Welshmen Win Opener From Y For Island Senior Basketball League Title

Earl Nicholson's P. W. C. Welshmen yesterday afternoon captured the first game of a two-game total point semi-final series in the Island Senior Basketball League by trouncing the Y. M. C. A. entry 49-35 at the P. W. C. court. The Welsh will carry the fourteen point margin into the second game to be played next week.

The Tri-color squad went to town right from the start and outplayed the Yellowshirts by a wide margin in the initial frame. The Welsh were sharp on their pass-

Take Vote On Complaints By Sydney Fans

NEW GLASGOW, N. S. April 4 — (CP) — President Bryce Love of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association said today a telegraphic vote is being taken of the association executive regarding a game at Sydney last Saturday.

Some Sydney fans complained following the game of improper conduct by certain members of Charlottetown Islanders in their game against Sydney Millionaires.

Mr. Love said he expects to have the executive decision on the matter sometime tomorrow.

Trophy Is Presented To Islanders

The Frank W. Landry Rose Bowl Trophy, emblematic of Maritime Major Hockey League supremacy, was presented to the Islanders last night by Judge J. Elliot Hudson following the Charlottetown-Sydney game.

Team Captain Wes "Bucko" Trainor received the trophy at centre ice as the large crowd of fans shouted and applauded. The remainder of the team lined up across the blue line.

Mr. Landry, the donor, brought the cup to centre ice accompanied by His Worship Mayor B. Earle MacDonald and Judge Hudson.

Coach Leo Lamoureux, Mr. William Massey, vice-president of the club, who represented the president, Major Tom Rogers who is ill, team physician Dr. F. A. MacMillan, and club trainer Earle Riggs received the congratulations of Judge Hudson and in turn congratulated the players.

The trophy, which was presented for its fifth consecutive year last night was filled with white roses. Each member of the Islanders skated from the blue line to centre ice to receive a white rose from Judge Hudson.

The 2,600 and some odd cash customers who crowded into the Charlottetown Forum on Tuesday night to witness the first clash over local ice between Islanders and Millionaires in Maritime Major title play, certainly weren't wanting for plenty of action and snappy play. Working from behind as they have had to do for two out of the three games in the series so far, Islanders made a valiant bid to break into the win column, but despite their efforts, fell short by two goals against a powerful Sydney aggregation.

Picking up six penalties to Sydney's five in the first frame, Islanders lost their victory in that period alone when Sydney garnered all four of their tallies in that one frame to hold a liberal 4-1 edge at the end of that time. Losing the services of starry Frank Bathgate, who suffered a back injury before the midway mark in the frame, didn't help the Islanders cause either.

Pastmasters on the defensive play as well as offensive, Sydney pulled the same tactics they did in the opening game at Sydney last Friday, when they lined up behind their own blue line to hammer and batter all through the second frame against a flying Islanders club who bored in continually in an effort to cut down a hefty three-goal lead. It was tiring, gruelling work for the Islanders, however, who were themselves out trying to crash their way through a network of Sydney fortifications.

Even at that the locals might have done the trick that would have made Millionaires open up again if it had not been for the sensational work of Nick Pidsodny in the Sydney cage. Bouncing around like a rubber ball, but cool as an iceberg, he literally boarded up the front of his cage to roaring plays around his domain, that in some instances made fans wonder how he was keeping the puck out of the net. In fact there were times when Pidsodny was sure himself, and was seen on two or three occasions looking into the net behind him expectantly, only to find that the puck really wasn't there after all, and that he had once again made a stellar save.

Outplaying the opposition again in the first part of the final frame, Islanders kept up the attack, only this time were not to be denied, to fire home two goals and come within inches on a number of occasions of sending the contest into overtime. The fresher of the two after nearly a period and a half of defensive play, Sydney took to the offensive in the closing half of the session, to give Hal Gordon his turn and once again show his real mettle as a top-notch custodian.

There is no denying Millionaires as a great hockey club. They have balance and punch in every line and department and as one writer remarked during the first games in Sydney "they are as strong on the bench as they are on the ice." They play their hockey smart

Suspension Of Ike Williams Lifted

PHILADELPHIA, April 4 — (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission yesterday lifted its suspension of Ike Williams, lightweight boxing champion, when manager Frank (Blinky) Palermo said Williams would defend his crown May 11 in New York against James Carter of New York.

And if Williams is still champion after that, Palermo said, he'll defend the 135-pound title against Art Aragon in Los Angeles June 19.

