SPORT OF KINGS

King's County Columnist Is Annoyed By Refereeing

Parkdale Irving Flyers eliminated the Souris Legion in two straight games to win the Prince Island Intermediate "B" finals. Both games were close, rough, hard-fought encounters. Scores in these games were 3-1, and 6-4.

The latter score was of the game played in Souris and which was protested by Souris. Their protest was denied and the series awarded to Parkdale. We were present at this game, and find it hard to believe that their protest was rejected. In their protest, Souris gave three reasons for objecting to the Parkdale victory. We can see the reason for the first two not holding water, but we certainly think the third reason was more than valid.

In the first period, Fan MacIntyre of Souris scored. However, the Parkdale net was out of position, and although Souris players claimed it was deliberate we can well understand the referee not counting the goal. In the third period Parkdale scored what seemed, to the Souris team, an offside goal. Since this is a referee's decision, we can understand it being rejected.

Early in the third period, Souris scored. The referee insisted that a Souris player was in the goal crease and would not count the goal. With the goalie and two other players sprawled in the crease, we don't know where he found the room for a Souris player to get in the crease, but, he did. Not one other person in the rink, including this writer, saw a Souris player in the crease.

At this point, if anyone has the idea that we were dissatisfied with the refereeing, they would be one hundred percent correct. In a recent column we stated that we were against home town referees in all cases, but especially after the first rounds were over. We think the AAU goofed quite badly by not sending up a neutral referee and that that they goofed even more when they rejected the Souris protest. We will probably be labelled as poor losers by all that's above, but, in all sincerity, and under the circumstances, we don't feel that this is true. We feel that Souris got a raw deal, and this is our way of stating that fact.

GIANT STRIDES

Basketball has taken giant strides in the Souris since last fall. After a few years without the game, it has staged a tremendous comeback. The comeback two Souris teams are registered for Island playdowns. The Juniors and the High School have served notice of competing for Island honors. As regards the former, we don't know if any other Junior teams are entered, but, in regards to the latter, the Souris team will have lots of competition.

The first rounds of the Souris Women's Bowling League finish offs are over, and we win the jackpot. We looked for two upsets and got them. The Go-getters and Snowflakes upended the Pinch-hitters and the Yankees. The Pixies knocked off the Left-overs as predicted, and drew the bye into the finals, as predicted. The semi-finals are a best of three affair, and we see the Go-getters coming out on top, if they at full strength. Their ace bowler is not available at the present time, and if she is not back in time, the Snowflakes will emerge victorious.

This week is the last week in the Men's League schedule. And although the six teams in the playoffs have been decided, the final standings won't be known until the final game is played. That's how close it is. The six teams that will be contesting league honors are: Bachelors, Night Hawks, Nobody Wants Us, Federals, Perfectionists, and Bankers.

HUNTERS' CORNER

Hungarian Partridge Take On Real Change Of Habits

Looking back over the years I wonder how it was that so few of us understood and appreciated the vast store of general knowledge that the Late Premier J. Walter Jones possessed. In the late thirties and early forties when it looked as if the introduced Hungarian partridge were in process of over running the province, in some districts as many as three and four coveys on a single farm, I mentioned this thought to him. He replied quite casually, as if it were common knowledge: "Introduced species quite often react that way but their population will eventually level off. . .they'll not overrun the province". How correct he was. He also was a believer that it was poor policy to interfere with Nature's scheme of things. We found that our when skunks and raccoons were introduced. Skunks in particular certainly upset Nature's schedule with respect to this province. Take the common term for instance. Before the skunk arrived they nested on the north shore dunes in thousands. One had to exercise care in walking for fear of stepping on their eggs or young. A few years after the skunks took over I walked those same dunes and fern nests were few and far between but skunks had left beaten trails in the sand. Skunks have also decimated the ranks of our bank swallows to a mere skeleton of their former numbers. After all who are we to criticize the skunk when we throw deadly sprays around as if they were perfume. We're just taking over where the skunk left off.

