Tax-Exempt Foundations Are Being Probed In U.S.

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States congressional investigators are studying figures in an effort to determine whether dealings by tax - exempt U.S. foundations helped trigger the stock market plunge earlier this year.

H. A. Olsher, director of the House of Representatives small business committee's foundation study, says information gathered so far tends to support a demand by chairman Wright Patman (Dem. Tex.) for a moratorium on granting further tax exemptions.

Olsher said Patman has requested details from more than 500 foundations on their stock market transactions from Dec. 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962.

Olsher, in a memo made available to reporters Saturday, said the purpose "is to assess the role of the tax-free foundations in the market tumble of 1962—in other words, to determine to what extent, if any, foundation professionals helped trigger the stock market plunge of 1962 and profited later by purchasing stocks at lower prices."

So far, he said, 38 foundations have responded.

This inquiry is part of a larger study the committee is making of foundations, which Patman contends are virtually unregulated and sometimes used "as a vehicle of trading in securities and dodging the capital gain tax."

The inquiry so far shows that the 38 foundations sold $146,135,000 worth of stocks during the seven-month period, with total capital gains of $73,442,000.

The largest single transaction was sale of 1,000,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey common stock on Feb. 23, 1962, by the Rockefeller Foundation. The price was $52,250,000, and the foundation's capital gain was $47,013,093. It had held the stock since 1919.

The transaction was hitherto unpublicized, and a Rockefeller Foundation spokesman in New York explained the stock was sold by the foundation directly to Standard Oil Co. No brokers were employed and the transaction was not handled through a stock exchange, he said.

NOTES SALE DATE

The foundation spokesman noted that the sale took place more than three months before the big stock market break of May 28.

Of the proceeds, $15,400,000 was reinvested in corporate stocks, he said, and all but $1,400,000 of these were bought before the market plunge of May 28. The balance was invested in bonds or deposited in savings accounts, he said.

The committee's figures showed five Carnegie-controlled foundations sold $22,600,000 worth of stocks during the period, with a capital gain of $8,739,000.

Olsher drew no conclusions from the availble figures, but cited Patman's previous statement that tax-emempt foundations "should not be permitted to use public funds for speculation in the stock market. Their mistakes or misfortunes are too likely to have a disastrous effect on millions of our citizens."

Bishop Suggests Ecumenical Mass

By JOHN EARLE

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — A Roman Catholic bishop who said "someone has to stick his neck out," has urged the Roman Catholic ecumenical council to create an "ecumenical mass" spoken in the vernacular and open to non-catholic Christians.

German-born Bishop William Duschak, apostolic vicar of Calapan, Indoro in the Philippines, told a press conference his idea of an ecumenical mass modelled on the last supper probably had earned him "many adversaries, but also many friends." He spoke on the suggestion at Monday's session.

Bishop Duschak, who has spent more than 30 years in the Philippines, said he hoped there would be "an inroad toward unity in the sacramental sphere" by the creation of an ecumenical mass.

"Should not the ecumenical council, which is the starting point for a great and organized movement toward Christian unity, lay the foundation of eucharistic celebration which could be offered to all rites and also to all non-Catholic Christians who believe in the eucharist?" he asked.

SHOULD FACE PEOPLE

Bishop Duschak said he fully agreed Latin should continue as the official language of the church and that the Latin rite should also continue to be observed.

But he said by the use of an ecumenical service "the faith of non-Catholic christian communities in the sacramental presence of Christ may be rejuvenated or even rectified."

Speaking in English the bishop also made the following points:

1. That the priest should face the people during mass. At present few could see the priest's face and "no one would think of inviting people to a supper and then turning his back on them."

2. That since Christ did not speak in Latin, but in Aramaic, the language of his country, the mass should be celebrated in the vernacular.

3. The ecumenical mass should use as much as possible the words of Christ in the Bible, not man-made words. "Man-made prayers should be used only sparingly."

Alberta Ponders Prepaid Plan For Dental Care

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Dental Association is studying a possible implementation of a prepaid dental care plan, Dr. Roy L. Rasmussen of Calgary said here.

Dr. Rasmussen, head of the association's prepaid dental care committee, said the association has talked to provincial civil servants and other groups in eforts to determine whether there was a demand for such a program.

It also has studied a variety of plans, but before any could be implemented there was a need to educate the public to accept preventive dental care, Dr. Rasmussen added.

The envisioned plan would be one which would allow subscribers to "receive preventive and actual dental care and at the same time spread costs over a period of time," he said.

He said an average family of four now spends $24 a year for dental care.

No province in Canada has yet implemented such a program, he added.

Cubans Say U-2 Was Shot Down

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Havana Radio has said U.S. U-2 pilot Rudolf Anderson was shot down by "anti-aircraft defences" in western Cuba.

Maj. Anderson's body was returned to the United States Sunday. Until now, there had been no official disclosure as to how the reconnaissance pilot perished.

"He penetrated deeply into Cuban air space in the western zone of the country," the radio said, "and was knocked down by the anti-aircraft defences of the army."

The bidding:

Opening lead — seven of spades.

This hand created a mild hullabaloo when it was first published many years ago. South gets to three notrump and the question is whether or not he can make it, assuming the best play by both sides. West leads the seven of spades.

Would you place your money on North-South, or would you rather back East - West in the battle? There's only one right answer, with everyone playing perfectly, but it's not easy to see.

East plays the queen of spades on the opening lead and declarer has a problem of whether or not to win with the king. Note what happens if he takes the queen. He has no way of winning nine tricks without attacking hearts, but as soon as he does, East takes the ace, returns a spade, and down goes the contract.

So let's assume that declarer ducks the queen of spades, as well he might even without seeing the adverse cards, and that East return a spade. South plays the jack and West takes it with the ace.

It would appear to be useless for West to lead another spade, even though it establishes his long suit, because he has no entry card with which to get in to cash the spades. But he leads the third spade anyhow, and on it East discards the ace of hearts.

This play is just what the doctor ordered. South may sweat and strain and beat his brain, but he simply can't make the hand regardless of what he does. He is done in by East's unusual discard.

If East makes any discard other than the ace of hearts, South makes three notrump. Maybe a good case can be made for East to throw the ace of hearts without knowing the adverse cards — it is not as far-fetched as it seems— but it is unlikely that many players would do it. People just don't run around tossing aces helter-skelter, which is rather a pity when a fine opportunity like this comes up.
