Pravda Complains of Inefficient Transport

LONDON, April 8 — (AP) — Pravda, the Moscow Communist Party organ, complained today of inefficiency in the Russian inland waterway boat services.

WILKINS started it, and he played it slower than Cecil had been playing it, and I no sooner heard it that I knew I was right, too. I took it just the way it was cued me. I just rocked it along and kept every note even, and didn't beef at all. When I got to G flat, I held it, and let it well a little, but only enough to come in right on the forte that follows it, and then on the finish I loaded it with all the tears of the world. You ought to have heard the bravas that time. I went out and took more bows, and it was no trouble to look them in the eye that time. They seemed the nicest people in the world.

At the end, after Cecil had sung again and had finished a flock of encores, she took me out for a bow with her, and had me do a duet with her. It went so well they wanted more, but she rang down, and the three of us went out to eat.

Wilkins and I were pretty excited but she didn't have much to say. When we got back to the hotel, Wilkins went to his room, and I went up with her for a good-night cigarette.

She sat down on the sofa beside me, dropped her head on my shoulder and started to cry. "Oh, Leonard, I feel terrible!" "What about?" "Oh . . . The tenor was all right. He wasn't much good, but I could have done with him, once he got over his cold. I wanted to see you, and then I didn't want you to see it, for fear you wouldn't want me to be glad. And I tried to be businesslike, and I was doing fine. And then—you flopped. And I knew you weren't just a singer that would put up with anything for a job. I knew you'd go back to New York, and I was terrified, and furious at you. And then you sang the way I wanted you to sing. And I loved you so much I wanted to go out there and hold on to you while you sang, the other one. And now you know . . . What have you got?"

I held her tight and patted her cheek and tried to think of something to say. There wasn't anything to say, not about what she was talking about. I had got so fond of her, I loved every minute I spent with her, and yet there was only one woman who meant to me what she wanted to mean to me, and that was Doris. She could torture me all she wanted to, she could be a phony and make a fool of me with other men, and yet when she said hop, I jumped.

"I know what you've got. You've got big, hard shoulders and shaggy hair, and you're a man and you build bridges, and to you this is winks game that you play until it's time to go to work. And that's just what it is to me! I don't want to be a singer. I want to be a woman!" "If I'm a man, you made me one."

"Oh, yes, that's the worst of it. It's mostly tidlywinks, but it's partly building yourself up to the level of that woman you're married to, so you're not afraid of her any more. And that's what I'm helping you at. Making a man out of you, so she can have you . . . I feel terrible. I could go right out that window."

I held Cecil a long time, then, and she stopped crying and began to play with my hair. "All right, Leonard, I've been rotten, and a poor sport to say anything about it at all—and now I'll stop. I'll be good and not talk any more about it, and try to give you a pleasant trip. It's a little fun, isn't it, out here with me?"

"I just love it."

"Wouldn't they be surprised, all your friends at the Engineers' Club, if they could see you?"

I wanted to cry, but she wanted me to laugh, so I did, and held her close and kissed her.

Dr. MacMillan then charged that Prince of Wales College, a non-sectarian institution was being sectarianized. "Why was there not a Catholic vice-principal appointed when Professor Blanchard retired," he asked.

"Was there one fit," demanded Premier Jones.

"Yes there was," replied the Doctor. "The trouble is the College is being run by the Big Four—and it is headed for ruin under the present management. 17 students to one teacher, I draw the inference that some are not doing much work."

"I understand that the recommendations which came to you were so unfair that you turned some of them down," he continued.

Dr. MacMillan also wanted to know why Professor Murphy was not given the chair of a professor as he should have been instead of being designated as a teacher or lecturer.

Premier Jones replied that Mr. Murphy was one of the highest paid men at Prince of Wales College and that he had been granted a salary increase during the last part of 1950. He also stated that Mr. Murphy had been offered another teaching position at a higher salary and that the increase was granted to him in order to retain his services here.

Dr. MacMillan ventured to predict that next year attempts would be made to have a Board of Governors convert Prince of Wales into a University. He also stated.

