through a Tibetan Pass.
As we entered the gorge and reached the path which zigzags over the Lachalang we found it blocked by 800 sheep and goats, which were coming down the pass. These were the large Huniya sheep, the load carriers through these highlands. They are splendid animals, with magnificent fleeces. The goats were beautiful little creatures. Underneath their long hair is a soft, silky undergrowth, which is used in the manufacture of the fine cashmere shawls. Many of the sheep die by the way from want of food. The sight of animals being hurried along ill and even with broken legs was perfectly sickening.
This enormous flock had a long journey in front of them, for they were on their way to Lassa, with their saddlebags full of grain. They were accompanied by eight gaddis (shepherds), the roughest looking men, who urged the sheep on with wild shouts which rang echoing through the gorge. Long hair hung over their faces beneath sheepskin caps tied under the chin. Their long, dirty coats were pulled up through their woolen kamarbands, in which were stuck several knives, the usual steel for striking a light and a variety of other things. These men were going the whole way on foot without any tents, their only shelter being the wall built with the saddlebags of the sheep. All their worldly possessions they carried on them except the sheepskin coats and a couple of cooking pots, which formed a load for one of the largest sheep.—Cornhill.

The White Moss Rose.
There is a very pretty German tradition not generally known which accounts in the following manner for the existence of the white moss rose. The legend is to the effect that once upon a time an angel, having a mission of love to suffering humanity, came down on earth. He was much grieved at the sin and misery he saw and the evil things he heard. Being tired, he sought a place to rest, but as it fared with his master so it fared with him—no one would give him shelter. At last he lay down under the shade of a rose and slept till the rising sun awoke him. Before winging his flight heavenward he addressed the rose and said that, as it had given him that shelter which man denied, it should receive an enduring token of his gratitude. And so, leaf by leaf and twig by twig, the soft green moss grew round the stem, and there is to this day a cradle in which the newborn rose may lie, a proof, as the angel said, of God's power and love.

Good Common Sense

Common sense teaches that a debilitated system cannot be built up by continued purging, which reduces the strength of a body already weakened by disease. Most so-called blood builders are purgatives.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People

do NOT act upon the bowels. They renew and enrich the blood and make weak, tired nerves strong. They strengthen and only strengthen from the first dose to the last.

Most people find benefit from a tonic at this season, and thousands of authenticated cases prove Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to be the best tonic medicine known. That is why these pills have a larger sale than any other medicine in the world.

HEALTH BROKEN DOWN.

Mr. John Barley, Lachute Mills, Que., says:—"Up to about seven years ago I had always been a healthy man. At that time my health began to give way, and at last I was left almost a physical wreck and for the last five years have not been able to do steady work the best part of the time, and as the many medicines I tried failed to help me, I had begun to look upon my case as hopeless. Finally a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and now after the use of only five boxes I am feeling well and strong. It is simply marvellous what they have done for me, and I shall always recommend them to my friends."

The same good sense that leads you to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial will prompt you to refuse any substitute an unscrupulous dealer offers. A druggist who says he has "something just as good," or "just the same except in name," is trying to mislead you for the sake of the extra profit the substitute gives him. The genuine packages bear the appearance of the engraving on the left, and may be had of all dealers or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

The Temples of Siva.
The shape of the temples of Siva, the destroyer, does not differ from those of the other Indian gods. The chief entrance into the great temple is by a high massive pyramid, the top of which has generally the form of a crescent. It invariably faces the east. Beyond the gate there is a large court, at the farther extremity of which another gate leads through a pyramid of less height, but of the same form. A small yard separates it from the temple of the idol. In the middle of it there is either a huge bull or a linga carved in stone, raised on a huge pedestal or put under a canopy supported by four pillars. This is the first object of adoration to the visitors, who then pass through a low, narrow door into the inside of the temple. This door is the only passage for light and air, there being no windows. A lamp which burns night and day gives a tolerable light. The interior of the building is generally divided into two parts, sometimes into three, the first of which is the most spacious and is destined to receive the people. The second, or the adytum, in which the idol resides, is much smaller and darker and generally shut, the door being opened by the officiating priest, who, with some of his attendants, has alone the right of entering this mysterious place for the purpose of washing the image and dressing and bringing offerings to it.—Architect.

