within? Or to us, who, in the interval of building, had pattered at the incidental housework - was it our honor to sever the white satin ribbon drawn across that doorway high up between two new caves to declare it now open for its intended uses?

Oh no! For us there would be a hindering factor. We were reminded of it the other day by an impassioned likeable fellow perched up close to the ridgepole.

"Come on up, Ellen!" he waved his hand and grinned widely. "Hah - you can't! You're too scared! How do you suppose you're ever going to get to heaven!" He looked into the blue high above speculatively, "when you can't get to the top of a little ole barn! Funny," he laughed, "isn't it!"

In any event, there were satisfied smiles on every face when with ease, recently, the treasure from a first hay-wagon entered there and was dropped within.

Haying days are among the best in the year! And the nights? Beautiful when as now they hold swingin' low, the gift of an August moon.
