Lindsay Looking Good

One of the greatest left-wingers to ever lace on a pair of skates, is starting to hit his stride in the National Hockey League after a four year layoff. 'Terrible' Ted Lindsay scored the Wing's second goal as they dropped a 4-2 decision to the Montreal Canadiens in the Montreal Forum on Saturday night. This was Lindsay's first marker since coming out of retirement.

Lindsay, who is 39 years of age was playing like a rookie in Saturday night's battle and many observers thought Ted was taking dizzy spells and was imagining he was back about twelve years in the days when the names of Lindsay, Howe and Abel were feared by so many goaltenders. This was one of the most colorful and productive units that was ever mustered together in the history of the National Hockey League.

In Saturday's encounter the ageing left-winger was teamed with Howe and rookie Lowell MacDonald and we thought this was the most effective line the Detroit Club had. MacDonald 22 is a native of Thorburn N.S. and he was an emergency replacement for veteran Detroit star. Alex Delvecchio, who is on the Wing's injured list as a result of a broken jaw suffered in a game with the Toronto Maple Leafs on Wednesday night.

'Old scar face' astounded the sporting world when he announced that he would line up with the Red Wings for the 1964-65 season. This man has been labelled as one of the all-time greats of the game and when he retired from the game four years ago he launched a successful business career.

Ted is in partnership with Marty Pavelich and they represent four manufacturers and have another 18 manufacturing businesses of their own; so it wasn't the money that brought the veteran campaigner out of retirement.

Lindsay had been traded to the Hawks for Glenn Hall three years before the end of his career and just wanted to end up his playing days in a Detroit uniform, where he spend the best part of his glorious career.

Ted said, at the beginning of the year, that he would take six or eight games to see if he still had what it takes and if he didn't then he would call it quits and be satisfied. His main ambition was to finish up in a Red Wing sweater even if he only played one game. Lindsay told reporters that if he didn't think he was starting to hit his stride after a few games he would definitely call the comeback off as he didn't want to just try and hang on and be an athletic bum.

Well, the way the gritty little left-winger was performing over the weekend we think he will be around for a while yet. He dented the twines against Hodge on Saturday night and then went into New York on Sunday night and slamed one behind Jacques Plante in the Ranger cage as the Wings walloped the Rangers 6-2. Looks bad for those so called sensational rookies when a man of 39 years of age can come out of a four year retirement and give his club a big boost in landing first place.

Tid Bits From Here And There

An array of baseball greats paid tribute, Saturday, to Fred Hutchinson, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, who died of chest cancer on Thursday. The memorial service for the 45-year-old manager was attended by more than 200 baseball personalities, including hall of fame members and former teammates of Hutchinson, who was a pitcher in his playing days.

Jackie Carter of Dartmouth, and Jean Huard of Montreal fought to a 10-round draw in the main event of a boxing card in Dartmouth, Saturday night. Carter is ranked number one among Canadian junior lightweights. In a six-round preliminary bout, Leo Noel of Moncton scored a unanimous decision over Bill Chisholm of Pictou, N.S.

Toronto left-winger Frank Mahovolich is still in the hospital and his condition had still not been made known at the time this column went to press Mahovolich entered the hospital last Thursday after complaining of constant fatigue during the past several weeks.

Johnny's Flying Hawks and Sandy's Royals have been working out at the Charlottetown Forum for the past couple of nights and both teams appear to have a good turnout of players. The Royals will play St. Dunstan's Varsity squad in an exhibition game this Thursday night at the SDU rink and they will tangle with the John Kane coached squad again on Saturday afternoon. Thursday's game is set to get underway at 8.00 p.m. and Saturdays tilt will be played at 2.00 p.m.

Roger Rischer, heavyweight champion of California, dropped British heavyweight king, Henry Cooper twice in the eighth round and won a 10-round decision at Royal Albert Hall last night. It was a slap and push affair — a boring one for the crowd of 5,500. Neither of the 30-year-old fighters threw punches expected for a big-time heavyweight fight.

