MARY HAWORTH

Woman Urgently Needs Psychiatric-Analytic Help

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Is there anything you can do to bring about a reconciliation with my two sons, whom I left 18 years ago? My life with my husband (my father) was so terrible that I didn't want the children then: I am sorry now I wanted him to have the responsibility of rearing them. Also I felt that if he had them, he wouldn't be in such a hurry to have more children by a second wife. I really left them with him for their own good. He had been unfaithful and cruel and didn't want to support us: so I took the boys and came to this town and got a job. Later he came and took the children back to his home state, against my wishes.

After three years he divorced me on grounds of willful and obstinate desertion, twisting evidence to make it look as if I cared nothing for him or the children. Also he got custody of the children "for the time being," the judge said; not that I was unfit, but that I hadn't provided a suitable home for them. He said he could afford a housekeeper. I made no subsequent effort to claim the children, nor did I keep in touch with them (much to my regret today). Now I am very unhappy and all alone in life. I am 58 and need my sons badly. I have a fairly good position and would like to help them financially. I write often to both, though they never answer. I even had a clergyman write to the older son, married now.

Recently, I wrote to both sons, offering to give $1,000 to each to use towards buying a house or making a start in business. Neither has answered. I would commit suicide if I had the nerve; that's how desperate I feel. I can't live without my children. Surely you can do something, through your column or your paper, either by writing something I could send to them, or by writing to them personally. Please help me. E. G.

DEAR E.G.: The saving truth is that you don't really need your two absentee sons badly, during this period of emotional crisis in your post-menopausal history. What you need urgently, rather, is specialist medical help (of the psychiatric-analytic type), in bearing with and rallying from a siege of acute emotional depression, which has its roots in two sources of anxiety, neither of which is significantly related to your cruelly disappointing marriage and tormented fragment of motherhood, from which you fled in search of the person you hoped to be.

The two sources of anxiety which fuel your depression are: first, festering psychological wounds carried over from your own undoubtedly miserable childhood; and, second, your present post-menopausal unconscious feeling that "life is over" for you (or nearly so), and that you've nothing worthwhile to show for it, in terms of substantial enduring love, given and received. Supposing that you had never married; or, having married, had produced no children to pull at your heartstrings; or, again, supposing you had married a kindly man and in faithful teamwork with him had reared good children, still it is entirely possible that you might have been overtaken, anyway, during your late forties or fifties by the same profound melancholy that is haunting you now.

From the cross-section view of womankind's health history in the Western world, in this century at least, it is fairly commonplace for women in the wake of menopause (whether they be wives, widows or spinsters) to suffer a kind of morbid anguish, sometimes also, involuntarily melancholic, that threatens their emotional balance. In essence, this anguish continually re-embroiders a theme of frantic unconscious self-reproach for supposedly having misspent one's whole life (to date) in blind pursuit of wrong roads and misleading phantoms, thus theoretically nursing the one right way to happiness, peace, joy and a sense of "well done" with respect to routes taken and goals reached. In general, such sufferers are quite childish (even at 58), in psychological stature and emotional outlook. They are afraid of what's ahead, at odds with the present and the past, and strangers (as yet) to the undergirding strength and unflinching consolation of a meaningful steadfast "faith, hope and trust" relationship with God.

My advice for you is: invest the money you've offered your sons (which their silence spurs) in first-rate analytic therapy for yourself. That is the upward road out of the panic state you are in. Reunion with your sons may develop later. M.H.

Honey Of A Casserole Baked Honey Bean Pot

TREE nuts of several kinds are cultivated in this country. With these augmented by, imported varieties, we have available a magnificent choice. Nuts are generally classed as a good source of protein. A few of them not only add glamor but are real food value - whether they are chopped and drifted over a fruit salad, or atop a cake; stirred into muffin batter; rolled into cookies; toasted and served on vegetables or chow mein; or added to poultry stuffing; or added to cookie dough. Because nuts are compact, and high in fat content, they should be chopped fine when used in "made" dishes, and eaten slowly if whole. Their nutritive elements can be well utilized this way.

