

ELECTRONICS COURSE BEING HELD

Made possible for the first time in Prince Edward Island is a course presently being carried on in Charlottetown for students who have a desire to make electronics a career. Supplying the training and supervision in the Radio Electronic Television School which began courses last December and at present has an enrollment of 35 students. Each class attends at least one night a week where they learn practical side of the work. The remaining part of the course is done through home study. R. E. T. S. is one of the world's largest training organizations in this field and was established in the Maritimes in 1956. It is reported that students taking the course have found em-

Outlines Points Leading To Educational Opportunities

As a followup to the recommendation of the Canadian Education Conference in which it was hoped that equal educational opportunities would be made available to children in all parts of the country, K. A. Parker last night spoke to the Home and School Association of Queen Charlotte High.

Mr. Parker felt that three major factors were to be dealt with if any such recommendation were to become a reality. The first mentioned was that of a higher status of the teacher in the community. He believed that much of the prestige which in former years had accompanied the teaching profession was now lacking.

Looking for jobs as a mechanic were refused employment recently in Charlottetown because they lacked the minimum grade 10 education which the automobile industry demanded for such work. The complexity of modern equipment of today demands that minimum, he said.

Mr. Parker felt that something more effective should be done on behalf of the retarded children of the Province. He said a retarded child had two strikes on him in any event without the deprivation of a course of instruction for him. The meeting which was well attended was chaired by the President of Queen Charlotte High School Home and School Association, Robert Giggey.

No. Rustico Man Reports Still Chance Of Seal Hunt

Mr. Emmett Gallant, manager of the North Rustico Cannery Company, said last night that there was still a chance that the seal herds would reappear close in along the Province's North Shore. He said that the wind had shifted to the north, but it was not possible to tell whether or not the ice was drifting in due to fog conditions.

Mr. Gallant also stated that if the seals would reappear there was 70 to 100 fishermen ready to go after them. The seals were discovered Wednesday and Thursday by air patrols.

The north wind suddenly veered to west Friday afternoon, and blew ice floes carrying the largest seal herd ever seen on the North Shore of Prince Edward Island out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence beyond reach of small boats.

An "Old" Book For "New" Canadians
This week eight European men and women were granted Canadian citizenship in an impressive ceremony at the Court House in Charlottetown. Some of these "new" Canadians have come from countries where there is little or no freedom of thought or religion as we know it. As they swore their allegiance to Canada and the Queen, on Bibles which had been presented to them a few moments before by the Bible Society, we recalled the words spoken by the Archbishop of Canterbury to Queen Elizabeth on her coronation five years ago in Westminster Abbey: "Our gracious Queen... we present you with this book, the most valuable thing that this world affords. Here is wisdom; this is the Royal Law; these are the lively oracles of God." Do we as Christians recognize the great value of the Book? Do we value it sufficiently to read it daily? Do we do our share in seeing that it is made available to all men and women regardless of color, race or creed? The Bible Society is our agent in the distribution of the Word and as such needs our interest and support.

Doubts Hoax In Bottles Case

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A university psychologist who investigated the "bouncing bottle" case in Seaford, N.Y., said Friday he has all but ruled out the possibility of a hoax.

Members of the James Herrmann family during recent weeks have reported that bottles in their corks pop off their containers and home bounce off their shelves, corks pop off their containers and figurines suddenly fly through the air—all without apparent reason. Dr. Gaither Pratt, assistant director of the Duke University's parapsychology laboratory, who visited the Herrmann home in Seaford recently, said if a hoax is involved it would have to involve all members of the family.
