WORDS FOR THE WORLD

"... Know thou for a certainty that in the divine worlds the spiritual beloved ones will recognize one another. ... A love that one may have entertained for anyone will not be forgotten in the world of the Kingdom, nor wilt thou forget there the life that thou hadst in the material world." From The Sacred Writings of The Baha' World Faith.

Thus The Bible Goes Forth...

In the last 12 months, over 5 tons of Testaments were released through the Bible House in Ottawa as free grants to the troops. In over 90 lands, in over 800 languages and dialects, the Bible Society embraces every opportunity to get the Bible into people's hands. Through Colporteurs, it carries it into areas where no missionary work is done. In Non-Anglo-Saxon lands, where no other society can do it, it supplies children in schools, patients in hospitals, lepers in institutions, inmates in prisons, aged and orphans in "homes," and needy people everywhere with the printed Word.

St. Dunstan's---One Hundred Years

This second chapter in the series, "St. Dunstan's—One Hundred Years", goes back to the years immediately following the opening of the college on January 17, 1855. Accommodations in these early days, were far from being comfortable; conditions were those of the pioneer. We read of Bishop MacDonald driving from Rustico to the College on a midwinter morning, consecrating some altar stones and celebrating Mass, all without fire in the Chapel. If His Lordship had to endure such, we may presume that the students of the time had to bear equal hardships. One student relates that he invariably left his shoe brush near his wash basin at night, for he needed it to break the ice in the morning. Lack of funds was a continuous obstacle, recourse was had to tea parties each year to help defray expenses; these realized various amounts from 90 pence to 500 pounds, a remarkable amount for that time. The tuition in 1860 was twenty-four pounds a year; in 1890 it had advanced to $112. A vain attempt was made in 1860 and in 1861 to obtain government endowment; this prompted much controversy and some political action far from being praiseworthy.

The Scholastic Year was, in those days, considerably longer than at the present time. College opened about September 1st, and closed near the middle of July. There were no holidays at Christmas nor at Easter; and most deplorable of all, permission to go to Charlottetown was not obtainable every week. Bishop Bernard MacDonald died in 1859 in the College which he founded. He was succeeded by Bishop McIntyre who exercised marked devotion to the cause of education throughout his regime. In 1862 the College was found to be in need of repair, and a monster tea party was held on the college grounds to help to defray the cost. Bishop McIntyre, while he had been pastor of Tignish, erected there, a kiln in which he burned the brick for the Church. In this plant were manufactured the brick for the College under the superintendence of Father Dougal MacDonald. The bricks were transported by vessel from Tignish to Charlottetown and they now stand in the old building of the college, a monument to the thoroughness of early workmanship, for few of them have been replaced.

At the end of the school year, June 1881, the Jesuits decided that conditions were not entirely satisfactory to them, so they withdrew from their recently undertaken charge. Control of the College reverted to the Diocesan Clergy. Reverend Jean Chasson (later Monsignor Chasson of Rustico) was appointed rector and Reverend W. H. Grant his assistant. name of the college was known far and wide and its high standard brought students from the neighbouring provinces and from Newfoundland. Father Angus has a special claim to remembrance in the annals of college history. Among the priests associated with him on the staff at different times, were Reverend James Phelan, Reverend P. Doyle, Reverend R. B. MacDonald and Reverend James Lamont. Right Reverend James MacDonald was appointed to replace Father Angus as Rector of the College. For eleven years, he bore the burdens and difficulties with zeal and devotion to duty. The enrollment during his time varied from 37 to 72. With him on the staff labored Reverend Cornelius O'Brien, later Archbishop of Halifax, Reverend J. C. MacDonald, later Bishop of Charlottetown, Reverend Allan MacDonald, Reverend Stanislaus Boudreault, Reverend Edward Walker and Reverend Daniel MacDonald. That the high standard previously set was maintained, may be learned from the following excerpts from a newspaper account of the Commencement Exercises, June 25, 1880. "Professor Caven and Reverend Dougal MacDonald examined the students in Caesar, Ovid, Virgil, Cicero and Sallust; Dr. O'Brien examined classes in Livy, Metaphysics and General Ethics; Dr. Conroy in Natural Philosophy; and Reverend Charles MacDonald and Thomas Foley, Esq., in Homer and Euclid. An address on literature was read by A. E. Burke of Georgetown, and on Philosophy by James MacIsaac. Bishop McIntyre distributed the prizes, and made the announcement that on September 1st, the College would be placed under control of the Jesuits."