HAPPENINGS

Audrey Jenkins, Women's Editor Phone 4-5506

Mr. and Mrs. Jams Campbell, Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. MacPhail and Lionel Lowther of Cornwall have left on a trip to Toronto.

Jimmy and John MacPhail, Cornwall, are visiting with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor MacPhail, Meadow Bank.

The monthly meeting of the Piusville WI met at the home of Mrs. Rose M. Gallant, with six members attending. The March meeting will also be held at Mrs. Gallant's house when roll call will be answered by donating something for the hall, such as dish towels, cups and saucers, etc.

Among those who went by chartered plane to attend the hockey games at Boston last week-end were Frank MacWilliams and son, Donnie of Cape Traverse, Clair Carruthers of Augustine Cove, and Paul MacWilliams of Summerside.

The weekly card play was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gallant, Piusville, on Wednesday evening with eight tables in play. The highest scores went to Mrs. Jackie Gallant, ladies' first, and gent's first to Arthur Richard. Consolations were given to Mrs. Junior Gallant and Gilbert Gallant. Freezout was won by Mrs. Oscar Gallant and Arthur Richard. Following the card play, refreshments were served; the hostess with the assistance of some of the ladies present.

Mr. and Mrs. James Morrison and family, Alberton, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sharpe.

USC Articles Sewn By WI

Several members of the Queen Mary WI got together to sew quilt blocks turned in at last meeting to be used for Unitarian Service Committee and reported that ten crib quilts have been made, three blankets, three jackets, one gown, also some used clothing collected and turned in to this worthy cause.

President Mrs. Nathan Irving presided over the regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Women's Institute held in the library in Murray Harbour. The meeting opened with singing of "Old Black Joe", followed by the Mary Stewart collect and eight members answered the roll call by telling "how I would like to be remembered if I were a shut-in".

Following reading and adoption of minutes of last meeting, members turned in articles which had been sewn at Red Cross, also some knitting. Acknowledgments were received for boxes of clothing sent to the welfare centres and two aprons turned in at a previous meeting were sold. It was decided to send a donation in to the WI Scholarship Fund.

A reading on "Compassion" was given by Mrs. Ernest MacMahon. In charge of the new program will be Mrs. Ernest MacMahon, Mrs. Garnet Penny, Mrs. Marion White and Mrs. Roy Brooks. The meeting closed with singing of the Queen, after which refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Children's Ward Given Clothing By Burton WI

Donations of articles of clothing to the children's ward of O'Leary Community hospital were decided upon at the February meeting of the Burton Women's Institute, held at the home of Mrs. Ivan Collicutt. The president, Mrs. Clifford O'Collicutt chaired the meeting which opened with the Ode followed by the Mary Stewart collect in unison.

Correspondence was dealt with, followed by the treasurer's report. Committee reports were given and the new visitation committee will be Mrs. Colridge Rogers and Mrs. Lance Dalton. Program will be in charge of Mrs. Ivan Collicutt and Mrs. Elmer Cooke will be the hostess for the March meeting.

A guessing contest was won by Mrs. Elmer Cooke, and refreshments were served, followed by a social chat.

Hymns Of Fanny Crosby Used On WMS Program

Mrs. James Craig was hostess for the monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society held at Breadalbane Christian Church. The devotional leader, Mrs. John Hickox introduced her theme "All things work together for good to them that love God", by citing as an example one who had implicit faith in this promise, namely, Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer. Three of her hymns "Pass Me Not", "Redeemed" and "Rescue the Perishing" were used on the program. Romans 8th chapter was read by the members, and a chapter from the book "The Power of Positive Thinking" by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, was concluded with a circle of prayer by the members.

During the business session, the secretary, Mrs. Craig read the minutes and called the roll, to which the members responded with a Bible verse containing the word "door". Patches for a quilt were passed in and the president, Mrs. Cuyler Matheson, invited the members to her home for completion of the quilt. Mrs. John Hickox offered to be hostess for the March meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Craig.
