

There are three conditions:
When the blood is poor;
When more flesh is needed;
When there is weakness
of the throat or lungs.

There is one cure: that is Scott's Emulsion.

It contains the best cod-liver oil emulsified, or digested, and combined with the hypophosphites and glycerine. It promises more prompt relief and more lasting benefit in these cases than can be obtained from the use of any other remedy.

The Transvaal War

Major General Clerly.

Major-General Sir Francis Clerly, K. C. B., who has received the command of the column for the relief of Ladysmith, is aged 62, and was gazetted to an ensigncy in the 32nd Foot in 1858, since which year he has served with distinction in the field as well as in the class-room. As instructor and afterwards as professor of tactics at the Royal Military College Sir Francis earned a reputation both as a clear exponent of the art of war and as a writer of literary merit. His work "Clerly on Tactics" is a recognized text-book in Russia, America, Germany and Italy, and has passed through several editions. General Clerly's foreign service began at the Cape in 1878, and he served through the Zulu campaign, 1879. He was brigade-major in 1882 in Egypt and chief of the staff in 1886-87 when he returned to the Staff College as commandant, and after a term of five years in that appointment commanded an infantry brigade at Aldershot. In 1896 he was appointed deputy-adjutant-general at the Horse Guards. Few officers now serving have exercised a greater influence on the War Office authorities in obtaining concessions for the rank and file of the Army, and the removal of irksome restrictions upon the soldier. He is a bachelor, a generous supporter of military charities, and popular in society as well as in the service.

The Boer's Object.

An interview published in London with Mr. J. H. Levy, formerly at Dublin, but for the last twelve years resident of the Orange Free State, contains some interesting particulars of men and matters in that country. It appears, according to his statement, that there are a large number of neutralized burghers, mostly English and German, who have been compelled to join the Boer army. Mr. Levy, who was never neutralized, became a refugee, and his property was confiscated. Many others like him have suffered in the same way. The exodus of these people would have been much larger were it not that down to the last moment they believed that the Free State would not go to war. President Steyn, is blamed principally for drawing the Free State into the conflict, not through his having received a heavy bribe from Mr. Kruger, as alleged, but because he is ambitious, and hopes to become president of a united Dutch South African republic, including perhaps the whole southern end of the continent. As for the war itself, Mr. Levy thinks it is going to be a much more stubborn contest than the British anticipate, because every Boer from fourteen years of age up is an expert rifleman, and before they will submit every one of them will go to the front. They will thus be able to muster an army of from forty to fifty thousand men. Moreover, the Boers have long expected this war, and have made every preparation in their power for it, believing they could drive the British out of South Africa altogether and establish Dutch supremacy from the Cape to the Zambesi. Mr. Cecil Rhodes they regard with intense hatred not unmingled with fear, and blame him for bringing on the war sooner than they desired, and before they had completed arrangements for a general uprising of the whole Dutch population to throw off the British yoke. If these statements be true—and they are being corroborated from many independent sources, it would seem that only the present outbreak could have saved Great Britain from having either to abandon South Africa or from having to cope there with forces beyond her strength had she at the same time been assailed by a European power. Such impression of the real attitude of the Dutch in South Africa may account for any alleged stiffness in Great Britain's dealing with the Uidander situation. The strength which the Boers are developing proves, at all events, that Britain did not overestimate the gravity of the situation in sending so large an army to the scene of conflict.

As there are many Marxmen in South Africa, the Mayor of Mafeking being one of the number, Manxland has heartily taken up the War Fund.

During the British retirement after last Monday's engagement outside Ladysmith, General Sir Archibald Hunter gave his horse to a wounded man.

The uncommon name of Redvers was given to Sir Redvers Buller by reason of his descent from the Courtenay family, whose ancestor was Earl Redvers.

A refugee from Pretoria says that the Boer officials there received the British prisoners captured at Nicholson's Nek with bared heads and courteous consideration. The spectators on the streets saluted them respectfully.

The army has lost a fine old soldier at Ladysmith in Sergeant Major James Garner, of the Royal artillery, who had seen thirty-one years of service. He was the very model of the stuff to make a British soldier of.

Here is a good and true story of Mr. Rhodes, says the London Chronicle. Driving with an English friend shortly before the war, he remarked to him, in a grumbling tone: "Three years ago I made a raid, and everybody said I was wrong. Now the Queen's government is preparing another raid, and everybody says it is right."

Tortured by Itching

Women are almost driven Insane.

Instant Relief in Dr. A. W.
Chase's Ointment

One of the most distressing symptoms imaginable is the almost unbearable itching which is an accompaniment of Leucorrhoea or whites. The nerves are irritated by the poisonous discharge, and the result is an itching which is only rendered more excruciating by rubbing or scratching.

Especially at night, when the body is warm, the patient is tormented beyond the powers of human endurance. Sleep or rest is out of the question. Nervousness, irritability and despondency are a natural result.

In these offices there are on the file thousands of letters from grateful women who have found in Dr. Chase's Ointment a quick and certain cure for this itching to which women are subject.

During the expectant period many women suffer similar agony from itching of the parts, or itching piles, which are absolutely cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The first application of this great discovery of Dr. A. W. Chase will afford prompt relief. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Makes a Frank Statement in Regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Branford, Nov.—Mr. R. S. Tuttle, proprietor of the American Hotel, here, and lessee of Stratford Opera House, is one of the best known and most popular men in the country. His opinion carries a vast amount of weight and consequently the following letter written by him will have great influence in changing certain prejudices still existing in some minds.

"I wish to say that Dodd's Kidney Pills did me any amount of good, and the cure in my case. Bright's Disease, has been entirely satisfactory. I am always willing to state the facts of the case if it will benefit others.

Startling Confessions

Show that 25 per cent. of men and women suffer the tortures of itching piles. Investigation proves that Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment has never yet failed to cure itching piles, and all of these men and women could end their sufferings at once by using it. Scores of thousands have been cured by this treatment. Everybody can be cured in the same way.

The Prejudice Against Prepared Paint

Yes, prejudice is the right word; that is, an opinion before trial. When one investigates fairly he is simply forced to the conviction that a paint composed of the best possible ingredients, selected by those who have special knowledge of their nature and their use, and then thoroughly ground and mixed by special machinery, is better than any one man and one stick can supply. Such paints are