The above announcement was the condition of college affairs was no precarious indeed. The number of the students was small, debt was being piled up year by year, and the possibility of carrying on further seemed doubtful. So discouraged were many of its patrons, that they advised the Bishop to close its doors. In such a ruling hand, for vigor, for foresight and for determination. Fortunately these requirements were present, and united in the one man, the Bishop of the Diocese. His famous reply to this discouraging advise evidenced at once, his indomitable will and his accurate judgement: "Close my eyes first, then close the college." Thus dauntless spirit of Bishop McIntyre, long hardened to perplexing difficulties, thwart the impending catastrophe, for in no other words could such a procedure be referred to.

result of Bishop MacDonald's ardent zeal in the cause of education. During a previous visit to Rome, he had received from the General of the Jesuits, the services of these renowned educationalists. Father Kenny, S.J., was appointed rector and later, along with these, four scholastics of the order made up the staff.

At the end of the school year, June 1881, the Jesuits decided that conditions were not entirely satisfactory to them, so they withdrew from their recently undertaken charge. Control of the College reverted to the Diocesan Clergy. Reverend Jean Chasson (later Monsignor Chasson of Rustico) was appointed rector and Reverend W. H. Grant his assistant. During the nuptial Mass, appropriate hymns were sung by Mr. Albert Blanchard with Mrs. Joseph Dougan as organist. A breakfast for the immediate families was held at Queen Hotel, the toast to the brides was proposed by Mr. J. Walter Perry and responded to by the groom. The happy couple left by plane for honeymoon spent in the Maritimes. Mrs. McQuaid travelled in a brown gabardine suit and fur jacket with matching accessories. Mrs. McQuaid chose a red wool dress with muskrat coat and matching accessories. On Wednesday following their return the couple left "At Home" to their friends at 2 Grafton Street. Receiving with them were Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Ready.

The tea table, covered with a lace cloth and centered with a wedding cake and lighted tapers, was presided over by Mrs. W. Chester S. McLure. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Gerald J. Ready, Mrs. Bertha Goady, Mrs. Gilbert A. Gaudet, Mrs. Walter Perry, Mrs. W. Knowles and Miss Eleanor McAdam. The door was attended to by little Miss Patricia Knowles.

During the afternoon pleasing music was rendered by Mr. Albert Blanchard.

McAdam-Brown and McQuaid-Brown Double Wedding

St. Dunstan's Basilica with its altar beautifully decorated with Christmas flowers and lighted candles was the scene of a quiet, pretty double wedding on Saturday morning, December 26, when Rt. Rev. Patrick McMahon united in Holy Matrimony, Doris A. Brown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. Brown, with Mr. Philip F. McQuaid, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter McQuaid, and Marion Brown, also daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James R. Brown, with Mr. Thomas A. McAdam, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McAdam.

Both brides entered the Church on the arm of their brother-in-law, Mr. Patrick J. Ready who gave them in marriage.

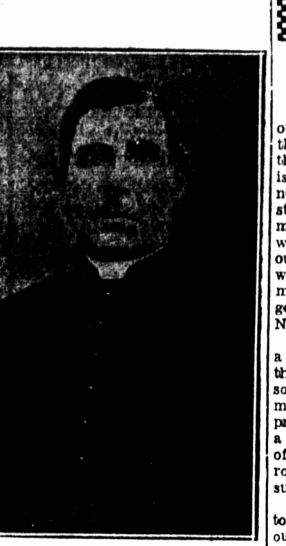

Doris wore a jacket dress of ivory moire with iridescent sequin hat and corsage of American beauty roses. Marion wore a dress of Elizabeth blue with blue velvet flowered hat and corsage of pink delight roses.

