Pioneer Oceangrapher Dies At Port Of Spain

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (AP)—Dr. William Beebe, a naturalist, author and well-known pioneer underwater explorer, died Monday night at the tropical research station he founded here. He was 84.

Beebe presented the station to the New York Zoological Society in 1945 and was made its director. He made his first trip to the Caribbean in 1908 and later became an authority on the region's underwater life.

Nearly 100 animals and birds were named after Dr. Beebe. He published 22 widely - translated books and hundreds of scientific papers.

Dr. Beebe was best known to the general public in the 1930s through newsreels showing the scholarly - looking oceanographer encased in a 2¼ - ton steel ball preparing to descend to the unknown depths of the sea.

His drop to the floor of the Atlantic off Bermuda in 1934, a depth of 3,028 feet, was a record that stood for nearly 20 years.

A native of Brooklyn, Beebe became associated with the Bronx Zoo as curator of birds with the opening of the zoo in 1899.

The following year he began a series of expeditions with a trip to Nova Scotia, and in ensuing years explored and studied wild life in Mexico, Trinidad, Venezuela and British Guiana.

5-Week School In Art, Music Is Scheduled

The St. Croix summer school of music and will be held this summer July 1 to Aug. 5 in the border town of St. Stephen, New Brunswick. The five week session offers instruction in art, piano, violin, voice, and all wind instruments.

Director Kenneth Mills, a native of St. Stephen, concert pianist, festival adjudicator and well known teacher in Toronto, Ontario, has announced that brochures are available outlining all courses and activities being offered this summer.

Art instruction by Helene Marelow, exhibiting painter, teacher and director of Helene Arthur Galleries in Toronto, will cover the basic principles of art and their technical direction.

Frank Radcliffe, teacher, violinist in the Toronto Symphony Orchestra CBC radio and television, will cover the essentials of technique designed to equip the student to perform both as soloist and in ensemble.

Guiseppe Balestrieri, operatic tenor and eminent voice teacher formerly of Milano and Rome, Italy, now teaching in New York City deals with building the voice, correct production and breathing, role analysis, interpretation, opera ensemble in Italian, French, and German repertoire.

Christian Education Goals Are Stressed At Conference

Rev. Robert Latimer, associate minister of Trinity United Church was guest speaker at a supper meeting of Christian education leaders and workers of the First Baptist Church last week.

Using as his theme: "Some Goals of Christian Education", Mr. Latimer outlined the roles of various agencies such as the home, church and school, in developing christian character. He emphasized the responsibility of the church to provide adequate facilities as well as dedicated and trained leaders and suggested that the modern day school is showing the way in facilities and methods. But he said, "the finest facilities can be almost worthless without dedicated and trained leaders and the co-operation of the home."

Dr. Athol Roberts, chairman of the church's Board of Christian Education, thanked the leaders on behalf of the board and called for reports from the Sunday School and various mid-week group leaders. Plans and recommendations for the summer and fall seasons were discussed, and indications pointed to a renewed interest and development in the church's educational program.

The meeting concluded with a summarizing by the Pastor, Rev. H.L. Mitton, who thanked the more than 30 leaders for their faithfulness, but warned against any feeling of complacency. He pointed out that although much progress has been made and the future appears bright, there are still too many families of the congregation who are not taking advantage of the programs offered.

The supper arrangements were in charge of Mrs. LeRoy White and Mrs. Jack Proud.

ECM Is Seen Essential To U.K. Economy

GILLINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Sir Eric Vansittart Bowater, chairman of the Bowater Paper Corporation, said here that unless Britain joins the European Common Market she faces a decline in her economy.

Bowater told his company's annual meeting he shares the view recently expressed by a leading British banker that the Commonwealth will be better off with a rich Britain in the Common Market, than with a Britain made poor because she stayed out.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♥	4♠	Pass	Pass
Dble

Opening lead—six of hearts.

I played in a team of four event recently and held the South hand. The jump to four spades was made partly as a sacrifice bid in case the opponents had the better hand, and partly in the hope of making the contract.

East doubled when four spades came around to him and there I played the hand. West led a heart and East took the ace and returned a heart. I finessed the jack, played a spade to the ace, ruffed a club, cashed the king of spades, and then conceded a spade and a diamond to make four spades double.

There was nothing extraordinary about the bidding or play, but I thought at the time that my partner and I had had a little better of the deal, since we had not only succeeded in reaching the best contract, but had also been doubled.

However, when we later compared the result with what our partners at the other table (Sam Fry, Jr., and Peter Leventritt) had done on the same deal, it turned out that we had made a substantial gain on the hand.

Leventritt (East) opened with a heart and South also overcalled with four spades. Events took a different turn, though, when West doubled and defeated the contract. Fry led the six of hearts, just as at the first table.

But Leventritt played the queen on the first trick, not the ace. He reasoned that the six lead showed a singleton or doubleton, or else was made from three to the king or jack and that in all these cases the play of the queen could do no harm and might do some good.

This unusual play proved highly successful when South won with the king and led a spade to the ace. Declarer could do no better now then play a heart. Leventritt took the ace and returned the ten which West ruffed. Fry then led a diamond to Leventritt's ace, and another heart play permitted West to score the queen of spades for the setting trick.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
b L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