The champion was suspended Monday by the Pennsylvania Commission for failure to meet Tommy Campbell here Monday night.

every inch of the way and a style that is deceptive and hard to figure out. One never quite knows what to expect from them from one period to the next they change their tactics so often.

But they have a worthy opponent too, and although Sydney lites hold a 5-1 points advantage in the series so far at time of writing, which was prior to last night's fourth clash, the series is not over yet. The Islanders have a clever hockey club with plenty of punch too, and they don't even know the meaning of the word "quit" and will continue to bore in to a final conclusion.

Take Bucko Trainor for instance. From the middle of the first period on he was the most over-worked player on the ice. For two periods and a half he was hardly off the ice and centred for every line on the club during that time. Probably his longest rest of the night was when he went off for repairs for about five minutes when he received a nasty gash over one eye that took four stitches to pull together. Pitching in for a terrific performance, he worked his heart out to make up for the loss of Bathgate, and believe it or not, although admittedly tired, was showing plenty of steam right to the final whistle.

Speaking of Frank Bathgate, fans will be pleased to hear that his injury is not as serious as was first thought. Frank has a painful bruise at the small of his back, but was up and around again yesterday, and it is believed will be back in uniform again tomorrow night.

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP) — All Toronto sang the praises of old Turk Broda today.

Even that segment of the populace that hopes for a Boston triumph in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final with Toronto Maple Leafs joined in the chorus of admiration for the doofy old campaigner who will be 37 next May 15.

The fabulous fat man merits the praise. He stepped cold into the Toronto nets a week ago tonight after crack rookie Al Rollins was put out of action with a strained knee ligament.

He allowed one goal in a little more than two periods of play in that game, yielded another in a 1-1 tie Saturday night, shut out the Bruins Sunday in his 100th professional hockey playoff game and capped all that with another one-goal performance last night.

There's a strong feeling around Toronto that the Leafs can thank the Turk for the 2-1 lead they hold in the series. One of the four games was tied and just doesn't count. The next game will be played here Saturday.

When the methodical Rollins came along this year to win the Vezina Trophy, many thought the aging Brandon, Man., native was through with hockey. He has shown how premature that speculation was.

A starring role in playoffs is nothing new for Broda.

He got into his first pro play-off with Detroit Olympics in 1936 when he allowed eight goals in six post-scheduled games in the old International League for a 1.33 goals-against average. He's maintained that pace over the years.

In his 101 post-season games he's allowed 206 goals for a 2.04 average. He's shut out the opposition 12 times. Four times his team has won the Stanley Cup.

No other modern goalie can match his record over the years. Bill Durnan, who retired from Montreal Canadiens after last season, allowed 99 goals in 45 playoff games for a 2.20 average. He posted two shutouts.

Frankie Brimsek, former Boston great, was scored on 205 times in 76 playoff starts for a 2.64 showing. He had two shutouts.

Harry Lumley, now with Chicago, played 59 playoff games with Detroit and Indianapolis and allowed 149 goals for a 2.53 average. He had six shutouts.

Broda also tops all active players in the number of playoff games. His closest rival is centre Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings whose total now stands at 87, counting four this year.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4 — (AP) — The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission yesterday lifted its suspension of Ike Williams, lightweight boxing champion, when manager Frank (Blinky) Palermo said Williams would defend his crown May 11 in New York against James Carter of New York.

And if Williams is still champion after that, Palermo said, he'll defend the 135-pound title against Art Aragon in Los Angeles June 19.

Exhibition Hoop Tilt Arranged

It was announced yesterday by P. W. C. Athletic Association officials, that the P. W. C. Welshmen will oppose the Nova Scotia Agricultural College Aggies in an exhibition hoop tilt at the P. W. C. gymnasium on Saturday, April 7.

Final arrangements were completed over the week-end to play the game, the second in a home-and-home series. The Welsh defeated the visiting Aggies on their home floor earlier in the year, coming out on the long end of a 27-20 score.

Little is known about the visitors but it is understood that they have been competing in an intermediate league composed of teams from Truro and surrounding districts.

All in all it shapes up as one of the top-notch contests of the season, and hoop fans are advised nor to miss it. Game time will be announced later.

Fredericton Wins Hockey Championship

FREDERICTON, April 4 — (CP) — Fredericton Capitals copped the Maritime intermediate hockey crown tonight with a 7-2 over Chester-Chester Basin Tigers of Nova Scotia.

Caps took the two-game total-goal series 13-8, the opener having ended in a 6-6 tie, and will next meet the Quebec champions here for the Eastern Canadian title.

The homesters led throughout the deciding contest. A 2-1 advantage at the end of the first period was increased to 5-2 in the second and Caps added a couple in the final canto.