Chasson was removed to Indian River a vacancy caused by the appointment of Reverend Dr. C. O'Brien to the Archbishopric of Halifax. Reverend Dr. Grant succeeded as Rector of St. Dunstan's, but, unfortunately, his term of office was likewise short. In the early months of 1884, he suffered such a severe attack of illness that he was forced to leave the college before the end of the scholastic year.

Thoughts For Our Time

By His Eminence Cardinal McGuigan (Copyright)

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

It is evident to everyone that another year has slipped away and that we have now set our foot on the path of a new year. A new year is in a certain way symbolic of a new life, or at least of a fresh start in life. It is a time when many people begin to follow the way of righteousness, and to blot out many of the imperfections which darkened the preceding months. Their desire to do better, generally prompts them to make a New Year's resolution.

To form such a resolution is not a foolish thing. There downs in the heart of everyone, at least some time, the desire to live a more perfect life. To want to improve and to be more a person, is a commendable thing. A condition of self-satisfaction is the surest road to mediocrity, and even to the sub-human level. The determination to do better, to be a more sincere Christian in our community and a more interested citizen in our country, is not an easy thing. Much moral strength and even some sacrifice of time and energy, will be required. In fact, because of our weak nature, to be all that we should be as human beings, is completely beyond our strength. Without God's help, there is always some imperfection in even our best actions, some kind of selfishness.

However, we must not begin this year on a note of discouragement. Nothing is impossible with God. Many of us have resolved in some way to improve our lives. We have begun well, with this good resolution. It is true that the actual accomplishment of this resolve is a different matter. Often we shall conquer the special weakness which we are trying to overcome, and sometimes we shall fail.

Nevertheless, this should not make us despondent. It should be merely an occasion for humility. We are not so much, after all. Our entire strength comes from our Heavenly Father, and when we cease to be interested in Him, then we fall away. The thought, therefore, which must accompany us throughout the future months of struggle is that of confidence. God will strengthen us.

We know that God is all-powerful, and that He has manifested His power through the creation of the entire universe. In addition to material things, God brought into existence spiritual creatures. Since the latter are more like their Creator Who is a Spirit, they are more perfect than the material things which we see about us.

On such spirit is the human soul. At the very beginning of his existence, there was infused into man by God, a principle of life. This principle not only made man to be a human being and gave him the ability to act like one, but it is also immortal, which means that it will never die. If the soul is immortal, it will have a different resting place at the moment of death than will our material bodies. While the body corrupts, the soul will live on. Of these two, the soul is more important.

In the fact that we have an immortal soul to save puts a new meaning into life. It forces us to have a far-sighted view on things. How will my present acts help me in eternity? Everything that we do, including the most insignificant tasks, take on a new importance. They are helping us either to save our souls, or to lose them. When the love of God is the motivating force behind our daily activities, we are becoming better. If selfishness or hatred is the fire behind what we do, we are decreasing.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. LOUIS J. O'BRIEN

The death occurred recently in West Somerville, Mass., of Mrs. Louis J. O'Brien, (nee Ida May Burnett), eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Burnett.

The late Mrs. O'Brien moved from Charlottetown to Somerville, Mass., nearly 40 years ago to join her sister, (Margaret), Mrs. Frank J. O'Brien, who predeceased her four years ago. The late Mrs. O'Brien was beloved by all who knew her, a model woman, a true Christian, perfect mother, kind sister and a dutiful daughter. One would have to know her to appreciate her worth.

She leaves to mourn her husband one daughter (Olivia) Mrs. A. Haas, whose husband passed away two years ago, and one son, John J. O'Brien, also three grandchildren the three Misses Hamills, one brother James A. Burnett of Somerville and a sister, Florence Burnett are left to mourn. Her parents two brothers and a sister predeceased her some years ago. Her funeral took place from St. John's Church, Mt. Auburn Cemetery where it was largely attended. The many mass cards and flowers testified to the esteem in which she was held by her neighbors, relatives and friends. May her soul rest in peace.
