There is no moral issue. It is wrong to deny any American the right to vote. There is no issue of states rights or national rights. There is only the struggle for human rights.

Administration officials at work on the bill itself said the measure would eliminate barriers to voter registration in six low-turnout southern states.

It also would apply to electoral subdivisions with voter registration or turnout below 50 per cent, they said.

These officials said the bill would clear the way for federal voting officers to take over if state and local registrars impede the voter registration process.

It would cover federal, state and local elections, presumably including primaries.

Johnson said the bill itself will go to Congress Wednesday. The Johnson speech was mainly an attempt at selling the idea Negroes are entitled to vote and are going to get the right to do so. The president didn't go into item by item details of the bill he will send to Congress. He dealt only in broad strokes with that.

He explained, as he has before, it will strike down restrictions to voting in all elections—federal, state, and local—which have been used to deny Negroes the ballot.

It will set up a simple, uniform standard which cannot be used to flout the constitutional guarantee that every American is entitled to vote regardless of race or color.

It will provide for U.S. officials to register citizens if state officials refuse to do so. It will eliminate tedious and unnecessary law suits which lay the right to vote. It will ensure that properly registered persons are not prohibited from voting.

All Americans must have the right to vote, Johnson insisted. "And we are going to give them that right."

"All Americans must have the privileges of citizenship regardless of race. And they are going to have those privileges."

Recce Band, Legion Chorus Program Is Well Received

The appreciation of the audience for the efforts of all the local artists was evident in the generous applause which followed the selections of the Band of the Prince Edward Island Regiment and the Royal Canadian Legion Men's Chorus which provided entertainment for a near-capacity crowd at the Confederation Centre Theatre Sunday evening.

Distinguished guests at the performance included his Honor Lt. Governor W.J. MacDonald. A short welcome speech and introduction was given by Edward Brown, president of the Charlottetown Branch of The Royal Canadian Legion.

Emcee for the performance was Loman McAulay. The P.E.I. Regiment Band was under the direction of Lt. C. M. MacGregor. The Chorus was directed by Leslie Hiscott and accompanist was Albert Blanchard. The band performed under the kind permission of Lt. Col. E. G. MacLeod.

The smartly-uniformed band members in their gold-bordered red coats and gold-striped blue trousers and glistening instruments presented a colorful appearance in an attractive stage setting. Members of the Legion Chorus were uniformly attired in white shirts, dark trousers and black bow ties. Both groups displayed their versatility. The selections by the band ranged from march melodies to Straussians, and there were numbers which featured both the trumpet and clarinet sections.

The chorus featured Negro spirituals—songs we love to sing, and songs from Rogers and Hammerstein. Soloist Albert Carter in 'Climb Every Mountain' from the show 'The Sound of Music' was particularly well received.

The band of the Prince Edward Island Regiment has a long history of service and its contribution to the program Sunday night added lustre to its tradition. The band is composed of about 32 pieces.

The Legion Chorus, formed only two years ago, has already won ready acceptance. The members give the impression that they are a group that 'loves to sing' and their enthusiasm is quickly appreciated and shared by the audience. There are about 40 voices in the chorus.