The Alpine Good Night.
Among the lofty mountains and elevated valleys of Switzerland the Alpine horn has another use besides that of sounding the far famed "Ranz des Vaches," or cow song, and this is of a very solemn and impressive nature.
When the sun has set in the valleys and the snowy summits of the mountains gleam with golden light, the herdsman who dwells upon the highest habitable spot takes his horn and pronounces clearly and loudly through it, as through a speaking trumpet, "Praise the Lord God." As soon as the sound is heard by the neighboring herdsmen they issue from their huts, take their Alpine horns and repeat the same words. This frequently lasts a quarter of an hour, and the call resounds from all the mountains and rocky cliffs around. When silence again reigns, the herdsmen kneel and pray with uncovered heads. Meantime it has become quite dark. "Good night!" at last calls the highest herdsman through his horn. The words resound from all the mountains, the horns of the herdsmen and the cliffs, and the mountaineers retire to their dwellings.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE DANGER OF BEAUTY.
I never read the papers without feeling as if both my eyes are twisted and my nose is slightly bent. I'm glad my mouth is out of line and that my teeth are few. And if I had a "wealth of hair" I don't know what I'd do.
A "tiny foot" or "illy hand" would fill me with dismay. And if I had a slender waist I'd sicken in a day. For I have noticed from the first, as strange as it may seem, The girl who gets the worst of it is "lovely as a dream."
The papers never tell about a woman being shot, Or drangled by a trolley car, or married to a sot, Or forced at point of pistol her last fifty cents to lose. But that her eyes are "limpid" and her boots are number twos.
So I can live in sweet content, without the slightest fear That trouble or calamity will ever hover near. And when I see my misfit face it's some relief to know That I'll outlive the beauties by a hundred years or so! —Brooklyn Life

Poetical Figures.
Common people often use figures of speech which are both poetical and strong. While visiting in Norfolk near the North sea Tennyson was much impressed with the saying which he there heard, "The sea is moaning for the loss of the wind."
This poetical saying he used to compare with another he heard used by an old fish-woman who had lost two sons at sea. On a stormy day she, clinching her fist at the advancing tide, cried out: "Aye, roar, do! How I hates to see thee show thy white teeth!"—Exchange.

A Bank Director.
Stranger—Boy, can you direct me to the nearest bank?
Boy—I kin for sixpence, sir.
Stranger—Sixpence! Isn't that high pay?
Boy—Yes, sir, but it's bank directors what gits high pay.—London Punch.

Inhuman.
"Ah, yes," she sighed. "I was robbed of a lover by the cruel war."
"Which one?" her dearest friend asked.
"The Mexican, the civil or the Yankoo Spanko."—Chicago News.

The court of appeals of New York has held that it was no ground for a new trial because the jury in a murder case attended church on Sunday in custody of the sheriff and heard a sermon on the prevalence of crime.

"Probably no single drug is employed in nervous diseases with effects so markedly beneficial as those of cod-liver oil."

Another says: "The hypophosphites are generally acknowledged as valuable nerve tonics."
Both these remedies are combined in Scott's Emulsion. Therefore, take it for nervousness, neuralgia, sciatica, insomnia and brain exhaustion.

An End of Hair Powder.
The noblemen and gentlemen who agreed to the Duke of Bedford's cropping proposal a few days ago at Woburn abbey, when a general cropping and combing out of hair took place, were Lords William Russell, Villers, Paget, Sir H. Featherstone, Mr. Lambton, Mr. Ant Lee, Mr. R. Lee, Mr. Trevers, Mr. Dutton, Mr. Day and Mr. Vernon. They entered into an engagement to forfeit a sum of money if any of them wore their hair tied or powdered within a certain period. Many noblemen and gentlemen in the county of Bedford have since followed the example. It has become general with the gentry in Hampshire, and the ladies have left off wearing powder.—London Chronicle, Sept. 23, 1795.