I have just received a report of the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Fish and Game Association held in Halifax. The guest speaker was Dr. Donald C. Dodds, wildlife biologist for the New Brunswick department of lands and forests. The topic being done by Neil Van Nostrand on pheasant and upland game birds was discussed by Dr. Dodds and he stated that the carrying capacity of the range in some areas will depend upon improved habitat. Further restocking has not increased the number of birds and native birds decreased in numbers when areas were restocked," Dr. Dodds said.

Deer Herd Declines: Dr. Dodds said that deer was an introduced species and as expected, reached a peak and started to decline. This peak was first reached in the western part of the province, he said, and later spread to Cape Breton where the decline has only recently started. During these peak years the range was seriously affected and deer will never again be as plentiful. It is expected that they will increase somewhat, however, and the carrying capacity of the winter range, coupled with weather conditions will, to a large extent, determine the size of the herd."

The Hungarian partridge, introduced into this province 33 years ago, have adapted themselves to their new home and have undergone a complete change of habits at this time. They couldn't be driven into the woods and would fly around wooded terrain rather than fly over it. Their nesting habits have also been changed now. They are as much at home in woodlot or swamp as they formerly were in the open fields. If they were possessed of a hind toe they'd be the same as Ruffed grouse. Today one finds them in swamps and swales and on abandoned farms in process of being reclaimed by nature. In due time Nature may equip them with hind toes and then they'll be real natives. Hunting them in open farmland is this age is considered a waste of time by hunters in the know.

POPULATION DECLINE

This change of habitat will result in population decline as the severity of food will be more of a problem. When they feed almost exclusively in stubble, clover, potato and turnip fields there was a full course banquet table available from daybreak until deep dark. Our Huns will never again regain their former density in numbers but we may expect a considerable increase over their present population. The days when the coveys practically wore a placard around their necks with a sign printed thereon: "Help yourselves boys . . .don't be shy" are gone forever.

We found out the hard way what Dr. Dodds has recently stated that the carrying capacity of the range in some areas will depend upon improved habitat and not a restocking program. Nova Scotia restocking enthusiasts also had to find out the hard way. I talked to several Nova Scotia Fish and Game members about their big restocking program they had lined up for their Annapolis Valley . . . the home of Nova Scotia pheasants.

I told them about how our venture into the restocking field had back-fired but it fell upon deaf ears. They also had to find out the hard way. There is this difference however, they have a few pheasants in comparison with what they did have. . .we have practically zero.

Just a note of caution with respect to the recommendation passed by the southern Kings Fish and Game Association that the Cardigan Causeway be lowered. There was good trout fishing in this Causeway until the end of June despite the fact we experienced a record breaking summer and fall with respect to heat and scant rainfall. I have driven past this Causeway in June last year when the Armada of fishing boats in action reminded me of the Grand Fleet at anchor in the Firth of Forth during the 1st Great War. Such a step requires deep thought and study by experts along this line before the die is cast. Think it over boys.

Al Mutch Leads At Rifle Shoot

Al Mutch of Charlottetown got back into his winning ways, when he captured the top honors in class one, at this week's competition run off by the Charlottetown Civilian Rifle Club at the RCMP ranges.

Al with a score of 99 out of a possible 100, nosed out Wendell MacLean by a one point margin. In class two a veteran and a teen-ager each managed to register 97, with Roy Coles of Milton, getting the nod over Ronnie Clark, Winsloe, by having six of his 10 shots in the "X" ring against five for Clark.

It was also necessary to go to the "X" count to break another tie for first place in class three, when Dave Johnston, Charlottetown, and B. Dickieson, New Glasgow, both came up with 96's, with Johnston getting the nod from the judges. In class four, Fred Hooper, Milton, took top spot when his 83 gave him a threepoint edge over J. Doyle.
