

Fewer Students With Doctorates Joining Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — A growing percentage of Canada's students graduating with doctorates in science and engineering are continuing their studies at university rather than joining industry, a National Research Council report shows.

A survey of after-graduation plans of students receiving their doctorates in 1965 shows 33 per cent of those who answered intend to continue at university while 67 per cent will take jobs in industry.

A similar survey in 1960 and 1961 showed only 27.4 per cent staying at school and 72.6 per cent going into industry.

Of the 694 graduates of Canadian universities, 554 had firm plans. Of these, 371 were going into industry and 183 were staying at university.

Of the 371 with employment commitments, 110 or 29.6 per cent had accepted jobs outside Canada, with 73 or 19.7 per cent going to the U.S. In the 1960-61 survey, only 24.1 per cent accepted outside employment, with 14.7 per cent going to the U.S.

But Canada also is gaining some new scientists. Of 137 foreign students obtaining their doctorates in Canada, 68 decided to remain. Only 41 Canadians were leaving Canada.

Redevelopment Proposal Meets Mixed Reaction

TORONTO (CP) — A proposal for a $250,000,000 redevelopment project, on 20 acres that would change the face of downtown Toronto has met with mixed reaction.

The proposal, made by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., included an offer to spend $3,000,000 on a new police headquarters building and a new magistrate's courthouse for Toronto in return for the old city hall and land around it.

The company expressed hope that the offer would pave the way for Canada's largest urban redevelopment scheme to cover the area bounded by Yonge, Queen, Bay and Dundas streets.

In reply to protests that sale of the old city hall would mean destruction of a historic landmark, Eaton's also offered to retain the hall's clock tower and the cenotaph in front of it and to set aside more than 19,000 square feet of land for public use.

The proposed Eaton centre would include office buildings, apartments, a hotel, stores, malls and arcades, a modern bus terminal, a huge new department store and a network of underground promenades designed to separate pedestrians from vehicular traffic.

The estimated cost of $250,000,000 compares with the $105,000,000 price tag on Montreal's Place Ville Marie.

Strike Closes Ports In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Fifty-two major ports in Japan were practically paralysed Thursday as a 10-day all-Japan seamen's union strike ended its sixth day.

The union struck last Friday, demanding wage increase averaging 10,000 yen ($29.75). Ship-owners have offered 4,150 yen ($12.32).

A total of 603 ocean-going and coastal freighters and tankers are tied up in the ports, bringing transportation of goods virtually to a standstill within Japan.

Yoshihiro Wakimura, chairman of the Central Mariners Labor Relations Commission, continued meetings with representatives of the Ship Owners Association and the Seamen's Union. No progress was reported.
