Williams' Two-run Homer In Seventh Gives Vics 3-3 Draw With S'side

Summerside fans were treated to the best exhibition of baseball they have seen this season when the local intermediates held the Charlottetown Victorias to a 3-all draw yesterday evening.

The contest produced just about all that the grand old game has to offer. The pitching was excellent with both hurlers, Lefty McAleer of Charlottetown and Ray Arsenault of Summerside going the full distance and each showing ability to bear down in the pinches. Harry Crossman nabbed Ryan's line drive in the third inning when two were on, tagged first base and pegged to Clow at second base to retire the side with a well executed triple play.

Tic Williams provided yet another highlight when he caught one of Arsenault's high fast ones and drove it over the fence in right field for a home run, driving in a run ahead of him to tie the score. There were many other fielding gems during the game which are too numerous to mention.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

MANY CONDITIONS CAUSE SYMPTOMS SIMILAR TO APPENDICITIS

"More than twenty-four serious conditions may cause pain on the right side of the abdomen. For example, such pain occasionally occurs in diseases of the brain, pneumonia, and pleurisy at lower surface of right lung. An inflamed and distended gall bladder, kidney colic, inflammation of the intestines or acute obstruction of the intestine may produce symptoms similar to apendicitis."

Other conditions which may be taken for appendicitis are typhoid; tuberculous abscess of the loin, the groin, or right hip; perforation or breaking through of a stomach ulcer; lead colic; acute inflammation of the pancreatic gland; hysteria, and just the fear of appendicitis."

I am quoting Dr. Louis M. Leibow, New York, in Hygeia.

Despite the large number of conditions which can cause pain on the right lower side of the abdomen and thus be mistaken for appendicitis, it is only good sense to consider the condition as appendicitis until an examination by a physician shows it to be one of these other conditions.

Is there any warning, any symptoms that occur before the pain in the right side appears that may help the patient and the physician also in knowing that an attack of appendicitis may be on its way?

Symptoms which should serve as a warning include nausea, indigestion, vomiting, loss of appetite, flatulence (gas pressure), a sense of heaviness and soreness and tenderness over the lower right side. In a great many cases the dull heavy pain is right in the pit of the stomach, remains there sometimes for hours, and then gradually shifts down to the lower right side of the abdomen.

In many ailments—gall bladder colic, ulcer of stomach or intestine, kidney colic— there is both the medical and surgical treatment, but Dr. Leibow points out once more.

"There is no medical treatment for appendicitis. The use of any physic, no matter how mild, may tend to rupture the acutely inflamed appendix and lead to dangerous complications."

Sometimes when a physic has been taken there is relief from pain for a while because the appendix has been ruptured and the patient believes he has cleared up the cause of the pain, whereas he has only started dangerous complications — peritonitis. Peritonitis requires immediate surgery and this may be too late to save his life.
