Princess Elizabeth Land, in the heart of the Antarctic and discovered in 1941, was named in honor of H.R.H. shortly after her fifth birthday.

"Dust Devils" is the name given to the whirling column of sand that enfolds desert travellers with lightning-like suddenness. The only escape is to lie flat on the ground till the column passes.

Although the sun and the earth are 92,000,000 miles apart we still can feel the warmth of the former planet.

It takes from three to ten years for the tea plant to come into full production. Once it does however, the tender young leaves called "flush" can be picked once a week. The flush is made up of two leaves and a head and are plucked together, between thumb and forefinger.

The first coins were made in Rome in 269 B.C. But money was minted 800 years B.C. These early coins sometimes took the shape of rings, which were cast in clay moulds.

The earliest English mints existed before the coming of the Romans in 55 B.C.

Silver coins have been used for as long as 70 years without showing too much wear. As for copper coins, these have grown thin only after a century of circulation.

Cocoa leaves were first introduced into Europe by Christopher Columbus in 1494. For almost a century afterward the Spaniards kept chocolate making a closely guarded secret. Even after the cocoa drinking habit had spread all over Europe, only the rich could afford the price of the drink.

The cocoa tree is unique in that one may see buds, flowers and pods growing at the same time. These trees can be grown from seeds or from seedlings. They bear the fourth year and continue to yield till they are 30 years old.

Today the food of the Mexican gods and the money of the Aztecs, is used all over the world. Sound travels faster through liquids than through air, and faster still through solids. That's why the early Indians used to place their ear to the ground in order to hear the approach of an enemy or a friend, which they would not be able to hear in the ordinary way.

Polar bears are born in the heart of winter season, and spend the first two months of their lives in their snow covered caves, cared for only by their mother.

They get their first peep at the world outside in March, when the Northern Lights are at their best. A little later the sun appears, and the youngsters live in a land of continuous sunlight during the rest of the summer.

Over a quarter of the total of the world's wool comes from the land down under. Roughly about 1,000 million pounds, taken from the backs of the country's 100 million sheep.

An extinct bird known as the "Archeopteryx" had a tail like a lizard and a finger at the end of each wing. This strange bird had teeth and ate fish. Like the ostrich, it was incapable of flight, but was a good swimmer.

Ice or frozen water takes up more space than liquid water, in the proportion of about 11 to 10. That's why pipes burst during very cold spells.

In 1902, Mount Pelee, in the West Indies, blew its top and a whole town of over 30,000 persons lost their lives.

The greatest eruption in history was the day Krakaur lost its crown. Entire islands in the Pacific disappeared beneath the sea, and vast clouds of smoke and ash were carried as far as Africa and America.

The most valuable carpets are still woven by hand, and the best glass is still wrought by the glass-blower.
