GRAIN

WINNIPEG, (OP) — Fairly aggressive export demand in barley held the spotlight in trade Thursday on the Winnipeg grain exchange. Some of this demand was believed connected with old business and possibly some new dealings. Small shipper support was noted in oats, while flax came in for occasional processor demand. Rye trade was local. Firmness on U.S. grain markets contributed to the steady tone here.

FARMERS

There will be the usual demand for farm labour this coming Spring, and probably a shortage of Island farm workers.

It may be possible to obtain farm help from Holland and Germany, but these only arrive in Canada after an order has first been placed for their services with the Department of Immigration or the National Employment Offices in Canada. No pool of Dutch or German workers is maintained in Canada, from which farm workers can be obtained on short notice.

To obtain one of these European workers, farmers must first file an application setting forth the type of individual needed, whether a single or married man is required, and other details. The application is then forwarded to Europe, where Canadian officials endeavour to secure a suitable man for the job. This procedure and the arrangement for passage to Canada takes time and it is usually two months or more before individual orders for farm help are filled.

At times, not enough workers are offering in Holland, for instance, to fill all the orders from the various parts of Canada, and this is another source of delay.

Island farmers are urged, therefore, to file applications at once if they plan to hire farm help in time for the planting season. Applications should be filed with the