Oak Valley Man Dies In Hospital

The death occurred in the King's County Hospital yesterday morning of Mr. J. Horton Sencabaugh, Oak Valley, in his 86th year after a short illness. Mr. Sencabaugh was born in Oak Valley, and successfully operated a farm throughout his life.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon from the Murray Harbor North church. Interment will take place in the church cemetery.

Mt. Stewart Jaycees Plan Action

A plan of action to improve the community of Mount Stewart was discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Mount Stewart Junior Chamber of Commerce held in the Legion Hall on Monday, April 17th.

The plan, which is to go into effect immediately, has the Chambers full support, and with the cooperation of the residents of Mount Stewart, should prove to be of great benefit to this progressive agricultural village. The Chairman, Dan Mullin, introduced as guests, Walter LePage, President, Region XII Jr. Chamber of Commerce, Ignatius MacDonald, Vice-President, Charlottetown Jaycees, and Walter Duffy, who is a member of the Executive of the City Chamber.

After brief remarks by LePage and Duffy, the meeting started into a discussion of their main object which is to improve certain facilities in and about their community with an eye to Community betterment and a healthy interest in Civic Affairs.

The following Committees and Chairmen were appointed and asked to report back at the next meeting. Ways and Means — Harold Affleck. Fire Committee — Earl Jay. Streets — Alden Birt. Athletic — Merton Jardine. and Effective Speaking — Art Doyle.

The President announced that May 5th will be Charter Night for the Mount Stewart Chamber and that representatives from other Island Chambers will be in attendance.

The following are the officers elected for 1952. President — Dan Mullen. Vice President — Reg. MacDonald. Treasurer — Harold Affleck. Secretary — Athol Ellis. Executive — Messrs. Earl Jay, Bruce Affleck, Oliver Smith.

criticized the College's policy of lowering the pass mark from 60 to 50 per cent.

Announces Committee It was then that Premier Jones announced the intentions of the Government to form a committee. In addition to looking into the course of studies it will also study the application of Government grants to the College.

The Premier pointed out that this was a plan which was hatched solely by the Government. In speaking of the appointment of teachers he stated that they wanted somebody with a proper scholastic attainment "not just B.A.'s which are a dime a dozen."

He also added that there were one or two good men of Dr. MacMillan's religious denomination who showed real promise at the College, one of whom was Mr. Coyle.

Dr. MacMillan also criticized the use of the Government grants at P. W. C. He maintained that the grants were given only for purposes of maintenance and not scholarships. Besides he did not think that the scholarships or bursaries should be given to only third and fourth year students.

Premier Jones replied that there were no strings attached to the grants in any way. "But they could not be given to first and second year students as these students were only in High School and the provisions of the grants stated that they must be used for university years," he stated.

COMMITTEE OF

Continued from page 1 and found out that there were 38. After learning that there were students enrolled at the college he calculated that there was one teacher for every 17 students and contended that the College was over-stocked with teachers.

"In the face of declining student attendances I would like to know why four or five teachers at initial salaries of $3,000 each were appointed last year," he asked. "I would also like to know who made the recommendations for the salary increases last year."

"Did they come from the Deputy Minister?" asked the Doctor.

When Premier Jones replied "No," Dr. MacMillan pointed out the deviation from the usual procedure. "In every other department salary increases are recommended by the deputy ministers," he pointed out.

"Why was one teacher recommended for an increase of $1100 while all the Catholic teachers together received only $675 among them?" he asked.

Premier Jones, who is acting Minister of Education, replied that "We do not distinguish between Protestant and Catholic teachers. We judge them solely on their ability. The increases are granted according to the recommendations of the principal and vice-principal."

Vice-Principal's Appointment Dr. MacMillan then charged that Prince of Wales College, a non-sectarian institution was being sectarianized. "Why was there not a Catholic vice-principal appointed when Professor Blanchard retired," he asked.

"Was there one fit," demanded Premier Jones.

"Yes there was," replied the Doctor. "The trouble is the College is being run by the Big Four—and it is headed for ruin under the present management. 17 students to one teacher, I draw the inference that some are not doing much work."

"I understand that the recommendations which came to you were so unfair that you turned some of them down," he continued.
