

the course of the century). The biggest initiative however is their toying with the flat tax. What's a flat tax? You, me, Wally Welfare, Parry Pogie, and Monty Millionaire all pay the same tax rate regardless of their yearly income (this would probably be anywhere between 11% and 17% of total income). Now is that the American way or what?

Prairie Vote

On Thursday Sept 16th Saskatchewanese go to the polls. Longtime NDP Premier Roy Romanow should win this election. Why?? Ever since he pulled his province back from the debt (what's that?/ The Visa and Amexs of government lending said no more) and has been able to balance his budget while lowering taxes. That would sound pretty good around here.

On Tuesday Sept 21st Manitobans vote as well. Expect incumbent Tory Premier Gary Filmon to win reelection in a tight race with the NDP. Both votes are unusual in that it is harvest time and traditionally elections have been avoided.

"If you want negative karma, go to a Marilyn Manson concert."

Why are these races important? First it is the continuing trend of arrogance from the government to the people in their timing to have an election. Second is that, at least in Saskatchewan, the rise of the Saskatchewan Party reenforces a trend that has seen the rise of regional parties. I have little time or empathy for these narrow regional parties that tend to focus on divisive issues. If you want negative karma, go to a Marilyn Manson concert. Thirdly, is that Conservatism is rising again. I see no virtue in this. Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia are on this track and I doubt that this is a positive trend. Stay tuned for more...