The University of New Brunswick gridiron crew ended the season with a 12-0 decision over the St. Dunstan's squad, Saturday. The Red and White team were suffering from injuries and apparently turned in a good account of themselves, despite the loss. This was a hard year for the Red and White aggregation in he Atlantic Football Conference, as coach Hilton had only three or four veterans to build his club around. The remainder of the squad consisted mainly of rookies who were just fresh from Island high school football and not used to the calibre of ball played in the AFC. The Island lads learned a lot in this years campaign and should provide the Saints with a stronger contender for next season

Don Loney isn't very happy with the selection of the St. Mary's Huskies to play in the Atlantic Bowl and we sympathize with his feelings. We feel the St. Mary's club were awarded the decision simply because the officials concerned felt that the X squad had held the honor long enough, and that it was time for a change.

By doing this we feel they send the second best team in the AFC into the Atlanic Bowl game against McMaster.

Former Referee Receives Cash

TORONTO (CP)—Eddie Powers, former National Hockey League referee received a public apology and a cash settlement Monday from Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club, Canadiens coach Toe Blake and the Montreal daily newspaper Le Matin in an out-of-court settlement of a libel and slander suit.

Powers sued Blake, Canadiens and employees of the French-language Le Matin on the basis of remarks attributed to Blake about the officiating in a Montreal hockey game Jan. 31, 1963. Powers refereed the game, in which Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Canadiens 6-3.

Amount of cash involved in the settlement was not disclosed by agreement between lawyers involved in the settlement, which was reached as the suit was about to be tried before Mr. Justice Edson Haines of Ontario Supreme Court.

RETRACT STATEMENT

A statement read in court by Powers's lawyer, Allan Austin, said the settlement involved a retraction of the "defamatory" statement and an apology to Powers by Blake, the Canadiens Hockey Club, Matin reporter Jean-Paul Sarault, sports editor Jacques Beauchamp and Le Matin.

Powers said afterwards that he considered the agreement a "reasonable settlement." He said the settlement involved an agreement to say nothing further about it.

Powers, 46, resigned Feb 14, 1963, in the middle of his seventh season as an NHL referee, after NHL president Clarence Campbell had fined Blake $200. Powers blamed insufficient support from Campbell for his resignation.

Powers said Monday "the governors of the NHL have agreed to have a meeting with me within 30 days."

He declined to elaborate. He said he has missed being an NHL referee. He now works as a safety inspector for the Construction Safety Association of Ontario.

LOVELL COLEMAN

Coleman Named As Top Player

Lovell Coleman of the Calgary Stampeders today was announced as the Most Outstanding Football Player in Canada following final voting in the Canadian Schenley Football Awards.

The 26-year-old fullback was selected over Dick Shatto of the Toronto Argonauts who was nominated earlier as the Most Outstanding player in the East. Linebacker Tom Brown of the B.C. Lions repeated his performance of last year in the voting and was again named Lineman of the Year. His competition from the East this year was John Barrow of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, two a previous Canadian Schenley Football Awards winner.

Canadian of the year honors went to halfback Tommy Grant of the Tiger-Cats who had Larry Robinson, ace booter with the Stampeders as his ballot mate in the West.

Coleman's final ballot win breaks a monopoly which the Eastern Conference has had on this honor since Jackie Parker won the Canadian Schenley Football Awards Trophy in 1961. It is also the first time in the history of the awards that a Calgary player has been voted the Most Outstanding in Canada.

Presentation of the awards will be made in Toronto on Thursday, Nov. 26, during Grey Cup Week.

Coleman will receive the Canadian Schenley Football Awards Trophy and $2,000.00 in Canada Savings Bonds, Brown and Grant will each receive $1,500.00 in bonds In addition, each will be presented with an action portrait of himself by Tex Coulter, a former Canadian Schenley Awards winner who is now a well-known Montreal artist.

Amateur Boxing Is Making Comeback In Nova Scotia

By IAN DONALDSON

TRENTON, N.S. (CP) — It looks like a shed or a small barn. One wall is covered with tarpaper, another with roofing shingles and the man who is responsible for it being here admits "it's mighty unimpressive from the outside."

But the same man, 40-year-old Don MacIsaac, is convinced the humble frame building will some day produce men who will put Nova Scotia back on the boxing map.

