Mr. Joe Sinnott has finished his large barn and it is a credit to vicinity.

In the past few years four lovely barns have been built here, with Mr. Eph. Malone leading the way with one more than a hundred feet long and modern in every way.

Mr. Ed Ryan has quite a flock of Christmas dinners in his field at present, and will keep them for some time yet to fatten up.

Mr. Pat Scully, who is a patient in the Provincial Sanatorium, was a visitor here recently for a few days with his brother Joe. He has returned to the San again for further treatment.

There is plenty of sickness here at present. Some families are all down with measles, especially the children, and at other homes a number are suffering severe colds and flu.

Miss Norma Sinnott of the Bank of Commerce staffs City, is spending part of her vacation here with her parents at present. The last week she hopes to spend in Halifax with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eldershaw were Sunday visitors to St. Charles on October 5th, visiting Mr. Eldershaw's mother, Mrs. Gallant.

Something new has come to this vicinity, and something that is needed, McKenzie's taxi, owned and operated by Ad. McKenzie, proprietor of the Morell Garage.

Bowling has started in the alleys in the community hall. Later when the season gets in full swing, there will be some fifteen teams in action.

Mr. Valentine MacDonald was a visitor here from the City for one day recently on a shooting trip. His old home is in Bristol.

Young Joe Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ryan, had the misfortune to fall over a fence he was climbing on recently, breaking his arm below the elbow. He still has his arm in a cast and will be that way for some time yet.

Some of the schools that had only six weeks vacation in the summer are closed for two weeks now, for fall vacation, and potato picking. Bristol School remains open from September 1st.

Mr. John Francis arrived here October 2nd to visit his daughter Betty, Mrs. William Eldershaw, whom he had not seen for twenty-five years. Mr. Francis came from New Brunswick and this is the first time he has ever been here. Strangely enough, Mrs. Eldershaw did not know her father on his arrival, as she was a child when they last saw each other.

Friends and relatives here re-joice to learn of the serious illness of Constable Reginald Burns of the City Police Force, who is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital suffering from an attack of pneumonia. Bristol is his home port, and everyone hopes to see him around very shortly.

Mr. Frank Weed, who arrived here some time ago from Pennsylvania, U.S.A., to train dogs for hunting, has in the vicinity of forty dogs here at present and has sent out a call for pigeons for the traps. He is residing at Mr. Earl Drake's farm, that has been closed for some time, and several doctors on hunting trips from the U.S.A. have arrived here with trailers to live in during their stay.

One farmer here reports he took two live hogs to the city on Monday, September 29, and the price he received when figured up did not pay for their feed. Pork is down to the farmers but plenty high for those who buy it.

Mr. G. Nolan, who believes in getting things done in time, has already cut and hauled home his next year's supply of wood, and looking over the pile one would guess there is more than twenty cords in his yard ready for the saw.

Her friends are sorry to learn of the poor health of Mrs. Matilda Eldershaw at her home at Red Head Shore where she has spent the summer months. She is getting along in the evening of life now, and will move to the village to reside shortly.

Mr. Bennett, who has been absent for more than a year, arrived back here recently and opened up his cannery for custom canning. His friends are pleased to see him back. He goes to Summerside to reside around Christmas time.

When a group of tourists from this vicinity visited Ottawa recently and called on a group of Island boys and girls in the City, they were surprised to find them reading the Bristol column in the Guardian. They long for home news, they report, and always get the Guardian and look for the Bristol column.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham have arrived from Boston to spend a month with Mrs. Annie Anderson in the harbour district. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham are well remembered here where they took up farming some years ago. They moved back to the U.S.A. quite a few years back, and now their friends are pleased to see them spend a month in this vicinity.

Her friends will learn with regret of the passing of Mrs. Will Hogan, at her home in Medford, Mass., recently. She was Alice Redmond in single life, and a school teacher, before getting married to U.S.A. and the business has increased to such an extent the property has enlarged five times its original size and the staff of two young men has grown to more than thirty at times. The new section will be ready for business late this year.

Their home was a stopping and gathering place for everyone who came from this vicinity. Two sisters survive Mrs. Hogan, one here and one in the State of Maine.

Despite the very dry season farmers here have done a lot of ploughing as they say this work must be done in time, dry or wet season. Most of the work is done by tractor ploughs and speaking of the ploughing matches with tractors, some of the old timers still recall the late Pius Walsh. In this vicinity he was acclaimed the greatest single plough man the Island ever knew, for turning even sod in the long fields on his farm. A son Joe, still on the job, instead, no doubt can well remember his father and his ploughing that attracted everyone who came this way, long before tractors were even a dream.

When Mr. William MacDonald retires from the C. N. R. section crew here in November he will no doubt move to the City to reside, where eight of his large family make their home at present. Mrs. MacDonald and four of the family, still at home, will go to Summerside to reside on other sections, some years in Souris, but the longest time has been on the home section here. He has walked thousands of miles winter and summer over the track and served as foreman at different times, but turned down the chance for foreman on some other section away from home. The afternoon and evening of life is sweeter at home, he says.

The new wing, 26 by 30, will be used for offices and display rooms for new lines such as plumbing supplies and electrical goods and for other use as the management sees fit. Mr. MacDonald served part of his time on other sections, some years in Souris, but the longest time has been on the home section here. He has walked thousands of miles winter and summer over the track and served as foreman at different times, but turned down the chance for foreman on some other section away from home. The afternoon and evening of life is sweeter at home, he says.
