Following is the address: Dear Jimmie and Marion: This is a very special occasion in your pathway through life, it being the 40th anniversary of your marriage vows, so we, a few of your friends, gather here this evening to offer our congratulations to you both on this happy event.

You had the happy privilege this summer of having all your family visit you at one time or another, but their duties now prevent them from being with you tonight. However, you have the joy of knowing that they are all enjoying the best of health and doing well for themselves. Jimmie and Marion, you have both been wonderful citizens. You have never been known to turn down anything that was for the betterment of the village or community. Your willingness to help at all times has been marvellous, and we wish you at this time to please accept this small gift from your friends as a small token of appreciation for everything you have done so generously for school, church and community.