An often-unemployed machine operator who has "dug ditches many times" to provide for his family of six in this steel-fabricating town near New Glasgow, MacIsaac believes in boxing the way "some old ladies like bingo."

He says the days of top-notch professional boxing will return to Nova Scotia only through development of good amateur boxers. Despite a ring-full of headaches, MacIsaac now appears to be well on the way toward doing just that.

Amateur boxing was all but dead in Nova Scotia when MacIsaac organized his Archie Moore Club two years ago. He named the club after his favorite fighter, "a man you might note had a great amateur career."

PARENTS RESISTED

It was a dismal start. "I had no success in that first year. Parents were against me. But I kept telling them what I believe —boxing is a good thing for a boy. Boxing is a character-builder. You have to be a good sport and you have to know how to lose to be a good boxer. You have to be intelligent and in perfect physical condition. Fighters you see in a tavern aren't fighters at all."

Parental co-operation started coming to MacIsaac "when I showed people I didn't expect other peoples' children to do anything my own boys couldn't do."

Ten - year - old Tommy MacIsaac and nine-year-old Robert, a bit young to be regular members of their father's club, have shown the benefit of his training in workouts in the gym next door to their house.

Inside, the gym is fitted out well. The Archie Moore Club has little money but its share of gates at amateur cards is plowed back into it—paying for new gloves and trunks for the 17 members this year. New robes and jackets ($25 apiece) were also ordered.

OTHER CLUBS BUILT

MacIsaac and his boxers hope to have enough money this winter to improve the outside appearance of the frame gymnasium.

The idea of amateur boxing has proved contagious. Since MacIsaac organized his Archie Moore Club, amateur clubs have grown up in New Glasgow, Truro and Halifax. Another is being organized in New Waterford, near Sydney.

MacIsaac says the humble appearance of his gym could be misleading "but we're not a bunch of backwoodsmen." Money is scarce, but what is available is used to provide the best of equipment. Sixteen - ounce gloves, headgear and mouthpieces are used in all workouts. The emphasis is on training among the boxers, aged 11 to 24.

The Archie Moore Club has been a success at the gate and in the ring this season. Its programs have drawn as many as 700 fans and its fighters have won 30 of 36 bouts.

MacIsaac's big ambition is to see amateur boxing take the place professional boxing used to hold on television. "But that's a long, long way away."

MacIsaac himself had only a brief boxing career. He had three amateur fights while serving in the navy, losing two and winning one.

Starr Is Alright Says Club Doctor

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)— Bart Starr, Green Bay Packer quarterback knocked out in Sunday's National Football League game in San Francisco, "seemed to be all right" when he was examined by the team physician Monday, a club spokesman said.

The physician, Dr. James Nellen, said Starr, knocked cold when he was tackled after throwing an incomplete pass, suffered double vision for a while as the result of a hard knock on the head.

Starr was resting at his home Monday but was expected to report for practice today, the Packer spokesman said.

It's too early to tell whether Starr will be able to play in Sunday's game with Los Angeles.

Cappelletti Nears New AFL Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Gino Cappelletti, Boston's fine pass-catching end and place kicker, needs only 26 more points to break his own scoring record in the American Football League.

With four games to go, Cappelletti already has 122 points on five touchdowns, 21 field goals and 28 converts, including a two-pointer on a pass from Babe Parilli in Sunday's game with Buffalo.

Cappelletti set the record of 147 in 1961 with eight touchdowns, 17 field goals and 48 converts.

GAS FOUND

CALOW, England (CP)—Two separate deposits of methane gas have been discovered hundreds of feet below ground near this Derbyshire centre, the gas board announced.

St. FX Coach Is Annoyed

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Coach Don Loney of St. Francis Xavier University X-Men said here Sunday the executive of the Atlantic Football Conference "had no right" to choose St Mary's Huskies to represent the league in the annual Atlantic Bowl Game

He said "The whole thing was construed to give the AFC executive an opportunity to knock us out of it." The Bowl game is next Saturday.

In an interview shortly after the 12-man executive announced the choice of St Mary's University of Halifax as opposition for McMaster University Marauders of Hamilton, coach Loney said the decision was "rotten."