The best the visitors could do was a goal by Flynn in the first and another by Reardon late in the middle frame.

Gordon Steals Show

Despite Islanders terrific performance, it was Hal Gordon who stole the show with his display of goaltending and indomitable courage under very stressing circumstances. Early in the first period, at 4:28 he was exact, Gordon suffered a dislocated right shoulder when husky Don Whalen crashed into that sent Gordon spinning out of him during a play around the net, his cage about 10 feet away to land in a heap on the ice.

Finding that Gordon's shoulder was dislocated, the Island management appealed to the Sydney Club to replace him with Dennis Brodeur, but to quote coach Leo Lamoureux in his own words "they turned us down flatly." Gordon then agreed to continue on, and while his shoulder was being

Local Team Turns In Fine Performance In Rugged Fourth Game

Leo Lamoureux's Charlottetown Islanders really scored a major upset here before a packed Charlottetown Forum last night when they trounced the Sydney Millionaires by the lopsided count of 8-1 in what was the most bristling and roughest hockey contest that has been witnessed over local ice in a good many years.

The game was the fourth of a best-of-seven series for the Maritime major hockey championship and was the Islanders first victory that now leaves them trailing Sydney by a 5-3 point margin. Sydney has won two games and tied one while Islanders have won one and tied one.

The fifth game of the series will be played here on Friday night, with the play then returning to Cape Breton next weekend.

It was a really infested, bruising contest that saw the players come another with everything but the goal posts and threatened to get completely out of hand from the presiding referees Casey Bradshaw and Frank Elliott, who awarded a total of 29 penalties to try and keep down the rough action, but which continued just the same.

Game Held Up

The game was held up time and again for various reasons, and although it got underway at approximately nine o'clock, took until about 12:40 to finish the 60 minutes of play.

Roaring to the attack from the opening whistle on, Islanders came up with the opening goal at 1:36, banged home another at 13:32 and finished it off with a third at 16:40 for a 3-0 lead. With penalties, fights and innumerable other uprisings, the Islanders continued to take the play away from Sydney in the second frame to pound home three more to Sydney's lone marker, and finished off the night by notching up two more in the final frame for their lopsided victory with a seven-goal margin.

Danny Horeck and Mac Beaton were the leading marksmen for Islanders with a brace each, while Johnny Dutchak, Johnny Horeck, Wes Trainor and John Morrow picked up a marker each. Don "Whip" Whalen was the lone sniper for the Moneybags, when he robbed a courageous Hal Gordon of a shutout when he slid a soft shot between his feet in a play with Tom Rockey around the net. It was a screened, backhand shot from close in that never left the ice.

All of the Islanders' tallies were racked up on class two and three-man attacks with the exception of Bucko Trainor's lone effort in the second period that was the smartest piece of stickhandling that has been witnessed here this season. Taking the puck from behind his own blue line, Trainor threaded his way through almost the entire Sydney team to plant the disc in an almost effortless manner behind goalie Nick Pidsodny. It was Islanders fifth marker of the night and came at 12:11 of the second frame.

Local Team Turns In Fine Performance In Rugged Fourth Game

put back in position and strapped up by the Club physicians, the game was held up for some 40 minutes.

But the plucky Islanders custodian, with his right arm nearly useless and a needle shot to lessen the pain, carried on for the rest of the game. Once later in the game, Gordon had to call for time while he had the doctor give him another needle to lessen the pain in his arm, and then took up his position in the cage once more. In addition to his handicap, Gordon was to say the least, heroic and in the final period alone came up with a masterful piece of goaltending to kick aside 12 shots without one getting past him. He handled nearly all of his total of 22 shots in his crippled condition, letting only the one goal which could almost be considered a fluke, get by him.

Pidsodny stopped a total of 23 shots, but had eight goals wiffed past him.

In fact it was Gordon's injury and Sydney's refusal to allow a substitute that set the Islanders on fire for the rest of the night to hand the Cape Breton champions their worst defeat this season.

Dennis Brodeur, who played with Saint John Beavers all season, could not be used apparently without the opposing team's consent or permission from the M. A. H. A., the latter not being received until after Gordon had resumed play again. If Brodeur had been used, it is understood that he would have had to be used as Islanders' top goalie for the rest of the season.

Gordon received the special award from the press for his night's performance, a new Adam hat donated by Henderson and Cudmore, while a high-flying Danny Horeck was the choice of independent judges for the Jack Cameron guaranteed Forsythe shirt award. Danny collected two goals and an assist on the night's play.
