45th. Wedding Anniversary Observed At "The Rowans"

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 19th, "The Rowans", the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Inman, Victoria, was the scene of a very happy event, the occasion being their forty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Present were their immediate family, brothers and sisters of the bride and groom, yesterday and other invited relatives and friends. The rooms were tastefully decorated with cut flowers and potted plants.

During the evening, Mr. Stewart Inman, as master of ceremonies, called upon their daughter, Mrs. S.R. Cameron, Summerside who read a humorous and appropriate address to her parents while Master Freddy and Miss Suzanne Cameron dressed as a bride and groom presented beautiful gifts to their grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Inman both expressed their appreciation and thoughtfulness to all for so kindly and generously remembering them.

In the dining room the table was covered with a lace cloth, centered with a beautifully decorated wedding cake made by their daughter, Mrs. W.H. Burns, Malpeque, and cut in the traditional manner by the bride and groom.

Pouring was Miss Florence Inman, Charlottetown, sister of Mr. Inman. Those assisting in serving a delightful buffet luncheon were Mrs. James Gordon, Mrs. Stirling Inman, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Elmer Inman, Mrs. James MacDonald and Miss Olive Holm.

Adding much to the enjoyment of the evening was the showing of colored slides by Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Inman, Charlottetown. These included many places of interest taken on holiday trips from the rugged shores of Cape Breton on the East, to the Rockies in the West and the sandy beaches and sunny Cypress Gardens of Florida in the South.

Harvey-Mayne Marriage Is Solemnized In Ontario

A beautiful wedding, of local interest to a wide number of friends and relatives, was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, Ontario when Dianne Colleen Mayne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mayne of Stephenville, Nfld., formerly of Charlottetown, was united in marriage with Colin Leslie Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Harvey, Stephenville, Nfld. The Reverend R.G. Flemming officiated at the double ring ceremony.

For her wedding the bride was gowned in an original model of nylon crystalite in traditional white. Her chapel length veil of silk illusion fell from a sequined tiara, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red and white carnations. Completing her costume was a single strand of pearls.

The bridesmaid, Miss Noreen Harvey, sister of the groom, wore a dress of turquoise nylon chiffon, styled similarly to that of the bride's. Her headress was a turquoise feather bandeau. Matching shoes and gloves completed her charming costume and she carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations.

The duties of best man were capably performed by Mr. Tom Armstrong of Marmora.

A delightful reception, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gil Marche, where Mrs. Marche followed with the bridal couple. Following this the happy young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and points south for travelling Mrs. Harvey wore a pastel silk sheath, with matching accessories, and white carnations en corsage.

The popular young couple are residing in Stephenville Nfld., where the groom is employed by Trans Canada Airlines, and the bride, with the Royal Bank of Canada.

Lots of pleasant people get through college with very little recollection of the title, author or even the contents of many textbooks employed. However, a modest percentage of "old grads" are just naturally bookish and maybe you struck that kind of crowd two weeks ago.

The ability to play cards (gin rummy, bridge, canasta); a day-to-day awareness of front-page news; an informed interest in what's going on in the theatre, TV and faction fields; and a habit of enjoying yourself in your own back yard (figuratively speaking) are first-aid to good guestmanship. They help you to put in an oar, co-operatively.

Don't try too hard; don't pretend; and don't call attention to your lacks. Just start growing in response to the new situation. That is the chief benefit of change and travel—it brings to light those areas in oneself that might profit by cultivation. M. H. Some One Forgot To Pack The V.P.'s Formal Wear

LONDON (AP)—Vice-President Richard Nixon, wearing borrowed evening dress that did not fit, entertained the Queen and the cream of London society on Thursday night at a "Thanksgiving Day" dinner in the American Embassy.

"I'll never let anybody else pack Richard's clothes again," his wife, Patricia, told a reporter. Nixon looked uncomfortable as he went to the door to greet his guests. He shifted restlessly inside the jacket he borrowed from a friend.

As he welcomed the Queen he tugged at his sleeves, which were nearly an inch too long, and at his coat-tails, which hung much too low.

The jacket bagged in front. But the Queen did not notice or at least if she did she was too gracious to let Nixon know.

RAPS CONSTITUTION
SINGAPORE (Reuters)—David Marshall, leader of the left-wing Workers party and former chief minister of Singapore, said Friday that the colony's new home rule constitution is "a dirty instrument of complete colonial rule through local marionettes." The constitution, presented in the British and Singapore parliaments Thursday, gives the colony internal self-government but leaves defence and foreign affairs in British hands.

As he welcomed the Queen he tugged at his sleeves, which were nearly an inch too long, and at his coat-tails, which hung much too low.

MARY HAWORTH

Intellectual Curiosity Is An Enriching Factor

Dear Mary Haworth—When I graduated from high school I was fortunate enough to get a very good job as secretary in a chemical company.

The people for whom I worked were wonderful to me and in spite of the fact that they were mostly Ph.D.'s, they never made me a mere high school graduate feel inferior. . . . Two years ago I met and married a chemist. We've always enjoyed each other's minds, and our friends were a congenial mixture of his college pals and girls with whom I worked.

Recently we moved to this city, where John has a new job, and I am expecting a child, so have given up office work. I am just beginning to make friends here, most of whom are John's job-associates.

The problem? Two weeks ago at a party where all (but me) were college graduates, we played the game "Twenty Questions" after dinner. Subjects chosen were mostly books and authors of whom I had never heard. Players would remark that they'd read this or that in a certain class at school.

Suddenly I felt quite ignorant and found myself falling silent and "withdrawing into a shell." All were quite gracious, none seemed to notice, and John has mentioned it. But I feel quite shaken and dread our next party. . . . I've begun to worry that I might hurt my husband's career.

Perhaps you can recommend some of the books that college students are required to read, and I might study them at home and gain both knowledge and confidence. Any advice from you will be appreciated. I, P.

Dear I. P.—As a rule, it isn't required reading in college that makes an educated mind. Intellectual curiosity, a retentive memory and willingness to work at learning on your own time, are the enriching factors.
