

JOSH MARTINEZ
The Hali Hundred

I flipped my wig after hearing this CD. Really, its true. For all you unbelievers, Josh is a hip-hop hippy, and he was recently signed to the prestigious label Anticon Records. "Big Mouths," "Outlook," and "La Rambla" are three of the neatest tunes preserved on a slab of plastic. The Hali Hundred is a limited release, so you're not going to find it in stores anywhere around here. So, if you want a copy, email <josh-martinez30@hotmail.com>.

LIVERPOOL SOUND COLLAGE
Paul McCartney, Super Furry Animals, and The Beatles
Hydra

This bizarre experiment in found sound harkens back to the spirit of McCartney's progressive explorations near the collapse of the Beatles. Merging snippets of Beatles studio conversations with sound effects and beats, Liverpool Sound Collage is an album's worth of material that is probably what the Fab Four would be using for hidden tracks, if they were a young band coming out of Liverpool today. But don't expect to find any unearthed Beatles' songs, or pop tunes on this album. McCartney and the Super Furry Animals stick with a scrap book formula of cutting and pasting sounds together, and it works on a sonic level in a few places thanks to some phat beats. Beatlemaniacs will find this album a challenging listen, and should probably avoid it the same way they should avoid retrospectives of Pete Best.

ROBBIE WILLIAMS
Sing When You're Winning

Williams' second album is sure to out shine his debut album The Ego Has Landed. With more of an edge, it is clear that Williams is trying to break away from his eighties boy band roots.

If you loved songs such as "Millennium" and "Angel", Sing When You're Winning will not disappoint you. This album also includes a song in Spanish and one in French.

HiStory

This week, we decided to dedicate this section to the historical figures events, etc. It sounded pretty good to us, and we got to entitle it the same thing as that Michael Jackson album.

OUTKAST

Rosa Parks

JMAMA: "They may have gotten sued because it wasn't historical but the song was bangin"

HERMAN S HERMITS

Henry VIII

JC: "I can relate to this song because I got married to the widow next door too."

WOODY GUTHRIE

Jesus Christ

ROC: "This is a highly political statement that really gets to you. Guthrie was the best."

BOB DYLAN

John Wesley Harding

KJB: "The finest most entrancing album ever recorded wherein Dylan explores the myths of the old west, the promise of a new frontier and angels and outlaws and presits, oh my."

XTC

Living Through Another Cuba
JC: "This little song about the cold war never fails to make me want to boogie."
