon, and Major Weeks. But a goodly company sat down to the festive board. The president of the Club, Mr. James McIsaac, Editor of the Herald, presided, with the Chief, Mr. T. A. McLean, at his right, and the Vice President, Mr. Robert Campbell, acted as croupier. The dinner was a good one, well served, and it reflected great credit upon the Hotel Davies, the haggis being remarkably good. We quote the menu:

- SOUPS: Scotch Broth, Green Sea Turtle
- FISH: Island Salmon a la Victoria
- ENTREES: Aloyau of Beef, Parisienne Potato, Chicken Saute a la Chasseur
- JOINTS: Roast Sirloin of Beef, Horse Radish, Roast Turkey, Chestnut Dressing, Boiled Ox Tongue, Baked Ham
- REMOVE: Scotch Haggis, Oat Cake
- VEGETABLES: Cream Potato, Parsnips Cauliflower, Turbau Squash
- GAME: Potted Hare, Roast Partridge with Bread Saute
- ENTREMENTS: Plum Pudding, Wine Sauce, Peach Pudding, Gooseberry Tart, Lemon Pie, Wine Jelly, Sponge Cake, Scotch Cake, Cheese, Celery, Crackers
- FRIED: Apples, Oranges, Grapes, Stuffed Figs, Kaffias, Tea, Coffee au Kirsch

The toasts—which were honored in cold water, as pure and sparkling as ever gushed from Highland springs, were well received and responded to in short eloquent speeches. "The Day an' a' was hoer it" drew from W. S. Stewart, Q. C., a warm eulogium on the Scottish race scattered over many lands. Hon. Senator McDonald, responded ably of the Governor General and Parliament of Canada, while the Lieutenant Governor and the Local Legislature elicited an appropriate and lively speech from our new Premier, the Hon. A. B. Warburton. Justice was done to the Land of the Heather, which was graphically described by the Rev. David Sutherland, who also spoke of the triumphs of Brain and Bravery won by the sons of auld Scotland; and the Hon. David Laird, P. C., spoke enthusiastically of the capabilities and prospects of "Our Own Canadian Home." His Worship the Mayor and Councillor Johnson responded for our Civic Government, commenting upon the high credit of the corporation and the permanent street, Victoria Park roadway, and other improvements that are being carried forward. In the temporary absence of the Attorney General Mr. D. A. McKinnon, L. L. B. and M. L. A., of Georgetown, responded briefly for the Bench and Bar. Dr. Taylor, re-ponding to the Medical Profession, took high ground on behalf of his fellow physicians and surgeons, in Scotland particularly, and throughout the world, contending that it was no lighter to try to save life than to take it, and that the triumphs of arms and arts and law were as nothing to the alleviation of pain and the prolongation of life resulting from the efforts of the medical profession. He was ably and eloquently seconded by Dr. Courroy—the old adage about doctors differing not applying in this case,—and also by Dr. Kelly and Dr. H. D. Johnson, C. C. The toast to the military and naval forces of the Empire was responded to by Lieut. Colonel Moore, Lieut. Stewart and Lieut. McDonald, who ably defended the position of those whose duty it is to fight the battles of their country. "Sister

Societies," drew from Mr. P. McCourt, Editor of the Watchman, a happy speech about the cultivation of national sentiment and practical charity as practiced by these societies. Mr. W. L. Cotton and A. McNeill, Esq., responded for the Press, without the aid of which, it was contended, Scotchmen, with all their brains and bravery, could never have obtained position and renown throughout the world; and the names of Franklin, Howe and Whelan were mentioned as those of members of the Press who had made discoveries in science and done statesmanlike work to compare more than favorably with the achievements of men in other professions. Mr. McNill was exceedingly happy in his remarks, and elicited loud applause when he announced that he had been all but fifty years a member of the Caledonian Club. The toast to the ladies was briefly and fittingly responded to by Attorney General McDonald who claimed the highest place of all for the last and most perfect work of the Maker. A voluntary toast, proposed by Mr. Duncan McNeill, was drunk to the honor of Lieut. Colonel Irving—one among the many highly respected "absent members." "Our Chief" was briefly and appropriately replied to by Chief McLean; and "Our Host and Hostess," by Mr. Davies. The speeches were varied by songs capably rendered by Mr. J. H. McDonald and Mr. W. S. McKie. Special mention ought to be made of the beautiful song, "Highland Mary," sung by the octogenarian member of the Club, Robert Lawson, Esq., and of the accompaniments played and the lively "after dinner speech" rendered by Mr. Joseph. The company parted in "the wee sma' hours ayant the twal," singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen."

The tablet was erected by the family of the late premier. It was to have been unveiled with formal ceremonies during the visit of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, but the condition of the interior of the church at the time prevented this being done. There was consequently no formal ceremony, the plate being placed in position by the contractors.

CALENDAR.

The Plant Steamship Company have issued a calendar for 1898, one of which has been forwarded THE EXAMINER. The figures are large and clear, and can be easily read across a room. ### WANTING OWNERS.

A horse and truck wagon was left tied to a post in the vicinity of Pleasant Street all last night. The morning a resident of the neighborhood had the shivering animal removed to a stable. The December number of The Canadian Home Journal is particularly interesting, and well and profusely illustrated. The cover and first two pages are devoted to the town of Barrie, Ont. It is prettily sketched, and gives eleven beautiful views of the town and surrounding scenery. In the fancy work page are illustrations and directions for a complete set of table linen, in holly design, any or all of which would be most suitable for handsome Christmas gifts, and any piece of which can be obtained through the Journal. There is a quaintly written poem, covering a full page, by William Van Buren Thompson of song fame, elaborately and artistically illustrated by Paul Caron. And possibly most important of the Journal's contents is a page on the newly organized Canada Club which, as the idea unfolds in each number of the Journal, will be of special interest to every Canadian woman. The current issue also contains some receipts for delicious candies, with full directions how to make them at home; a page by Mrs. Joy on the Christmas dinner menu; Christmas stories and games for the children; the latest fashions in mid winter furs and fowls; three pages of music, and a number of other interesting articles, all beautifully illustrated.