He claimed St. FX is the stronger team and the year's performance showed it. The Xaverians and Huskies ended the 1964 regular schedule tied in first place. The rivals split decisions in their two meetings.

An AFC spokesman said in Halifax Sunday it was the decision of the league's annual meeting last April that the executive select the conference representative in the fall classic on the basis of overall performance during the regular schedule

Loney said earlier conference records showed the selection was to be based on the team's season standing, its season statistics and its public image "whatever that means".

"It's a real railroading," the St. FX coach said.

This is the first year the Xaverians have not been invited to play in the Atlantic Bowl. They defeated the University of Toronto last year.

Combines Meet RCAF

SUMMERSIDE — After a dismal opening season start. Enman Drug Combines hit the road tonight playing the RCAF Eagles at the air base.

Enman Drug dropped a 7-3 thumping to fast skating Borden. The Eagles in their 1964-65 debut clipped Summerside's Junior Legionnaires 5-2. Game time tonight is 8:00 p.m.

Combines playing coach Greg Deighan offered no excuses for last Friday's loss. "I was disappointed", he said. "The team wasn't skating the way it should. We weren't digging. We wern't hungry enough and we played sloppy".

"I think we should give them (RCAF) a better game than we gave Borden".

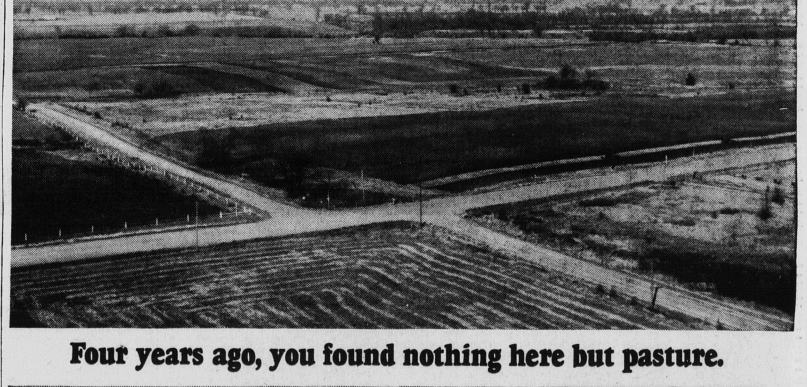
For tonight's game Deighan plans to use only two lines, one which will consist of a converted defenseman playing centre. Dave MacLeod is being shifted up front.

The two shifts could possibly consist of MacLeod centering Coke Grady and Willie Gallant. The other one would have Deighan at the pivot flanked by Lou Poirier and Byron MacCormack.

The idea of two lines was designed and as Deighan claims, "because two or three fellas are not in shape. It will take a few games for them to get in shape".

SHOES NOT WANTED

AUCKLAND (CP) — CORSO, a New Zealand organization which annually collects huge quantities of used clothing for relief abroad, has appealed urgently to donors not to give it high-heeled shoes. Every year, it says, it receives large numbers of such shoes and is increasingly embarrassed at having to dump them. They are no good for relief purposes, it says.



Four years ago, you found nothing here but pasture.

Today, you find nothing but success.

On Sept. 28, we launched Phase Two of the Rambler Revolution. Sales are up 63% over this time last year!

From a once-quiet field outside Brampton, Ontario, the first phase of the Rambler Revolution was brought to Canadian car buyers.

It was our compact car—a complete success. In four years, we've doubled our plant capacity. We've boosted our production five times over.

On Sept. 28, we launched Phase Two of the Rambler Revolution. It's three completely different '65 Ramblers in three completely different sizes. Our youthfully-styled, compact American is still the lowest-priced, Canadian-built car. Our mid-size Classic features fast 6 and V8 performance. Our luxurious new Ambassador brings Rambler quality to the larger-car buyer.

In addition, Phase Two offers more than 70 superb power options and features to meet the wider tastes of today's new car buyers. There's a great 6 and V8 engine line-up, too, including Torque Command, the revolutionary new six that acts like an eight.

Phase Two has met with tremendous public acceptance. Our field is bursting with activity. After all, when it comes to building the car you want, the field is ours.
